Paris Fliers Are Nearing Cape Race On Sea Hop

Codos and Rossi Radio "All Well on Board," Speed 123 Miles.

Tail Wind to Aid Pair on N. Y. Lap

Far Ahead of Schedule With Pacific Coast Their Objective.

New York, May 27 (AP).—Lieuts. Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi neared North America tonight on their audacious attempt to fly from Paris to California, but they were headed into one of the most dangerous parts of their 6,100-mile air voyage—the fog banks of Newfoundland.

Frequent messages humming from the wireless set in their silver plane, the Joseph Lebrix, told of a successful flight over the North Atlantic in excellent weather.

The airmen, who are trying to break their own distance flight record, reported at 6:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, they were 400 miles east of Cape Race, Newfoundland.

The message, picked up by the S. S. Washington and relayed to the Mackay Radio Station here, said the fliers were trying to get in touch with the Cape Race wireless station.

Kimball Fears Fog.

"There is usually fog over the Newfoundland region," said Dr. J. H. Kimball, aviators' weather adviser, who followed the progress of the huge ship with interest.

The course of the Joseph Lebrix, however, indicated the plane might shoot a little south of Newfoundland and avoid some of the hazardous district, frequently referred to as the graveyard of transatlantic flights.

The plane, which was sighted at 9 a. m. Sunday by the S. S. Europa 700 miles west of Southampton, was in wireless contact several times during the afternoon with the S. S. Washington.

"All well on board," read a message from the plane picked up by Radiomarine Corporation at 5:04 p. m.

Tail Wind Promised.

By the fliers' own calculations, they expected to reach Newfoundland at 11 p. m., but their rapid progress gave rise to the belief they might touch North America somewhat earlier.

Army Probing Ft. Riley Death

Capt. W. F. Pride Reported to Have Been Found in Burned Chair.

Junction City, Kans., May 27 (AP).—The death of Capt. W. F. Pride, 42, a native of Maine, under circumstances which merited an investigation, was reported today at Fort Riley.

Only the bare news of the death, which occurred Saturday, was given out at the Army post, but it is understood the officer was found in a burned chair. It was thought that Capt. Pride, who once lived at Auburn, Me., died of heart disease and that the fact he had been smoking might explain the fire.

He returned to duty here last week after completing some Civilian Conservation Corps work. He had been stationed here for several years and was the author of a history of Fort Riley.

Capt. Pride received his appointment in Virginia, being graduated from the Cavalry School. He received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maine in 1914.

Actress Guarded On Kidnap Threat

Maureen O'Sullivan Says She Was Warned.

Los Angeles, May 27 (AP).—Maureen O'Sullivan, Irish-born screen actress, was under special police guard today as the police department began an investigation of a purported plot to kidnap her. Miss O'Sullivan reported the asserted plot to authorities.

"A young man, a stranger to me, spoke to me at a luncheon and told me that he had information that I was to be abducted and held for ransom," the actress told police.

Police were looking for Miss O'Sullivan's informant.

League Fate Hinges Upon Arms Session

World Powers Meet Today in Geneva; U. S. Open to Suggestions.

Geneva, May 27 (AP).—With maintenance of world peace the ultimate goal, statesmen of many nations were assembling here tonight to struggle anew with the problem of disarmament.

The League of Nations, as an organ of peace, it is generally admitted, will survive or perish in accordance with what success or failure flows from their efforts here.

Norman H. Davis, United States Ambassador at Large, spent the day writing a speech inspired by recent talks with President Roosevelt.

Davis said his mind remains open to suggestions and that he does not plan any sensational proposals. It is believed he will urge an armament accord emphasizing supervision of arms and a more rigid control of the international arms traffic.

Chaco to Be Example.

The Chaco war between Paraguay and Bolivia, which is now threatening to enter a stage of ruthless terriorism, is expected to serve as a red light danger warning to Europe.

Diplomats believe France approaches the conference with the conviction that Germany is likely "to crack up" economically, financially and politically, in the near future. Hence it is believed France will spar for time while awaiting the outcome of the German internal situation. Numerous other delegations do not share France's pessimistic views concerning Germany.

The great powers, to the delight of Premier Mussolini, may seek to throw the disarmament deadlock into a new restrictive committee to be named by the League Council, and which would include Great Britain, France, Italy, Russia, the United States, Poland, representatives of the little entente and, if Chancellor Hitler is willing, Germany.

New York, May 27 (U.P.).—The Daily Mirror in a copyright story says that "Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani's romance with her Georgian husband is dead."

"In answer to his $20,000,000 daughter's pathetic appeals from Paris," the Mirror says, "Franklyn L. Hutton sailed Sunday for France. He will join the disillusioned heiress in the French capital, where she awaits him.

"It is expected that an absolute divorce will end the marriage. * * * Financial difficulties are the cause of the final break." The story says Hutton never favored the match.

Paris, London To Talk Debts To U. S. Envoy

Sir John Simon, Barthou to Meet Norman Davis in Geneva Parley.

Paris, May 27 (AP).—France and Great Britain, it was learned today, plan to consider jointly the problem of debts owed to the United States at a meeting of envoys in Geneva.

French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, it was learned, told the cabinet yesterday he had sounded out United States Ambassador at Large Norman H. Davis, and that he and Davis, together with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, plan a three-cornered talk.

Barthou expressed little hope of escaping a default in the war debt payment due June 15, but thought it was not impossible that the government at least could announce a disposition to settle speedily, with a bare possibility of recommending to parliament a token payment.

Deputies Against Payment.

The French deputies thus far have been apparently unalterably opposed to payment of any sort on the debt owed to America.

The French foreign minister's attitude is that the door is not closed to sett ment. This was revealed in his written answer to an interpellation in the chamber May 23, denying that the United States had taken measures of reprisal against France in the debt matter.

"The United States," he said, "has taken no special reprisal measure against France, because of nonpayment on the due date of sums owed by France."

He added, however, that the Government of the United States had put into effect the Johnson bill, which "in a general manner forbids the floating on the American market of loans by governments which are totally or partially defaulted on debts to the United States."

Default Ruling Stands.

He did not interpret this as directed specially against France.

Widow Evicted Twice Finally Gets a Shelter

Fon du Lac, Wis., May 27 (AP).—Evicted in foreclosure proceedings and forcibly restored to her home by friends, Mrs. Eliza Bromme, a widow, and her two children were shelted by neighbors tonight after a second eviction, arrest and a brief jail stay.

County officers waited with tear gas and shotguns for the return of the 25 "strangers" who yesterday replaced Mrs. Bromme and her furnishings in the home she lost last week.

Cummings Calls at U. S. Prison And Gets a Glimpse of Capone

Atlanta, May 27 (AP).—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings today paid his first visit to a Federal prison, got a glimpse of Al Capone, and said he wondered if John Dillinger, most widely hunted of the present crop of criminals is still alive.

The name of Dillinger was brought up when Warden A. C. Aderholt remarked on the scarcity of escapes from the prison. Asked by the Attorney General if he thought Dillinger could be kept there the warden replied, "Yes, sir."

"We'd probably send Dillinger to Alcatraz, however," Cummings remarked. Alcatraz, a favorite project of the Attorney General, is the new Federal prison in San Francisco Bay, where the Government plans to send its most deperate prisoners.

"I sometimes wonder if Dillinger is still alive," Cummings observed. "He was wounded, you know, and it isn't possible to get such excellent medical attention while being chased around the country."

Capone, just one of 1,958 inmates of the penitentiary here, was among a group walking from the cell block to the dining hall for dinner when someone in the Attorney General's party—50 yards away—pointed him out.

The heavy-set, former Chicago gangster, wearing the usual prison uniform and a black sweater in spite of the mid-day heat, was chewing tobacco and slouching along nonchalantly. Capone turned and looked at the Cummings party until he disappeared around the building.

Cummings was here to receive an honorary degree from Oglethorpe University tonight.

Ohio Strike Peace Plans Are Hurried

All Sides in Conference for First Time in Toledo.

Electrical Union Puts Off Walkout; City Tieup Delayed.

Toledo, Ohio., May 27 (AP).—Many hours of negotiation in Toledo's riotous automotive strike were punctuated late today with an official statement from Federal mediators that a "possibility of complete settlement" had appeared.

Issued under the name of Chief Mediator Charles P. Taft, the statement said union leaders and officials of the Electric Auto-Lite Co. had been brought together and a spirit of mutual understanding prevailed.

Union conferees expressed themselves as pleased with the new turn of events that brought them face to face with the management of three automobile parts plants—Electric Auto-Lite Co., the Logan Gear Co. and the Bingham Stamping & Tool Co.

Strikers' Delay Urged.

While the round-robin conference was still on, a group of union leaders and Federal mediators appeared at a meeting of strikers which had been called to consider any plan of action that might be evolved.

The strikers were asked to adjourn the meeting until tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., and agreed. The favorable turn of events was reported to them by Thomas Ramsey, business agent.

All was quiet in the riot zone, where bricks, epithets, bullets, and tear gas have been swapped with savage confusion by National Guard troops and strike sympathizers.

Only three prisoners were added to the nearly 200 persons arrested in the last three days. Guardsmen took the men into custody after charging the trio had been distributing handbills.

Crowd Dwindles.

Some 400 Sunday automobilists and pedestrians wandered outside the guard lines in the strike zone, looking over the scenery.

The optimistic turn of events in the automotive strike was not reflected in other potential strike quarters. The Federal mediators also were concerned to avert a threatened general walkout of union labor here.

As mediators, headed by Charles P. Taft, sweated over the Auto-Lite problem in a prolonged hotel room conference with strike leaders, E. H. Dunnigan, another Federal labor representative, pleaded with union electrical workers for a three-day postponement of strike action.

Tentatively, the electrical workers agreed to delay, but the walkout was set for Thursday. Originally, they were to have struck tomorrow.

The electrical workers, employes of the Edison Co., are 90 per cent organized, union men contend. If they walk out, practically all industry in this industrial city would be at a standstill. The Edison Co. supplies power to more than 90 per cent of the plants.

Union Hopes for Shutdown.

Asked if a strike would mean a shutdown of power houses which supply the city with current, Oliver Myers, business agent for the electrical workers, replied, "I hope so." C. L. Proctor, general manager of

Police Chief Shot By Portugal Gang

Bystanders Wounded in Hail of Bullets.

Lisbon, Portugal, May 27 (AP).—Maj. Ferreira Gil, sub-commander of Lisbon police, was wounded by three bullets fired by an unidentified man who tried to assassinate him at a railway station today.

Bullets spattered about the station and wounded three bystanders. The fire came from several places, indicating the attack was a carefully laid plot in which a group participated.

Gil was at the station awaiting the arrival of the "Greenshirts," an anti-Communistic party of college students.

Touhy Gang Witness Hangs Himself in Jail

Elkhorn, Wis., May 27 (AP).—One of the captors of the Touhy gang and a principal witness at the mob's Chicago and St. Paul trials, George Wiswell, 38, yesterday hanged himself with a clothesline in the Walworth County Jail here. He was in jail at his own request.

When he began having hallucinations two days ago, police said, Wiswell asked Sheriff George O'Brien to keep him in jail.

Police Hide Suspect In Slaying of Chief

Carmi, Ill., May 27 (AP).—Officers today kept secret the whereabouts of Fred Benner, 38, who they said shot and killed Chief of Police Clarence Ritch in resisting arrest on a drunkenness charge, last night.

Benner, captured a short time after the shooting, was spirited out of town as an angry crowd formed around the county jail.

Freer Trade Rein Asked Of Roosevelt

Durable Goods Group Says Confidence sI Retarded.

Securities Act, Exchange Bill Held Menace to Recovery.

Confidence of investors is the most important requisite for National recovery, a durable goods industries committee of 16 reported to President Roosevelt yesterday.

Created two months ago to answer the Administration's question: "How are we going to activate the capital goods industries?" the committee reported that much depended upon "the belief of investors that nothing is in prospect which will endanger the safety of their investment and the return of a fair profit."

The securities act and the stock market control bill were specifically designated as deterrents to recovery.

Stimulation of the construction industry is vital to recovery, the report said, indorsing a new type of real estate mortgage designed to speed home building.

"Private enterprise must replace Government expenditure," the committee found, declaring that "replacement of obsolete facilities and the financing of new ventures will be undertaken only in anticipation of profit."

Stress Need of Confidence.

The report was made to President Roosevelt by a committee of 16 leading industrialists, headed by George H. Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

"The foundation of our National recovery must be confidence," it read, "not alone that an imminent breakdown of our National business machinery has been averted, but that the American principle of individual initiative in all legitimate activities, operating through private enterprise, will be unimpaired.

"The revival of industry and the elimination of the major part of our unemployment hinges upon the free flow of capital into private industry, a fact that depends upon increased confidence in the future.

"The hazards of business must be balanced by the prospect of a fair return on investment."

Consideration of the present economic and social problems must be in the following sequence, the report stated—first, relief; second, recovery; third, reform.

Securities Act Assailed.

The securities act of 1933 and the Fletcher-Rayburn securities exchange bill were specifically named as actual and potential deterrents to economic recovery.

"Government control of corporations and their officers, and the imposition of penalties upon honest business men and bankers, such as would class them with fraudulent manipulators of securities, will impede needed financing," said the report. "Reputable men shrink from having to defend unjustified nuisance law suits, and from imperiling their future and well being by incurring undefined liabilities.

"For instance, industry is convinced that the Securities Act of

Those Big Floppy Hats Save a Boat From Going Down

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—Those big, floppy hats, currently a la mode, were put to a practical use early today when three debutantes and their escorts bailed out a sinking motorboat long enough to save their lives with theirs.

The girls and the young men left the charity ball at the Century of Progress just in time to get into a 30-foot cabin cruiser and shoot up the lake to the North Shore for breakfast, but as they swung out of the lagoon at the fair the boat sprang a leak.

Off came the hats and the sextet took turns at bailing frantically. The leak grew worse, but the big hats threw out enough water to make it possible to beach the boat. The girls were Miss Mary Grieg, Miss Jean Faust and Miss Mary Flitcraft. Their escorts were Peter Akerund, Fred Slaughter and Arthur Proteau.

Three Slug Jailer, Steal Picnickers' Car, Flee

Sherman, Tex., May 27 (AP).—Three prisoners fled from jail here today after slugging a jailer and stealing an automobile from a group of picnickers in a park nearby.

W. V. Graham, veteran jailer, was slugged by George E. Droddy, 19, of Pineville, Mo., who had called him to the cell block. Adrian Petty, 16, and Roy Batts, 21, climbed to the jail attic with Droddy and escaped through a window.

Assassins' Guns Rake Caffery's Cuba Home

Soldier Shot, Is Dying; Police Promise to Get Gunmen.

Havana, May 27 (AP).—Several shots were fired today directly into the doorway of the home of United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, presumably in an attempt to assassinate him.

Unidentified assailants, using a sawed-off shotgun, poured lead into the entrance where soldiers were standing guard waiting for the ambassador to come out. It was exactly at the time he usually leaves for the yacht club.

One of the soldiers was struck by slugs and seriously wounded.

Another soldier who was sitting in Caffery's automobile waiting for him answered the assailant's fire and gave chase, but the men escaped.

Cuban police revealed yesterday that a plot was afoot to assassinate Caffery and to destroy American property in Cuba, and had taken extraordinary precautions to guard the ambassador's life.

The wounded soldier, named Francisco Ortega, had his right leg torn off by a bullet, apparently explosive in nature. At Columbia Military Hospital he was reported to be dying.

Caffery, who continued on his way to the yacht club after calling at the embassy, refused to say who he thought the assailants might be.

"I am very sorry it happened, especially in view of the fact that

Police Called Brutal in Riot At New York

Woman Knocked Down, Man Beaten, Reporters Hit in Tombs Court.

New York, May 27 (AP).—Police and radicals clashed in a furious battle today in a Tombs courtroom and outside in the crowded street. A score of persons, including one woman, were beaten over the head, kicked and slapped.

The fight started when Magistrate Leonard A. McGee ordered the courtroom cleared of spectators, after he had ordered two prisoners, arrested in yesterday's Welfare Bureau disorders, held in $1,500 bail on charges of felonious assault.

Thirty officers stationed in the building marched into the courtroom after the magistrate had issued his order, angered by the boos of 100 sympathizers.

Crowd Moves Slowly.

The crowd moved slowly out of the dingy courtroom, with the officers pushing them. Mrs. James Lechay and her husband were among those ordered to leave.

Witnesses said near the rear of the courtroom a policeman pushed Mrs. Lechay, and that her husband turned to remonstrate with him, saying, "We're leaving."

The patrolman, who asserted the woman called him names although other witnesses deny this, said:

"Go on, get out of here." With

Warrant Out In Arlington Man's Knifing

Washingtonian Is Held as Witness in Mysterious Kolar Robbery.

A mysterious cutting affray at Four Corners, Md., in which a Virginia real estate dealer was wounded seriously and robbed of $200 last Thursday, led yesterday to issuance of a warrant for Edward Reed, of Four Corners, on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Joseph C. Davis, of 734 Sixth street northwest, a chance drinking companion of the victim, is being held by Montgomery County police as a State witness.

Frank Kolar, 47, Arlington County real estate agent, who was found in his parked car on the Bladensburg road near Four Corners Thursday morning, his throat slashed and unconscious from loss of blood, identified Davis as his companion.

Kolar told police he had struck an acquaintance with Davis whom he had observed looking into a shop window at Ninth and F streets northwest, Wednesday evening. He said he inquired of Davis where liquor could be purchased, and that after buying a bottle they set out upon a tour of beer parlors.

Join Others in Party.

Eventually, Kolar said, they arrived at a "barbecue" at Four Corners, where they met Robert S. Copeland, of 918 Longfellow street northwest, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Schaeffer, of Four Corners and Reed. The six adjourned to the

Federal Trade Board Uplifts Burlesque, Bans Prize Candy

As far as the Federal Trade Commission is concerned, it's quite O. K. for a burlesque queen to continue to wiggle and shake, and the baldheaded row can continue to applaud vociferously. But the time-honored American custom of hawking prize-containing boxes of candy in the burlesque-show aisles is to be no more.

The commission took advantage of the week-end to lay aside its concern with ubiquitous power industry troubles and the business of supervising issuance of securities. It took a look at the old American institution of burlesque, and it didn't altogether like what it saw.

Not that anything was wrong with performances. The commission wasn't concerned with that.

What it didn't like was the old gag that long has featured American burlesque—ushers selling candy between the acts with "valuable prizes" contained in the box. Solemnly the commission contemplated the profession of the hawker and his lines about the prize "ladeez and gentlemen will find inside the box of delicious chocolate creams" if they would part with 25 cents.

It is an "unfair method of competition in interstate commerce" to induce the patrons of a burlesque show to buy candy on the promise of winning a prize, the commission decided. More specifically, it constitutes a lottery scheme, the commission held. The commission ruled, therefore, that two Chicago manufacturers who have been making candy for distribution in this manner at burlesque shows and carnivals must cease such business.

Because it alleged the Union Concession Co. and the Bob Hofeller Candy Co. are "placing in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries," the commission ordered the firms to appear and show why cease and desist orders should not be issued against them. It based its action on the recent Supreme Court decision banning candy lotteries.

85% of Industry Must Agree on Regional Price Control.

Major Provisions National in Scope

President Says Gains to Be Retained Under Present System.

Suspension of NRA provisions to permit many so-called service trades and industries to adopt local codes of fair practice was announced by President Roosevelt in an executive order yesterday.

Subject to approval by the Administration, local groups which adopt their own codes by an 85 per cent vote are authorized by the President's order to agree upon prices and trade practices, and to fly the Blue Eagle accordingly.

Industries and trades affected by the order are those such as hotels, restaurants, laundries and cleaning and dyeing plants which long have protested against the price-fixing and fair practice provisions of National codes under which they have been operating.

Local groups in these service industries, while they may determine, after designation by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, their own codes of fair trade practice, will remain bound by Blue Eagle regulations as far as child labor, hours and wages and collective bargaining are concerned.

Gains Will Be Retained.

"No industry would give up the gains we have made" in respect to these NRA provisions, the President said, explaining that where fair practice regulations are concerned, however, a trial period has shown that for some industries "a greater degree of autonomous local self-government is desirable."

Gen. Johnson is to designate which businesses are to be affected. The Executive order suspending fair trade provisions of service industry codes was forecast in The Post yesterday morning.

In a statement accompanying the Executive order, President Roosevelt said:

"Most industries have a national community of economic interest even though the operation of some of their units is local. There are others which, notwithstanding their having National trade associations, do not actually integrate themselves nationally.

"Whether an industry can govern and police itself under the fair trade provisions of a National code depends on its degree of actual

New Yorkers Work at Play

NRA Is Told They Like to Go Places in Spare Time.

New York, May 27 (AP).—The New York committee on the use of leisure, reporting today to the NRA, found that the people of this city want to be on the go in their spare time.

The long document contained practically nothing about staying at home or taking walks or visiting friends.

It dealt with facilities provided by public institutions—the museums, the parks, the theaters, and lecture halls, and recommended that there be more public gatherings of various sorts, free of charge.

"Whether we like it or not," reported the committee, headed by Raymond B. Fosdick, international lawyer, "Ford probably comes nearer than Gandhi to symbolizing our age.

"But just because we recognize the inevitability of standardization in material production and the hard fact of the mechanization of industry, we must constantly emphasize the need of personal and individual development in human beings.

"We must be insistent that the opportunity for living individually and personally, and not mechanically, shall be as widely available as possible."

Trade Group Backs Demand For AAA Quiz

Law Reacts to Benefit of Railroads, Commission Merchants Claim.

Charging the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Act is serving to pull chestnuts from the fire for the railroads, the National League of Commission Merchants yesterday joined Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, in his demand for an impartial investigation of the agricultural situation.

Senator Wheeler is author of a resolution authorizing the Federal Trade Commission to conduct an investigation with respect to agricultural income and the financial and economic condition of agricultural producers generally. Particular emphasis is placed on ascertaining the costs of distribution and the profits of processors and distributors.

This group of middlemen, handling fresh fruits and vegetables, asserted that the facts "will show either ulterior motives or ignorance behind continuing attacks on wholesale distributors."

Amendments Revised.

The statement was made in a letter to Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, from Horace H. Herr, secretary of the National League of Commission Merchants.

Meanwhile, proposed Agricultural Adjustment Act amendments that raised the ire of Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, overwent an overhauling at the hands of their authors.

Farm Administration lawyers, who prepared the original proposal for changing the law, sought language that would clear up the opposition led by Byrd and at the same time give them the power to deal with recalcitrant processors and shippers of agricultural commodities. Byrd previously had stated that he did not think this could be done. He declared the amendments are so far-reaching as to place power in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture to require the licensing of farmers, since most of them either process or ship commodities they produce.

Cotton Price Set.

At the same time, Acting Secretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell proclaimed 11.34 cents per pound as the base for determining the rate of tax on cotton under the Bankhead Act.

The figure represents the average price of lint cotton at 10 spot markets. It constitutes the base for computation of the tax levied on cotton ginned in excess of a total of 10,000,000 bales of tax-exempt cotton allotted to producing States.

The Bankhead Act fixes the tax at 50 per cent of the proclaimed price but in no event at less than 5 cents per pound. The price proclaimed by Tugwell will be used as a base until a different market price is determined and proclaimed.

Warrant Issued In Kolar Knifing

Schaeffer home and accounts of what transpired after differ.

Kolar's version is that during the early hours of Thursday morning he went to get a bottle of liquor from his car, when he was struck on the head, slashed with a knife and robbed of his $200.

Montgomery County police found Kolar later that morning, unconscious, and took him to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Silver Spring. Davis, when questioned, denied having been with Kolar, but the latter identified the Washington man as his companion. The Schaeffers, Reed and Copeland also denied Davis was the man who had accompanied Kolar to Four Corners Wednesday night.

Copeland Also Slashed.

Investigation developed that Copeland had been slashed on the wrist at the Schaeffer home. When questioned by police the following day, he said he had cut his arm while repairing the belt on an air compressor, but after the records of Walter Reed Hospital were referred to Copeland admitted having been slashed by Reed.

The Schaeffers' story was that after Copeland had been wounded they, accompanied by Reed, took him to the hospital, leaving Kolar and his companion in the yard.

Reed asserted he had been chased into the Schaeffers' yard after an altercation with the couple, and that he was being attacked and pushed against Kolar's car when Copeland's wrist was slashed.

Elwood D. Mathews, of Four Corners, told police he saw two men take Kolar's car to the old Bladensburg road Thursday morning and park it there, walking away.

Kolar was reported improving last night. Davis was held in Rockville Jail in lieu of $200 bond.

Ship Released On President's Plea in Strike

Cargo Needed Badly in Alaska; Longshoremen Still Adamant.

San Francisco, May 27 (AP).—The intervention of President Roosevelt resulted today in the release of one shipload of badly needed supplies for southwestern Alaska ports, as Federal representatives continued attempts to break the strike of 25,000 Pacific Coast marine workers, which began May 9.

Striking longshoremen voted to permit loading of one vessel for Alaska after urgent appeals of port authorities and business men had reached the ear of the President.

Long before the usual Sunday crowds weer about in San Francisco, Government officials met with Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Assoication, a committee of stevedores and officers o fthe Waterfront Employers Association and sought a compromise which they hoped would restore shipping along the Western Seaboard to something like normal.

There were no indications from the closed conference room, however, that the President's mediation board and Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Latbor, were nearer effecting a settlement than they indicated yesterday.

..Still a bar to peace apparently was the continued insistence of union representatives that waterfrotn employers recognize the "closed shop" and permit union control of hiring halls.

A group of about 40 strikers attempted to rush aboard the freighter Pleasantville, but were repulsed by police. An asserted representative of the longshoremen's association was clubbed by an officer, a policeman was cut on the hand and a striker cut on the head by a colored man who wielded a cargo hook. The latter, a nonunion worker, was arrested.

Sister of Parker Girl Identified as Double-Murderess

Fort Worth Tex., May 26 (AP).—Billie Mace, 21, sister of Bonnie Parker, gunwoman slain with Clyde Barrow, Texas outlaw, was pointed out in court here today by William Shieffer, farmer as the woman he saw shoot Highway Patrolmen E. B. Wheeler and H. D. Murphy, who were killed near Grapevine, Tex., Easter Sunday.

"That's the lady right there, absolutely," Shieffer said.

The courtroom was jammed for the habeas corpus hearing for Mrs. Mace as her attorneys sought to obtain her release on bond so she could attend the funerati of Bonnie Parker in Dallas this afternoon.

Dallas, May 26 (AP).—Private funeral services were held today for Bonnie Parker, who was shot and killed with Clyde Barrow in Louisiana on Wednesday by officers who had sought them for two years.

In contrast with the thousands who sought in vain to attend Clyde's last rites yesterday, only several hundred lingered about the funeral home where Bonnie's body had been held two days. Only relatives were present.

Man Admits Slaying California Woman, 73

Los Angeles, May 27 (AP).—A confession by Tully McQuate, 41, that he killed Mrs. A. D. Straw, 73, after a quarrel by beating her on the head with a hammer, was announced here today by Police Capt. H. J. Wallis.

McQuate, alias Thomas M. Jones, William S. Grant and Clark McQuate, had been sought since the slaying. He had been arrested for carrying a blackjack.

Mrs. Straw's body was found in a burlap sack in San Diego Bay last October 15.

Australia Would Stop Province's Secession

Melbourne, Australia, May 27 (AP). Reports were current today that the Australian government is taking steps to prevent secession of the Commonwealth of Western Australia.

The administration of the latter has circulated a petition seeking support in its proposal to break away from the commonwealth.

the company, answered, "I don't know."

The electrical workers are asking union recognition and the right to bargain collectively for the 900-odd employes of the Toledo Edison Co. They have not asked for a closed shop.

It was learned that an appeal for a declaration of martial law undoubtedly would accompany any action which would shut off lights and power for homes and factories.

Not so immediate, but more far-reaching in its consequences, was a proposed strike of all union labor in Toledo. The provisional committee for the United Front Strike Conference has called a meeting for Tuesday night to mass support for a general strike and to protest the presence of National Guardsmen in the city.

The call was addressed to the American Federation of Labor, the Mechanics Education Society of America, the Unemployed League, the Socialist party and other groups.

Half Already in Line.

Union representatives announced more than half of the 103 organizations comprising the Central Labor Union had voted for the general strike, and that the rest of the organizations probably would be on record by Friday. Friday night the A. F. of L. has called a torchlight parade and a mass meeting, at which action of the various unions on the general strike ballot probably will be announced.

Dunnigan characterized the situation in Toledo as "very grave." He said he still hoped to avert the electrical workers' and the general strikes.

While Auto-Lite officials and mediators remained silent on their plans, labor leaders dispatched a telegram to Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, protesting any action to reopen the plant.

This followed circulation of unverified reports that attempts might be made to start up the factory Tuesday on the ground that continued inactivity might force a halt in one of the five key industries of the country—automobile manufacturing—through a shortage in Auto-Lite parts.

While terms of the peace proposal being discussed by Taft with Thomas Ramsey, Floyd Bosler and other Federal Automotive Workers Union leaders were withheld, it was understood they called for reopening of the plant, return of strikers to work and submission of their dispute to arbitration.

Two Officials Battle-Marked.

As they entered the conference, Ramsey was limping and another union representative's arm was in a sling from injuries received in five days of rioting, which brought in nearly 10,000 National Guardsmen and has resulted in the deaths of two persons and injury of about 200 others.

The weary guardsmen had a respite during the Sabbath morning. New tactics which involved tear gas attacks, followed by bayonet and riot stick charges, scattered rioters last night. More than 125 persons were captured in the sorties and questioned by a provost marshal. Half of this number were turned over to police and locked up on charges of loitering. Seven thought to be leading in agitating disorders were held incommunicado for Brig. Gen. L. S. Conelly, commander of the troops.

Three persons received minor bayonet wounds yesterday, and Owen Dougherty, 24, was shot in the back. Guardsmen were reported to have fired into the air, and Dougherty's physician, Dr. Umbert Melaragno, said the wounded man insisted that he was not shot by soldiers, but by a rioting sniper.

During the early morning hours today, not more than 200 demonstrators were seen. Small groups stoned automobiles and occasionally darted in to shy a brick at a soldier. Soldiers policed the streets, clearing away missiles hurled at them yesterday, and made ready for further rioting should it materialize.

Communist agitators, leaders of unemployed groups and other radicals continued to involve themselves in strike problems. Last night A. J. Muste, who said he was national chairman of the American Workers Party, New York, demanded Taft permit a local attorney to see Ted Sealander, head of an unemployed group, who is among those held incommunicado.

When Taft said he lacked jurisdiction, Muste, who was accompanied by Heywood Broun, New York columnist and Socialist, and Prof. Clarence Sears, of Ohio Wesleyan University, dispatched a telegram to Washington demanding that Taft be removed as mediator.

Garment Workers Find Employment Better Under NRA

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—Nearly all of the 185,000 members of the International Garment Workers of America are gainfully employed, David Dubinsky, its president, said on his arrival today to open the union's twenty-second biennial convention.

"Due to President Roosevelt's interest in labor almost all of our members are employed," said Dubinsky, who came to the convention on board a special train carrying several hundred members of the union from New York and other Eastern cities.

"The NRA has helped a great deal in our increase in members. It has aided in organizing the unorganized shops," he added.

The convention will commemorate the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the union in New York City in 1899. It will last 12 days, starting with a parade tomorrow. Chicago tailors to the number of 10,000 will close shop tomorrow to honor the gathering. Among the speakers scheduled to address the labor group, its leaders said, are Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, NRA Administrator Hugh Johnson and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

2 Shot in Dice Game; Unlucky Player Held

"Lady Luck" turned her back on Walter Wise, colored, 28, early yesterday. He resented the good fortune of fellow players in a "friendly" dice game and sent two of them to the hospital with gunshot wounds, it is charged by police.

The game, police reported, was in progress in the 900 block of French street northwest. The "bones" just wouldn't roll right for Wise and as a result Hattie Gray, colored, 35, and Pierce Byrd, colored, 50, are in Emergency Hospital with numerous bullet wounds. Wise is held by Second Precinct police.

Victim of an attack as he walked near Logan Circle early yesterday, Alvin Weickson, 35, of the 300 block of U street northwest, was reported in a serious condition at Sibley Hospital last night.

Weickson, police said, was attacked by a colored man. He was beaten, stabbed and left unconscious on the sidewalk. Physicians reported a deep knife wound severed an artery in his right arm.

Woman, 26, Poison Victim.

Miss Evelyn Sims, 26, of the 1600 block of Potomac avenue southeast, was reported in an undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital last night after allegedly swallowing a quantity of poison early yesterday. She was found unconscious by relatives and hurried to the hospital.

to concentrate on mutual assistance pacts, doubtless will oppose a move to create a restrictive committee unless there is a pledge that formation of the new group would involve no interruption of the work of the conference.

Soviet Wants Pacts.

Russia is understood to be desirous of obtaining security pacts which would assure the integrity of her western frontier and leave her free to look after problems in the Far East. To achieve this end, Russia wishes to effect an "Eastern Locarno" pact.

Poland, Czechoslovakia and Germany would be invited to participate in an "Eastern Locarno" accord which would pledge military assistance in the event of unprovoked attacks. It would be a Mediterranean agreement which would embrace Great Britain and Italy as chief signatories and Greece, Turkey and Spain as lesser lights.

Despite discouragements, diplomats are professing a conviction that disarmament will not be allowed to collapse. Some think France will come around to Mussolini's idea of limiting armaments to the present level and permitting some rearmament to Germany.

French Fliers 400 Miles Off Newfoundland

Codos and Rossi Ahead of Schedule With Weather Generally Favorable.

land, Dr. Kimball said, the weather was good.

"A fair wind should aid the fliers all the way to New York," he added. "They'll have a good tail wind to speed them toward their goal."

"Perfect weather since departure," the fliers reported in mid-afternoon.

In frequent messages flashed back to Lebourget Field in Paris, the scene of heir takeoff at 11:10 p. m. (Eastern standard time) yesterday, Codos and Rossi said the motor of their plane was humming sweetly and that a brisk tail wind had boosted their speed to 123 miles an hour.

Pacific Coast Is Target.

So elated were the fliers by this turn of good fortune they sent to their home field assurance that "our morale is excellent."

The auspicious start led to predictions at Lebourget Field that the plane would reach the Pacific Ocean, if successful, in 61 hours, instead of the 65 originally calculated. They hope to arrive over New York at about 11 a. m. Monday.

After giving New Yorkers a glimpse of their famous ship—in which last year they set the world's long-distance flight record from New York to Rayak, Syria—the fliers intend to strike out across the transcontinental airway, heading for St. Louis, Santa Fe and on to San Diego.

The plane tarted with 2,055 gallons of oil. As the 650-horsepower ship reduces the gasoline load its speed will increase.

The gasoline supply was regarded adequate for 65 to 70 hours.

Carrying Parachutes.

The fliers are equipped with two life belts and two parachutes, but they decided to dispense with a collapsible boat.

For food and refreshment they carried bottles of coffee and champagne, cold chicken and fruit.

The huge plane was operating perfectly as it left the shores of France. The last bit of homeland visible to the fliers was the village of Jobourg.

Codos and Rossi, at that stage of their journey, were right on their scheule. They were seen by all the lighthouse along the cost, and they passed almost directly over the lighthouse of Cape la Hague.

At about that time the plane's radio broacast the aviators' farewell message to France.

Then they swung out over the usual steamship course, flying down the English Channel instead of heading northwest toward Ireland.

At intervals the radio sent reports of their progress to Le Bourget and invariably the messages brought the cheerful word all was well and that conditions, at the outset, were more favorable than had been expected.

Weather Generally Good.

Watchers on both sides of the Atlantic made constant check on weather conditions and found them good.

The British air ministry reported conditions generally favorable at the latitude of about 45 degrees. Ships along the route reported winds generally were east and southeast.

Near the American coast, however, drizzles and some fog faced the fliers, particularly southeast of Newfoundland.

Among those who bade farewell to the long-distance aviators was Dieudonne Costes, ocean flier, who sounded a note of caution.

"In the three years I have been consulting the meteorological bureau I have never seen conditions more favorable," Costes said. "The flight to the distant Pacific, however, presents many hazards and risks. If I had made the flight from New York to Syria which you made I would give up the project you are now starting."

Rossi smiled and replied, "don't worry, it will succeed."

1933, which was intended to protect the investor by regulating the issuance and sale of securities, actually has had the effect of preventing the issuance of such securities. Industry also believes that other similar measures now pending, if enacted into law, will have an adverse effect.

"It is the belief of this committee that reform measures necessary to curb abuses in corporate financing can and should be so drawn as to accomplish their purpose without deterring honest citizens from undertaking the financing of useful enterprise. We submit that the British companies act of 1929, which is the result of many years of practical experience in such regulation, furnishes a basis for such legislation."

Principal Findings.

Summarizing its report, which contained 40 printed pages of findings and recommendations, in addition to comments on Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson's "twelve points" made public several weeks ago, the committee said:

"Chief among the fundamental conditions needed for recovery are:

"A free flow of private capital into private business.

"A sound real estate mortgage market.

"Industrial relations on a basis which will assure cooperation instead of strife.

"A balanced price parity between agricultural commodities and manufactured goods.

"The further reestablishment of confidence—most important of all."

For reestablishment of confidence, the committee recommended:

"Assurance to private enterprise that the profit incentive will continue to receive public approval as an energizing motive for economic activity.

View on Taxation.

"Public recognition that the only legitimate purpose of taxation is to provide the necessary revenue for government and not to effect a punitive redistribution of wealth which paralyzes business initiative, or for any other purpose.

"Removal through the permanent balancing of the budget of the threat of uncontrolled inflation.

"Removal of any remainig threat of a sudden arbitrary change in our monetary policies.

"Assurance that companies which have adjusted their business methods and policies to the temporary emergency program of the NRA will be free from the uncertainties of unreasonable or arbitrary administration.

"Clarification of the Government's policies toward measures and trends which are inconsistent with our economics system."

Wagner Bill Opposed.

The committee report reiterated its previously published opposition to pending legislation. The Wagner labor bill was opposed as "one of the most drastic and far-reaching in its ill effects that has been proposed in our country's entire history."

The Administration proposal for a system of 25-year Government-guaranteed mortgages for homes was indorsed by the committee.

Legislation designed to limit the work week was opposed. After presenting figures showing that the average hourly wages now paid in the durable goods industries are substantially the same as were paid in 1929, the committee declared that "the durable goods industries can not absorb increased costs" and that "reducing maximum hours will not spread employment."

"The long continued depression has practically precluded training younger employes to fill positions requiring special skill," the report said.

French Memorial Services Bombed

High Italian Officials Narrowly Miss Death.

Paris, May 27 (AP).—A distinguished gathering of French and Italians, including Gens. Garibaldi and Gouraud, narrowly escaped injury today from a bomb explosion at Pere-Lachaise Cemetery.

It was believed the bomb was set to explode in the course of speeches dedicating a monument to Italian volunteers killed in France. Two workmen were slightly hurt, but officials and 350 Italian war veterans who came to Paris for the ceremony had not arrived. A young Italian living in Paris was arrested.

During the inaugural, red-shirted Italians shouted "Long live France," while the French replied with cries of "Long live Italy." There were some shouts of "Down with Fascism."

Willard Elected By Sociological Chapter Here

Members of U. S. Agencies Among Organizers; Charter Waited.

Prof. D. W. Willard, of the department of sociology, George Washington University, has been elected president pro tem. of the new District of Columbia Chapter of the American Sociological Society, which met at the Admiral last week.

Dr. Conrad Taueber, of the FERA, has been elected secretary-treasurer. A petition was forwarded at the meeting to the American Sociological Society for a charter. Permanent officers will be elected between now and early autumn and installed in September.

At the Admiral meeting addresses were delivered by Dr H. R. Tolley, director of planning of the AAA; Dr. Leon Truesdell, chief of the population division, Census Bureau; Col. Lawrence Westbrook, assistant administrator of the FERA, and Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor.

The committee planning the organization included Dr. E. D. Tetreau, of the FERA; Dr. Stuart Rice, of the Census Bureau; Dr. Theodore Manny, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics; Dr. Paul H. Furfey, of Catholic University; Earl S. Bellman, of the University of Maryland; Dr. Dorothy Thomas, of the FERA, and Dr. Carl Taylor, of the Division of Subsistance Homesteads, and Prof. Willard.

Boys Lagging in Streets Invited to Club.

"You're parked overtime, Bud."

"Huh, I ain't got a car."

"Well, you're parked overtime anyway on this corner. Here's a ticket."

This conversation is typical of many being carried on by policemen and boys on Washington streets during these warm evenings. It's all part of a plan of the Washington Boys Club devised by Charles M. Fyfe, managing director.

Policemen have been given pads of tickets and instructed to distribute them to boys found "parked overtime" on Washington streets. A ticket entitles a boy to a week's free membership in the Boys Club, Third and C streets northwest.

The first week of the experiment has resulted in the sending of 200 boys to the club, of whom 150 have enrolled as members. So great has been the influx of boys that the swimming classes have had to be divided and the periods shortened accordingly.

School Enrollment Off at Waynesboro

Waynesboro, Pa., May 27 (Spl.).—Statistics reveal that the Waynesboro High School enrollment for the 1934-35 term will be approximately 74 less than the present term, due to the fact that Washington Township's new high school at Hooversville, near here, will be completed by next September.

During the term just closing there were 683 enrolled at Waynesboro.

While accommodation of township pupils here created crowded conditions the revenue derived proved beneficial to upkeep. Nearly $10,000 was paid in this year to Waynesboro for taking care of the township pupils who were forced to come here because the State department of public instruction ruled facilities there were inadequate. Township voters at the last general election approved a bond issue of $60,000 for construction of a new building. With the aid of PWA funds work is progressing rapidly. An injunction secured by a number of township taxpayers charging irregularities in presentation of the bond issue to the voters, delayed construction for six months.

Unemployment Cut by 260,000 During April

Gain Continuing, Green Reports; Buying Power Shows Advance.

Approximately 260,000 men and women went back to work during April, and the employment gain was continued proportionately during the first part of May, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced yesterday.

"In comparison with the large number of unemployed," Green said, "these gains are small. In April, 10,616,000 still were without industrial work; 369,000 of them had work on PWA projects and 314,000 were inforestry camps, but nearly 10,000,000 had no work whatever, except what could be obtained through the work program of Federal emergency relief by proving their need.

"The fact that there were on relief rolls in March some 3,013,000 families and 614,000 individuals not grouped with families dependent on direct relief payments, shows the widespread need throughout the country."

Progress Under NRA.

Green said the percentage of union members unemployed fell from 20.7 per cent in April to 19.9 per cent in the first part of May.

"Reviewing the progress made since the NRA codes became effective, we find that the greatest employment gain was from July to September, when hours were shortened under the codes and unemployment was reduced from nearly 11,800,000 in July to 10,100,000 in September. From September to January unemployment increased again with the season, bringing the number out of work back almost to the July peak. Some 11,775,000 were without work in January.

"With the spring busy season slightly more than a million of the winter unemployed have gone back to work, but at the season's peak in April unemployment was still above the September level, with over 10,600,000 out of work. We have not yet regained the winter losses and have made no progress since September in reducing the level of unemployment.

"Unemployment now is slightly below the level of April, 1932, when 10,990,000 were out of work. This comparison also shows that we are making very slow progress in putting the army of unemployed to work.

Buying Power Gains.

"Workers' buying power rose slightly in April, judging from the figures for 105 industries employing more than one-half our wage and small salaried workers. In these industries, the total monthly pay roll rose by $36,000,000, from $1,304,000,000 in March to $1,340,000,000 in April. Since the available indexes show no rise in living costs during the month, this represents clear gain in buying power and will help to offset the losses which affected retail trade in many localities on the closing of CWA.

"Since January, the largest employment gains have been in manufacturing where 70,000 went back to work, in retail trade, which reemployed 105,000, and in building, where, due to PWA projects and also to a slight revival in private building, 90,000 found jobs.

"Trade-union figures for the first part of May show slight employment gains in all industrial groups except clothing and textiles, where the dull season is starting, street transportation and theaters. The report for cities shows employment gaining in 17 and unemployment slightly worse in 7."

Publicity Applicable Only on New Taxes

Provisions for publicity of income tax returns contained in the revenue act of 1934 do not apply to returns now on file, but only to returns filed after December 31, 1934, for the calendar year 1934 and subsequent years, Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, said yesterday. The additional information form which taxpayers will be required to file with their returns for the calendar year 1934 will not be available for public inspection until some time after March 15, 1935.

a man was wounded," he said. "I am going right out to the hospital to see him."

There was intense excitement around the presidential palace at the news. Although no one would say definitely who might be blamed, there was apparent inclination, however, to blame Communists.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the Cuban army, said he was "inexpressably sorry to hear of the attempt on Ambassador Caffery's life, which resulted in the wounding of a soldier.

Fears Fatal Consequences.

"I regret the incident as a Cuban and as chief of the army, and cannot help but think fatal consequences might be had for Cuba if the attempt had been successful."

Chief of Police Pedraza took charge, with Cayetano Fraga, head of the technical police, of running down the assailants, described as fur in number, traveling in a big black automobile.

He said an accurate description of the car had been given by the wounded soldier. "Two to one we catch them before long," he said.

The car sped toward the outskirts, witnesses said. The full fleet of police radio cars, 30 of them, was given orders to run down the assailants, while special guards were redoubled about Caffery's residence and the embassy.

Minister of Communications Landa, generally regarded as spokesman for President Carlos Mendieta, said:

"In my name and in the name of the cabinet, I regret the occurence. Our relations with the United States have been more friendly lately than ever, and it seems to be a group of malcontent enemies of both countries who are trying to spoil everything. I can not imagine who these may be."

City at Fever Heat.

The incident aroused the city to a high pitch of excitment, no less in official circles than in the streets. Rumors had been circulating for a week that an attempt would be made on Caffery's life.

An automobile, suspected of containing assassins, had been reported by police as loitering in the streets through which the American Ambassador drives on his way home.

Police said several efforts to catch the car had failed, as it was too speedy for pursuing machines.

Ambassador Caffery, a Louisianan with 20 years in the diplomatic service, came to Havanna in December, 1933, as personal representative of President Roosevelt. Later, after recognition of the Mendieta government, he was made ambassador.

Communists and other radicals who oppose the present Cuban government had made him a target of unfriendly speeches in recent demonstrations.

Scottish Army oost Bombed.

Glasgow, Scotland, May 27 (AP).—A bomb was thrown over a wall into Merryhill Barracks today. It exploded, but caused little damage. Police said it was the second attempt in the last two weeks to damage military property.

five other officers he shoved the couple toward the door, where, it is charged, another of the patrolmen struck the woman in the face, knocking her to her knees.

"Leave us alone!" cried her husband.

Cry Starts Battle.

This was the signal for the general outbreak. Spectators said the patrolmen kicked the woman, while other officers took Lechay to a nearby building and beat his head against a wall. They said he screamed "That's my wife, leave her alone!"

"We're willing to go," he begged, witnesses assert. He was hit over the head with a patrolman's stick and kicked while he lay unconscious.

Two reporters were slapped by patrolmen when they attempted to intercede.

Capt. Daniel Ahearn rushed into the melee and shouted:

"Men, use your brains!"

Turning to reporters, he said:

"We're doing the best we can. I'm sorry."

Hurrying to the street, he ordered his men to withdraw. There was a pitched battle there between officers and the crowd, during which several bystanders were hit over the head.

Meanwhile Lechay had recovered consciousness, and was again beaten, it is alleged, when he attempted to rise to his feet. He and his sobbing wife were arrested for disorderly conduct and held in $100 bail each for hearing tomorrow.

R. B. Fleharty, Lawyer, Dies Of Long Illness

Was P. U. C. People's Counsel and Professor at Georgetown.

Ralph Belden Fleharty, 49, well-known Washington attorney and former people's counsel of the Public Utilities Commission, died here yesterday after a lingering illness.

Mr. Fleharty was appointed people's counsel March 3, 1927, and continued in that office until December 14, 1930, when he resigned to continue his law practice.

Born at Galesburg, Ill., Mr. Fleharty received his early academic training in Galesburg and in May, 1909, received the degree of bachelor of laws from Georgetown University Law School.

While still in school in 1906, Mr. Fleharty obtained employment in the law offices of Leckie, Fulton & Cox. He was admitted to the bar in 1909, and later was admitted to the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States.

In 1910, Mr. Fleharty became associated with James S. Easby-Smith, with whom he continued to practice until 1922. Since then he had practiced independently save for the time he was people's counsel. From 1915 until 1924 he was professor of real and personal property, negotiable instruments and torts at Georgetown University Law School.

Mr. Fleharty was a member of the American Bar Association, the District of Columbia Bar Association, the Masonic Order, the Washington Board of Trade and the Columbia Country Club.

He is survived by his wife, Inez Parker Fleharty; two sons, Ralph Belden, jr., and William Parker Fleharty; one brother, Ward W. Fleharty, and four sisters, Mrs. James O. Reed and Miss Mayme Fleharty, of Washington; Mrs. A. R. Gilliland, of Evanston, Ill., and Mrs. E. T. Muir, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the residence, 5406 Forty-first street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

State Deaf School Will Graduate 21

Frederick, Md., May 27 (Spl.). Commencement at the Maryland State School for the Deaf began today with the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. DeWitt P. Zuse, pastor of the Centennial Memorial United Brethren Church, followed by a drill by the military corps, reviewed by Dr. Lagnatius Bjorlee, superintendent; the Rev. Mr. Muse and Howard Nicol, Washington, president of the alumni association.

Diplomas will be awarded 21 graduates, the largest class in the history of the school, Thursday. The anual competitive drill will follow on the campus, with Lieut. Col. Elmer F. Munshower, of the Maryland National Guard, in charge.

Registration for the Eleventh reunion of the alumni will begin June 8, followed in the evening by an address of welcome, entertainment in the assembly hall and a reception in the gymnasium. June 9 the alumni association will meet.

Voters to Find State Election Laws Changed

Idaho, Minnesota Revise Ballots; Kentucky Offers Option.

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—Voters this election year will find in some States new laws governing primary and general balloting.

Two—Minnesota and Idaho—have altered primary election laws in important respects since the last time the citizens selected party candidates.

Minnesota—a three-party State—for the first time will offer its voters a consolidated ballot at its June 18 primary. Idaho has set its primary election over from May to August and has added 44 women members to the State party platform conventions, of its parties, making a total of about 250 candidates for each major party.

While other major changes in qualifications, expenditures or other matters concerning candidates and elections have been few, the last Oregon Legislature eliminated the sponsors' pamphlet.

Tightens Party Lines.

It moved for stricter party regularity also by requiring candidates must remain affiliated with the party declared at the time of filing petitions instead of, as before, permitting a switch to another party prior to 45 days preceding the election.

Oregon permits candidates to expend 15 per cent of their annual salaries in primary campaigns. Minnesota restricts campaign expenditures to nominal amounts. Virginia bars any person from lending or advancing expense money to candidates.

Wyoming insists like a number of other States on a report of expenses by all candidates. Only board, room, and traveling expenses are excepted in Oregon, and the report must be made there if the campaign outgo exceeds $5.

Virginia's Democratic primaries are conducted under what is known as the "Democratic Party Plan." All parties in the Old Dominion are empowered to conduct their own primaries, but only the Democrats do so.

Kentucky Plan Optional.

In Kentucky either primary or convention is optional for Statewide offices, and any party can get on the ballot by obtaining enough signatures to petitions. Any Wyoming candidate may get his name on the general election ballot by filing a petition signed by 100 taxpayers.

In Indiana this year the 1933 primaries and elections of city officials, postponed a year by the legislature as an economy measure, were held together with primaries to select county and Congressional nominees.

While primaries now are more or less general in the States, an effort to set up a State-wide primary in New Mexico failed at the last special legislative session. There is no provision at present for a third party, and Republicans and Democrats select candidates by the convention system. Utah also is one of the States still nominating by convention.

Now They're Going To Cut Irish Spuds

Norfolk, Va., May 27 (AP).—Potato growers and shippers from at least four States are expected here tomorrow to attend a hearing arranged by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to consider a proposed marketing agreement to restrict the production of Irish potatoes.

Representatives are expected from Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina, and at least on Alabama shipper has intimated his intention of attending, according to A. E. Mercker, secretary of the interstate early potato committee with the Department of Agriculture.

Five Government officials, including Mr. Mercker, arrived today from Washington to attend the hearing.

Woman Sheriff Holds Bottle of Explosive

Crown Point, Ind., May 27 (AP). Sheriff Lillian Holley, custodian of the jail here from which John Dillinger so nonchalantly escaped on March 3, had something in custody today she wished would vanish, as did Dillinger.

It was a pint whisky bottle filled with a thick, milky fluid, said by officials of the State penitentiary at Michigan City to be nitroglycerine. The prison officials dug it up near the Illinois State line Saturday, acting on information presumed to have been given by a convict.

'Old Ironsides' Starts On Religious Career

Boston, May 27 (AP).—A church pennant fluttered at the gaff of of the U. S. S. Constitution today, above the National ensign, signalizing the beginning of a custom of holding divine services regularly aboard old Ironsides, at the Boston Navy Yard.

Not for many years have religious services been conducted regulary on the old waship. For the reason the ship has not been in commission. Now, however, naval officers and men are to be stationed continually aboard her in in her new status as a National shrine.

2 Vienna Bombs Found; One Bursts at Kufstein

Vienna, Austria, May 27 (AP).—Austrian bombers singled out three targets over the week-end, but there was only one blast.

At Kufstein an explosion damaged the home of a politician favorable to the government. In Vienna two bombs were found before they exploded. One was taken from the inner court of the former imperial palace, where the official Austrian news agency and foreign news services have offices.

Service Codes Regulations Are Suspended By Roosevelt

economic integration on a National scale and on the organization and solidarity within the whole industry. A trial period of some months has shown that while most industries, after organization for this work and a little experience with it, can secure uniform National results, there are others to which a greater degree of autonomous local self-government is desirable. Among these are some, but not all, of the so-called service industries—that is, industries engaged in the sale of services rather than of goods.

"No industry would give up the gains we have made in the elimination of child labor and in the establishment of minimum wages and maximum hours of labor and, of course, under the law, we can not give up collective bargaining and the right of the President to cancel or modify codes, orders and agreements.

"I am signing an order today which carries these principles into effect as to some of the so-called service industries. To put it simply:

"No matter where he is located, no member of any such service industry, as shall have previously been designated by the administrator, may fly the Blue Eagle, unless he is living up to the present code provisions governing child labor, maximum hours, minimum wages and collective bargaining. But trade practices shall be required as a condition of flying the Blue Eagle in these designated service industries only in particular localities in which at least 85 per cent of the members there have proposed as a local code of fair practice, a schedule of such practices in respect of which they all seek to agree with me to comply with their own proposal.

"If the administrator approves of any such proposed local code then no member in that locality may fly the Blue Eagle unless, in addition to complying with the code provisions governing child labor, maximum hours, minimum wages and collective bargaining, he also is complying with this local compact on trade practices.

"The display of the Blue Eagle by any employer is notice to the people of the United States that he is dealing fairly with his workers in accordance with the letter and spirit of the Recovery program, that he is not taking advantage of child labor and that he is living up to the prescribed high responsibility to the public and to his competitors.

"The absence of a Blue Eagle indicates that the employer has omitted or refused to adopt some of these standards and to cooperate with the Government and his economic and actual neighbors in trying to bring about a better day."

The Executive order reads:

"Pursuant to authority vested in me by Title I of the National Recovery Act, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby direct that all provisions in codes of such service trades or industries as shall hereafter be designated by the Administrator for National Recovery be hereby suspended until further orders, except provisions governing child labor, maximum hours of work and minimum rates of pay and the mandatory provisions of Section 7 (a) and 10 (b).

"Each member of any such trade or industry, so designated, shall be entitled to display the appropriate insignia of the National Recovery Administration so long, and only so long, as he is complying with the aforesaid nonsuspended provisions; provided, however, that in any locality, in which 85 per cent of the members of any such designated trade or industry shall propose to agree with the President to abide by any local code of fair trade practices suggested by them for that locality, which schedule shall have been approved by the Administrator, the Administrator is authorized to make such agreement, and thereafter no member of such industry in such locality shall be entitled to display the appropriate insignia of the National Recovery Administration unless, in addition to the aforesaid nonsuspended provisions o fthe code, he is complying with all terms of such agreement.

"The Administrator may supplement this Order by such rules, regulations, exceptions, modifications, conditions and determinations as, in his opinion, shall effectuate the purposes of this Order, and of said Act."

When the Executive order shall become effective, and which of the service trades and industries will be affected, had not been determined at NRA headquarters last night.

Crowds Grow At Model Home

Post Dwelling Sets New Architectural Styles in District.

Interest in the latest Washington Post model home grows greater daily. This display house at 6423 Barnaby street in Chevy Chase, D. C., in its charming sylvan setting, is a delight to the many who visit it each day.

The home, priced at $14,750, sets entirely new standards of architectural and structural excellence in dwellings at this cost. It is built by Paul T. Stone, Inc., and presented by the office of J. Wesley Buchanan, Inc., realtors.

The furnishings of the home, open daily and Sunday until further notice, are by Hutchison, Inc. John F. Ligon has arranged the draperies, and the rugs are from Manoukian Bros. The modern electrical equipment of the kitchen classifies this dwelling as "The Electric Kitchen Health Home."

To visit the house, go out Connecticut avenue to Chevy Chase Circle, then turn right on Western avenue to Tennyson street, then to Utah avenue, turning left one block to Barnaby street.

Paris and London To Discuss Debts

Sir John Simon has told the British House of Commons that England's course regarding payment of war debts will be determined by circumstances of the moment.

Last week it was indicated in dispatches from London that the British official attitude, heretofore being that the United States must take the initiative in any reopening of the debt question, might be revised to allow an approach to Washington for discussions of the subject.

Great Parade Set Wednesday In Montgomery

County Legion Posts Will Decorate Graves, March in Rockville.

Montgomery County American Legion members will honor their fallen comrades with elaborate memorial services Wednesday.

Graves of veterans of the Civil War, Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the Mexican War and the World War will be decorated by the seven local posts in cooperation with relatives of the dead.

In the afternoon, living veterans of America's major conflicts will be honored at a parade in Rockville. Five divisions will take part in the parade with two Civil War veterans, George Cubitt, of Poolesville, Union soldier, and James B. Munger, of Poolesville, a Confederate, prominent in the march.

More than a score of Spanish-American War veterans will march in company with several hundred World War soldiers. The parade will start at 1:30 p. m. and will be followed by services in front of the courthouse in Rockville.

20 Units to March.

Eugene J. C. Raney, marshal of the parade, has announced that 20 units would march.

Capt. Joseph C. Cissell, of Silver Spring, will lead the first division, composed of the National Guard Band, Kensington Howitzer Company and Silver Spring Service Company, National Guard, and the Rockville Company of the Marine Reserve.

Under John W. Mann, of Chevy Chase, legionnaires, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Civil War and Spanish-American War Veterans, the Victory Post Drum and Bugle Corps and the colors of the Takoma Park Post will march.

The first civilian unit will be headed by J. Fred Imirie, of Bethesda, and will include volunteer firemen, fire fighting apparatus and the Montgomery County Band.

Boy, Girl Scouts in Line.

Boy and Girl Scouts and 4-H Club members will comprise the fourth division, lead by Paul T. Hannen, of Cabin John, while the final division will be made up of the county schoolboy patrols and school bands under the supervision of George W. Davis, of Silver Spring.

The all-day celebration is sponsored by the Montgomery County Council of American Legion Posts, of which Lawrence R. Smoot, of Kensington, is chairman.

Chairmen of subcommittees handling the details of the celebration include Mayor Douglas M. Blandford, of Rockville, reception; Warner E. Pumphrey, of Rockville, grave decorations; Eugene J. C. Raney, of Kensington, parade; County Commissioner Chester F. Clagett, of Potomac, grandstand; Dr. George L. Edmonds, of Rockville, finance; Morris Stern, of Rockville, decorations; J. R. Enright, of Rockville, broadcasting; Carl A. Hoglund, of Takoma Park, flags and ceremony; County Commissioner John B. Diamond, of Gaithersburg, traffic; Frank B. Proctor, of Silver Spring, transportation, and John W. Mann, of Chevy Chase, publicity.

Cumberland Widow Gets $100,000 Estate

Cumberland, Md., May 27 (Spl.). The will of William G. Wolfe, of the Baltimore turnpike, disposes of an estate estimated at nearly $100,000, including the Wolfe farm along Evitts Creek. The whole is bequeathed to his widow, Mrs. Emma Frances Wolfe, who was named executrix. The Wolfe farm was considered several years ago as a public park for the City of Cumberland, but local voters opposed its purchase for $80,000.

1,200 Church Chiefs to Hold State Parley

Virginia Sunday School Conclave Set June 13-15.

Winchester, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Upwards of 1,200 church leaders throughout this State are expected to attend the forty-second annual State Sunday school convention of the Virginia Council of Religious Education in First Baptist Church here June 13 to 15. A program dealing with all phases of Sunday school work has been planned.

Prof. H. Augustine Smith of the College of Music of Boston University, will have charge of the music, worship, pageantry and the arts features of the convention. It will mark the sixth time that Prof. Smith has appeared on the program of the Virginia council.

While in Winchester, he will train a large cast of local talent for the presentation of his pageant, "Judean Hills are Holy, or Pictures of the Master," to be given in Handley High School auditorium Friday evening, June 15. The pageant will be free to all registered delegates.

Dean Luther A. Weigle of the Yale University Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., will deliver three addresses during the convention. He is chairman of the committee on education of the International Council of Religious Education. In one of the addresses before the council here, Dean Weigle will discuss the topic, "Let Us Begin at Home," along the theme of "Christ in the Life of the Home."

Thursday morning, June 14, Dr. Joy Kilmer Morgan, Washington, D. C., editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, will speak on "The Crisis in the American Life—Its Educational and Spiritual Significance."

Registration for the Convention has started with the Rev. Dr. Minor C. Miller, of Bridgewater, Va., secretary of the Virginia council.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION
actually Saves you money every day

BETTY: "Peg, dear, you'd hardly believe it, but since John and I bought our new Electric Refrigerator, we really have more money than ever before."

PEGGY: "Why, Betty, how can you make such a statement?"

BETTY: "It's really the truth and very easy to understand. To begin with, our new Electric Refrigerator costs us less to operate than any other type. John investigated that fact closely before he bought it. I know that I waste less food than I used to. I make nearly all of my own desserts, and that saves me money. I even find that I save money when I buy vegetables and meats, because I buy in larger quantities, and get a lower price. My Electric Refrigerator keeps everything I buy in perfect condition until I am ready to use it. So, you see, Peggy, an Electric Refrigerator is really an investment. Here's a secret between us. I havn't told John yet, but the money which my Electric Refrigerator is saving is going to buy me a new dress next week."

Stock Trading Turns Quietest In Ten Years

Silver Message Stirs Up Some Activity; Market Is Fairly Steady.

New York, May 27 (AP).—The securities markets steered a fairly steady course this week.

One of the quietest weeks in recent Wall Street memory started by establishing a ten-year record for dullness on the stock exchange. The Monday volume was 382,190 shares. The highest for a full session was 830,980 shares.

The market was shaken out of extreme dullness by President Roosevelt's message to Congress on silver Tuesday. It turned out to be less inflationary, at least for the moment, than ardent silverites had been predicting.

Silver shares broke sharply. The main list of stocks went down with them but encountered good support above the lows of the spring decline, touched about the middle of the month.

Sharp advances in wheat and corn on forecasts of crop damage from drought, in foreign countries as well as the United States, did not stir the security markets appreciably.

Wall Street minimized the inflationary possibilities of the Administration's silver program, arguing that President Roosevelt would move slowly, and that international cooperation was desirable to make it effective.

The dollar strengthened against foreign exchanges after the silver message, denoting some renewed movement of capital toward New York. Government bonds improved with the dollar and high-grade corporation issues held firmly near best 1934 prices.

Mixed trend confused the business picture. Steel men gathered for the annual meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute added their predictions to prophecies from other quarters that a further decline in steel operations was probable. Most of them voiced faith that the main recovery trend had not been broken.

The weekly car loading report disclosed a better-than-seasonal gain of more than 9,000 cars. The total, at 611,142 cars, was not far from the 1934 top figure of 625,773 cars, touched in March.

Tire Factory Shuts Down for Two Weeks

Character of Labor's Demand and Position of Employers Causes Business Analysts to View Current Strikes as Serious.

By Ralph West Robey.

Although labor troubles are characteristic of an emergence from a depression, the current widespread disturbances are causing, and quite properly, much real worry over the outlook. The reason for this, insofar as I can find, is twofold: First, the basis of the present strikes and dissatisfaction is quite different from that ordinarily found in early stages of recovery; secondly, it is coming at just the time when employers in many instances are best able to oppose the labor demands and consequently there is danger of the trouble having greater repercussions upon the business structure than usually is the case.

To appreciate the force of the first of these points one need only recall the usual chain of events by which recovery from a depression gets under way and contrast it with the developments of the last year. In the past, recovery has come after the completion of liquidation through business firms being able to offer their commodities at prices that attracted the public. As the public stepped in with its purchases the business organizations would increase their production. At first this could be done by having the existing staff turn out more products, for at the bottom of a depression almost every concern is overmanned. Then, as still greater production became possible, more employes would be hired. Gradually, step by step, the business structure would work back toward prosperity.

Labor Soon Would Become Restive and Demand More.

Before this step-by-step process would get far, however, it has been common to find labor becoming restive and demanding that it receive better treatment on both hours and wages. The reason for this is simple. During the downswing labor usually has had to bear a heavy part of the burden through lower wages, longer hours and a large amount of complete unemployment. So long as the business organizations were unable to make any profit, labor, by and large, would put up with this condition. As soon as profits began to appear again, however, its whole attitude would change and it would insist that it be given some of the benefit of the improvement. The result would be strikes and widespread wrangling between employes and employers, with the latter in most cases willing to make concessions rather than to be deprived of the profits they see in the immediate offing.

During the last year, by contrast, this whole process has been reversed. Instead of wages and hours lagging behind profits, they have outdistanced profits. Of course, this is not true in all cases, but as a general rule it is accurate if one may believe the statistics and statements issued on the accomplishments of the NRA, &c. In consequence, when labor demands higher wages and shorter hours, today it is asking, not for a restoration of its earlier share of the income of the plant, but for a larger share. Perhaps it is justified in this demand. For the moment that point does not concern us. What is important for the present purpose is merely to indicate wherein the current disturbances differ from those that have characterized the emergency from earlier depressions.

Changed Demands Alone Could Be Met Fairly Well.

This change in the nature of the demands of labor would be in itself sufficient to cause some worry over the outlook. Were it the only thing, however, it perhaps would not be overly serious. Employers doubtlessly would not relish the idea of meeting the greater labor charges, but if it was a choice between this and not sharing in profits that can be made through continued operation of their plants they probably would meet labor at least part way and business could go ahead.

As it is, however, the employers are not faced with this choice. In the first place, inventories today are rather unusually heavy, and partly so just because of the anticipation of such labor disturbances as we are getting. Secondly, this is the time of year when normally there is a considerable slackening of business.

From the point of view of one who looks at the business structure as a whole, therefore, the situation is not one in which the labor trouble is of a character that will be settled quickly with the result that improvement can continue. Rather, it is a situation in which the employers are in a position simply to close down, if necessary, and still meet all demands for their products. It is this possibility that worries business analysts. They hope, of course, that such closing-down of plants will not materialize, and on the whole they are inclined to think that it will not, but when they stop wish-thinking and face the facts they have to recognize that there is quite enough chance that this will be the outcome to distinguish the current disturbances from those in earlier incipient recoveries.

Cotton Prices Drift Lower As Week Ends

July Sells at 11.22 From 11.49 High Point; Closes at 11.33.

New York, May 27 (AP).—After holding steady early in the week, cotton turned easier following the President's message to Congress with reference to the silver program.

Weakness in the stock market was also a factor on the decline which carried the price of July off from 11.49, the high point of Tuesday, to 11.22 during week-end trading, after which there were rallies on covering. July closed Friday at 11.33 compared with 11.45 at the close of the previous week.

Except for a spurt preceding and following the announcement of the silver program, trading was generally quiet.

The favorable view of the weather and crop progress combined with a continued slow demand for cotton cloths and the reports of slackening in general business activity brought in selling on the bulges, but the absence of pressure from the South and the possibility of crop scares during the summer has encouraged buying on the declines, and while prices have sagged gradually lower, the undertone of the market has been described as generally steady.

The official announcement of the cotton textile curtailment program, contemplating a reduction of 25 per cent in working hours for 12 weeks beginning June 4th, have been generally anticipated and apparently pretty well discounted. Revised figures published by the crop reporting board on last year's acreage and yield showed only slight changes as compared with the December estimate and were without apparent effect on the market.

Time Honored Standards

"The time-honored standards upheld by this Association ever lead the world of business forward to greater efficiency and sounder development."

(From the book "Standards of Business" by Elwood E. Rice, LL.D.)

THE hearts of all good citizens thrill with inspiration and pride when they see America's Time-Honored Standards flying gallantly on parade. For these standards symbolize the principles of Freedom, Equality, Justice and Truth which have won the United States its proud position of leadership among the nations of the world.

In like manner the Emblem of the Rice Leaders of the World Association symbolizes the principles of its members—successful, progressive manufacturers who loyally uphold the Time-Honored Standards of Business defined in these

Qualifications for Membership:

HONOR: A recognized reputation for fair and honorable business dealings.

QUALITY: An honest product, of quality truthfully represented.

STRENGTH: A responsible and substantial financial standing.

SERVICE: A recognized reputation for conducting business in prompt and efficient manner.

Such concerns maintain and ever raise the standards of integrity and workmanship in American Industry. As members of this Association they move forward in unison, acting with the power and economy of cooperation to keep before the public mind those high standards of merchandise quality which have been the basis of their individual success.

It is not implied that only those enjoying membership in the Rice Leaders of the World Association live up to high standards. But you may be certain, without investigation on your part, that member-manufacturers are worthy your complete confidence. # The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker
(Trade-mark Applied For).

EMPLOYES at Bureau of Internal Revenue formally have launched an intensive drive against "already totally prohibitive as well as impracticable parking restrictions" on the roads in and surrounding the Mall area and Lincoln Memorial.

BAKER

Following the strong resolution adopted by Lodge No. 47, (the largest in the District), American Federation of Government Employes, the lodge will circulate petitions among the thousands of employes in Internal Revenue Building and other units in the Triangle area this week.

It is necessary, the employes point out, for literally thousands of Government workers to drive their cars to and from work. Most of them cannot now secure paid parking space, (even if they were financially able,) in the very limited parking area available within walking distance of their respective offices, the resolution stresses.

The adoption and continuance of such a policy will mean forcing these employes to leave their cars at home, incur additional and unnecessary expense for other means of transportation which is inadequate and unsatisfactory for the still more thousands of employes who are forced to use them.

TANNER.

Copies of the protesting resolution are being sent to the Secretary of Interior, the director Public Buildings and Parks, the District Commissioners and other officials.

Harris & Ewing Photos.

LaRue Tanner is president of the Internal Revenue Lodge, A. F. G. E., and T. J. Houston is secretary.

All Government employes in the Triangle area, regardless of their organization affiliations, are urged to sign the petitions to clear up the parking and traffic tangle downtown.

Mrs. Purdy Honored.

A farewell luncheon was given for Mrs. Ruby Purdy by her friends at RFC Saturday at Restaurant Madrillon. Mrs. Purdy is leaving for Philadelphia. Those who attended the luncheon and presented her with a bouquet of roses were Mrs. Ethel Reuling, Miss Helen Grove, Miss Marie Vardaman, Miss Naomi Bersh, Miss Ruth Torbert, Mrs. Harriet Gilford, Mrs. Allie Carey, Miss Isabel Summers, Miss Josephine Pisani, Miss Anne Trice, Miss Polly Troutman, Miss Eunice Bratton and Miss Sara Marcum.

NAVY DEPARTMENT employes have just organized a new bowling league to be composed of 16 or 20 teams. Earl Keeler Secretary's Office, who conceived the idea, has been elected president of the league, and Bob O'Toole (*), Marine Corps, vice president. Pete Ulrich, Hydrographic Office, is treasurer and official scorer.

The following committee will handle details: Constitution and by-laws, Walter Bell, Supplies and Accounts; Mike Sheppard, Marine Corps, and L. D. Van Horn, Navigation, Schedule, George Hohman and F. H. Ontrich, Navigation. Prizes, Al "Brick" Owens, Hydrographic, and E. J. Via, Engineering.

Attending the organization meeting were the following bowlers: Mr. Keeler, Mr. O'Tole, Mr. Sheppard and H. E. Davis, Marine Corps; Frank Hudson, Buresu of Ordnance; Mr. Via and J. NEWS! Science reveals important new Facts for Smokers!

YOUR ENERGY VARIES DURING THE DAY

Camel Smokers can verify these facts!

A famous New York research laboratory announces a basic discovery that throws new light on our past knowledge of cigarettes. It embodies an "energizing effect"...a quick restoration of the flow of natural body energy...an experience well known to Camel smokers. When you smoke a Camel you feel an almost immediate relief from fatigue. What has actually happened is that you have released and made available the latent energy in your body. You've helped your body to help itself. During the day your energy curve hits certain low points. Camels raise your flow of energy...quickly, conveniently and without jangling your nerves.

There's a "Lift" in CAMELS that drives away Fatigue and Irritability

Feel "all in"? Then's the best time to light a Camel.

It's cool and fragrant and delightful...but far more important than that, it brings your flow of energy up from the depths!

You feel fatigue vanish. Irritability seems to slip away. And you go back to work—or play—with all the energy and cheerfulness that are naturally yours.

YOU'VE HAD THE EXPERIENCE... HERE'S THE EXPLANATION!

This experience is no news to Camel smokers. But the explanation is news—and good news—to everyone.

The "lift" you get from smoking Camels is simply a release of the natural latent energy in your body. In other words you have helped your body to help itself...easily, naturally, and without the slightest strain.

Remember this explanation when your energy curve is "down"...times when you're irritable and your brain just doesn't seem to work and you feel too tired to move. At such times ..."Get a lift with a Camel!"

AND CAMELS NEVER JANGLE YOUR NERVES!

Camel fans smoke frequently—and they can—as often as they like. Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on the nerves.

Keep your flow of energy at a higher level with Camels.

TOO TIRED FOR FUN...and then she smoked a Camel!

CAMEL'S Costlier Tobaccos never get on your Nerves

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

KNOW THIS FEELING? The feeling of being too "all in" to respond to the gaiety of the crowd? No taste for the pleasure and fun of the sort of social evening that you would ordinarily look forward to? That's one of the many times to light a Camel, enjoying its rich flavor while your flow of natural, healthful energy is restored. You'll like Camels—a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos!

One Disciple Of Jefferson.

Senator Byrd's fight against the bill to extend the power of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is noteworthy because it is completely devoid of politics. The Senator is conducting a campaign against Federal regimentation because of a sincere conviction that such a policy will bring discredit upon the Administration as well as distress to the people. By looking beyond the exigencies of the moment to the basic changes which are being made in American political economy he is performing a service to his party as well as to the Nation.

As a practical farmer and business man, Senator Byrd resents the encroachment of bureaucracy upon private enterprise. His record in Congress indicates that he is not opposed to emergency measures which appear to be necessary to bring about temporary adjustments. But he does object to persistent extension of paternalism that threatens to stifle private initiative. Even if it were practical to direct from Washington the economic activities of a country so vast as ours, says the Virginia Senator, "I would still be against the attempt, because it is morally bad to inhibit the free development of our people."

If Senator Byrd's criticism of the proposed changes in the AAA seems unduly harsh it is because the nature of those amendments has been misrepresented. They would extend the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture over virtually all farm products. Not only producers and processors of crops but corner grocery stores and "hot dog" stands might be licensed and regulated. Moreover, licenses could be imposed upon all agencies handling farm products "upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Agriculture may deem necessary to effectuate the declared policy of this act."

Under this drastic grant of power the Secretary of Agriculture might fix prices for agricultural products; he might regulate buying and selling; and he would be specifically authorized to levy taxes upon licensees—"in such amounts and in such manner and to such persons as the Secretary might direct"—to defray operating costs. It is not surprising that a "Jeffersonian Democrat" takes the leadership in fighting a measure that would subject the farmer to such complete bureaucratic domination. The astonishing thing is that so many who profess adherence to Jefferson's philosophy ignore the grave menace in this steady advance toward Federal regimentation.

Constructive Heresy.

The House Committee on Ways and Means has voted 17 to 2 to recommend a 40 per cent reduction in tobacco taxes. The action is extremely significant in view of the price-raising policies indosed by the Administration. The AAA, for example, is endeavoring to raise the prices of farm products, including tobacco, by imposing systematic restrictions upon output and levying heavy taxes upon processors to pay benefits to growers. The consumer is expected to shoulder the costs of this control program and to assume the extra tax burdens by paying higher prices for processed products.

Now the Ways and Means Committee comes forward with a proposal to effect a drastic cut in tobacco prices as a means of reducing the selling prices of tobacco products. "It is the thought of the tobacco grower . . . that if the heavy hand of Federal taxation is lifted in part from his back, the consumption of his product will increase materially, and the general economic law of supply and demand will give him a living price for his tobacco without the necessity of having any artificial stimuli."

This strangely heretical doctrine, set forth in the report of the subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee, is followed by arguments to show that manufacturers will benefit from an expanding volume of sales at lower prices because consumers will be encouraged to buy more. But if this reasoning is sound, the conclusions evidently apply with greater or less force to all kinds of high-priced, overtaxed products. The committee rejects the easy philosophy of those who hold that indirect taxes upon consumers are relatively painless and that the Treasury profits by making such taxes extremely high.

The conclusion of the House committee with references to tobacco products is that a substantial reduction in prices would increase consumption to such an extent that the apparent loss to the Treasury from lower taxes would be offset in good part. Whether or not this would be the case it is to be noted that arguments favoring tax reduction rest upon social and economic considerations of broader importance than the immediate revenue aspect of the question.

Taxation so high that it curtails consumption decreases the returns of producers, whose incomes depend upon volume as well as upon per unit prices of sold goods. The Government and the people, producers and consumers alike, are benefited by policies which encourage a maximum volume of sales at reasonable prices. By such means, the incomes, hence the tax-paying capacity, of all classes of citizens are increased. Artificial scarcity, aggravated by high taxes levied upon the restricted products, is a self-defeating policy which leads ultimately to National impoverishment.

Agreement In Sight.

Complete agreement is reported to have been reached on the Stock Exchange regulatory bill and it is expected that the conference report will be ready for signing tomorrow. Under the compromise plan, administration of the law will be placed in the hands of a new commission of five, as an alternative to vesting control in the Federal Trade Commission. This decision is a victory for the Senate, especially for Senator Glass, who fought valiantly for the independent body. His exclusion from the conference committee under circumstances which suggested a plot to facilitate a surrender to the House on this controversial issue produced a storm of protests which probably helped Senator Glass to win.

Undoubtedly an independent administrative agency will prove more suitable than the Federal Trade Commission. The latter body is already burdened with other duties and is not qualified to enter this highly technical field of regulation. However, the success or failure of this latest incursion of the Federal Government into hitherto unexplored realms of private business will depend to a very great extent upon the caliber of the individuals who are selected to administer the law. Prejudiced or inexperienced men could do irreparable damage by irresponsible and ignorant exercise of the great powers vested in their hands. But if the appointees are intelligent, conscientious, and animated by a spirit of fair dealing, they can do a great deal to correct or render relatively innocuous the objectionable features of the law.

Despite criticism of a constructive nature, the conference committee has seen fit to retain many unsound and nonessential restrictions upon trading in securities. For instance, the onerous registration provisions remain, going far beyond the requirements of a measure which purports to be concerned with regulation of stock exchanges. The modifications of the securities act which the Senate appended to its bill are also inadequate and have been made more so by the "slight change" suggested by Senator Fletcher as an eleventh-hour amendment and accepted by the Senate on faith.

Concentration of power to administer both the exchange regulation measure and the securities act in the hands of the new commission is a logical and highly desirable procedure, since otherwise frequent conflicts of authority would arise causing expense and trouble to regulated groups, and impairing the effectiveness of the Federal agencies. The penalties for violations of the law and the regulations announced thereunder are still excessive, although some deference has been paid to criticism on this score by differentiating between willful and unintentional violations.

Retention of the House provisions which place control over margins with the Federal Reserve Board and establish initial fixed margin requirements is repugnant to Senator Glass, who wishes to keep the Reserve system free from direct contacts with organized speculation. However, the board's discretionary power to vary margin requirements presumably will be exercised in cooperation with the commission, which will undoubtedly need the board's advice. The criticism directed against the fixed margin requirements under earlier rigid proposals is less tenable under the modified plan, which permits the Federal Reserve Board to raise or lower margins at discretion.

On the whole, the changes made are distinctly on the side of liberalization. They show that some heed has been paid to the constructive suggestions of critics who have favored a protective system of regulation that would effectively control without persecuting the regulated or overstepping the limits of legitimate supervision. A great deal can be done to achieve a reasonable, balanced plan of regulation, provided the new commission approaches its task in a cooperative spirit, exercises its power discreetly and addresses itself to the task of improving the defective law which it will be called upon to administer.

Abolition Of Irish Senate.

The Dail Eireann, the lower body of the Irish Parliament, has voted to abolish the upper chamber. Although President de Valera declares that fears of dictatorship are groundless, the elimination of the Senate undoubtedly will pave the way for a more complete measure of one-man control than is now possible.

The Senate, which consists of members elected for a period of nine years, was designed to act as a control body that would occupy somewhat the same position as the British House of Lords, with larger powers, however, than the latter body possesses. The abolition of the upper chamber, in which the De Valera party has but a small representation, will give the government greater freedom to dictate policies since its supporters control the Dail Eireann.

This Irish proposal ought to shake the confident belief of Senator Norris in the one-chamber legislature as a means of safeguarding democratic institutions. It is worth noting that the spread of dictatorship in Europe has been accompanied by "reforms" that have abolished or reduced to impotence upper houses and the advisory councils that were established under republican regimes to act as a salutary check upon hasty action by popularly elected lower bodies. State executives usually welcome the presence of upper legislative chambers so long as they do not interfere with executive policies. But such bodies soon fall into disfavor when they try to frustrate the desires of an administration to use the legislature as a tool for giving effect to dictatorial decrees.

Whatever President de Valera's purpose may be, therefore, his proposal to dispense with the Senate will inevitably be interpreted by his opponents as a move in the direction of centralization, along the road which many other countries have already traveled.

Emergency Tariff Powers.

President Roosevelt's Executive order imposing higher duties on imported rugs is significant from several viewpoints. It should not be interpreted as the beginning of a trade war with Japan. But it does emphasize the wide gap between the "recovery" policies which are being followed in this country and Japan. The Japanese are invading the world markets with goods produced through the use of cheap labor and marketed with the help of depreciated currency. Under the NRA the United States has substantially raised costs of production in the process of increasing prices and wages to enhance purchasing power. Where Americans must meet Japanese competition under these circumstances, tariff adjustments are essential to avoid actual discrimination against domestic industry.

A large part of the trade between the two countries, however, is noncompetitive. Japan, for example, buys a large quantity of American cotton and we import an enormous amount of Japanese silk. Some American industries have been rather seriously handicapped by Japanese imports, and some of our exporters are encountering stiff Japanese competition abroad. But there is no major clash between American and Japanese commercial interests as there is between the Nippon and Great Britain. Adjustments of this sort probably will not substantially reduce our trade with the Orient.

From the broad viewpoint of National policy, however, this first use of section 3 (e) of the recovery act is very important. In effect the President has said that restriction of imports is advisable, in some cases, because of higher production costs resulting from the NRA codes. While the Administration has been preparing to extend American foreign trade through reciprocal agreements, it has been broadening the disparity between production costs here and abroad. In other words, the NRA has made tariff bargaining more difficult and limited the field of profitable foreign trade.

On the other hand, one effect of the President's action may be to mitigate opposition in Congress to the reciprocal tariff bill. Opponents of the measure have expressed fear that it might be used to the detriment of domestic industry. Since the President has indicated that he is willing to adjust duties upward as well as downward, in accord with the National interest, this argument loses much of its force.

Moreover, this exercise of an emergency power conferred upon the President in the recovery act calls attention to the extensive authority over tariff matters already in the hands of the Executive. To protect codified industries against increased foreign competition the President was authorized to impose quotas, duties or embargoes upon imports. While these powers are not analogous to the authority sought by the Administration under the reciprocal tariff bill, they add to the precedent which had already been established in the flexible tariff provision for relinquishing broad power over tariff matters to the Executive.

Congress will doubtless pass the reciprocal tariff bill. It remains to be seen to what extent rising costs under the codes and possible duty increases under the recovery act will curtail the reciprocal bargaining program.

The Zephyr.

The remarkable speed of the Zephyr, on its record-breaking run from Denver to Chicago at an average of 79.1 miles per hour, was exciting to read about. The trip probably marked an important step in railroad progress. But it is doubtful if this high speed will be maintained when the chromium-plated, stream-lined, Diesel-engined speedster is placed in actual scheduled operation.

Nevertheless, the Zephyr has demonstrated that several hours can be chopped off from the regular elapsed time of train operation between the two cities. The railroad may at last have found its answer to the growing competition of the airplane. Undoubtedly the most important feature of the demonstration was the fact that the Zephyr, which has a normal seating capacity of 72, made the 1,017 miles at an estimated total fuel cost of less than $50. From this the possibilities of the train can be deduced. If a careful analysis of the construction and operation costs shows that similar trains would be within the financial reach of the railroads, a "new era" in railroading may be inaugurated. The old steam train is doomed by this advance in technics, even as the cumbersome coal-burning liners of the past became outmoded by the better Diesel ships that at present crowd the seas.

Newspaper accounts of the trip touched upon the train's comfort as it flew along a right of way which had been especially cleared for the glittering beetle of the rails. It may be through such equipment—unusually fast, very comfortable and clean—that the railroads will once again make travelers train-conscious. At least they are making an effort to save themselves from the disastrous competition of unregulated carriers.

Too Much Our Trouble.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that the renomination of Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, is being interpreted as conclusive evidence of the lessening of the New Deal in popular favor. The Republicans interpret it as showing that there still remains force and vigor in the straight, unalloyed Republican doctrines. On the other hand, the Democrats contend that the New Deal was not an issue and the vote was not a test vote, but that such will be the case in November when Duffey and Reed battle each other.

Now, I am a thoroughgoing, hard-hitting, old-fashioned Democrat, but there are many things being done today that I do not understand, that I can't reconcile with anything that I have experienced or have been taught. For 30 years I have been a close student of politics and government. The books that I studied in college and the literature that I have read since have not enabled me to comprehend satisfactorily what is taking place today. We talk about regimentation and control and the reasons therefor, but I still remain confused and unconvinced. I know we do not do things now as we did when I was a boy, but I do not see the reason therefor. When I was a boy I hunted and fished where I pleased. I had only one day in which to hunt last season and I lost half of that day going to town and getting a hunter's license, although the land on which I was to hunt belonged to my father and his heirs since the Civil War. But my brother insisted that I had better procure the license, as otherwise I might be hauled into court.

But I get all "het up" and went to do some real slaughtering, politically speaking, when I think of the condition we are in and the reasons therefor. I read recently a long disquisition on the problem of abundance as being our trouble. Of course, I know that if you obstruct an active, vigorous stream, you are going to have an overflow. The thing that confounds me is the fact that we go and get experts to investigate this natural phenomenon, and they find it to be abundance, in the face of which the whole price and profit system must be abandoned and in lieu thereof we must have regimentation and control.

But what irritates me most is the fact that we let the Republicans dam up the productive powers of the greatest producing Nation on earth by a prohibitive tariff policy and then go out and employ experts who report our troubles as being abundance, and prescribe regimentation and control.

JOHN W. HESTER.

Medical Liberty.

To the Editor of The Post— Sir: Your May 15 editorial on "Inoculation For Dogs" said, substantially, that Hackensack, N. J., authorities ordered a complete quarantine and compulsory inoculation of all dogs there, because several of them had rabies, which this inoculation prevents."

You also say that "dog owners, like owners of other property, resent being told what they may, or may not do, with their belongings," but you advised compliance with such orders, to guard against hydrophobia, by the easy method of inoculation. This inoculating dogs, with a product of the disease it is supposed to prevent, infects their bloodstream therewith, and some eminent doctors claim it is as likely to promote as prevent disease.

But, while some may protest against this compulsory inoculation of dogs, with a disease product, it is surely infinitely worse to compel similar inoculation or vaccinate their own, dear, little innocent children, with similar disease products called vaccines, serums and antitoxin.

Is not medical liberty as desirable as religious liberty?

"Veil of Humility."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The thinness of the veil of humility which covers Gov. Ritchie's canny failure to discuss his policies in bidding for a fifth term can be seeen in his attempt to propagate the idea that his popularity has grown, whereas the fact is that while in 1926, in the height of Republican rule, he led his ticket; in 1930, in a Democratic landslide, he trailed his running mates by some 20,000 votes.

Now that the governor can not make his campaign on a wet platform, what will he do? Will he favor or will he oppose, as President Hoover did, the Federal authority developing in criminal control under the New Deal? When a John Dillinger comes to Maryland will Mr. Ritchie be found interfering with Federal officers and insisting on the right of the "Free State" to extradite a criminal?

Will he stand on his record of 1933 in his banking policy? If the wave of resentment against the making of loans from demand deposits develops into National legislation to remedy the resulting instability, will Maryland be found upholding the States' right to keep the situation muddled by State banking laws which continue this financial iniquity?

What of the disingenuous plea for votes based upon an alleged "business" administration yielding a so-called "reduction" in taxes, in the face of these facts:

1. State budget heavily increased?
2. Higher assessments despite the disastrous business deflation?
3. Twelve million dollars in bonds issued to cover the ordinary budget and facilitate this "reduction" in taxes?

ALDEN A. POTTER.

Bonaparte and the Pope.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The story of the romance of Prince Jerome Bonaparte and Betty Patterson, of Baltimore, which appeared in the May 14 issue of your newspaper is delightfully told. But it contains one error. After stating that Pope Pius VII refused Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte's demand that the marriage be declared null, the article states: "A bishop was found who was more complaisant." This is not true. No bishop would hold that the marriage was void after the Pope had decided that it was valid. The fact is that the Emperor prevailed on a French court of law to declare the marriage illegal. The Catholic Church stood like a stone wall for the indissolubility of a consummated Christian marriage in the defense of the rights of an unknown Presbyterian woman and in opposition to the will of the most powerful sovereign then in the world.

"It Can't Be Done."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We've got a swell chance to keep out of foreign wars with all of our foreign investments, loans &c., in danger of being lost. That is what pulled us in before, $9,000,000,000 of it, and would again. We'd much better cooperate and join with all of the other big nations to stop all wars. No war aggressor nation (or group) would dare oppose all; and it would reduce our war risk to a minimum—say one fifty-fourth; it is now 100 per cent. Keeping out sounds easy, but it can't be done.

We should draft the older men too, instead of making youths the goats.

A. G. STAR.

Taxi Insurance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent issue of The Post was an editorial, "A Lesson From Takoma." I have been very much stirred up over the taxicab insurance deal, but this is the limit when you assert: "So long as they remain within the District they are able to serve the public as common carriers without making any provision whatever to pay damages for accidents they may cause."

How can this be true when men in one association I know of have to pay from $50 to $100 to become a member and then pay 60 cents a day, or $18 a month for insurance in case of accident?

"But when cabs operating without liability insurance attempt to carry on their business in the suburbs beyond the Maryland line they are considered a menace to the community." Nearly every piece I have read has stressed the point of "carrying on their business" when those who have no intention of doing so can not drive their cabs over the line even to visit a sick relative.

You also say "it would be obviously unfair to permit uninsured Washington drivers to compete with them."

How are they competing with anybody in Maryland when they are not taking fares? Would any D. C. car be allowed to drive into Maryland without insurance? If not, would the police stop every car and ascertain whether or not they carried insurance?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been reading with very great interest the story carried in the magazine section of your paper entitled "When I Was a Boy."

This series of articles is very fascinating. I have heard many splendid comments on it and thought you would be interested to know about it as newspapermen generally are gratified to learn of the favorable slant the public gets from reading the paper.

I assure you that I look forward with a great deal of interest to each of these articles as they are published.

As Others See It

Veterans and Arms

Disabled war veterans are being levied upon in four central European countries, Germany included, to help pay the cost of arming for a new war. In these nations, the percentage of war disability entitling a veteran to a pension has been raised from 10 per cent to 25 per cent. France is almost certain to follow suit, although the new rate there may be compromised at 15 or 20 per cent.

These economies at the expense of injured veterans are budget-balancing measures made necessary by heavy increases in armament expenditures. Maybe it's patriotic and all that, but somehow it just doesn't seem quite fair to take money away from the boys wounded in the last war and use it for the purpose of crippling still more youngsters in a new conflict.

Our own liberality to World War veterans has far exceeded that of European countries, and yet the Register can't help resenting the fact that some of the recent reduction in veterans' disability benefits in this country is going indirectly into the pockets of the builders of the billion-dollar Vinson navy. Of the two groups, veterans and munitioneers, we'd far rather see the boys get the "cush," but since the average service man is still so hot for preparedness, ours must obviously be a distorted view.

Can some straight-thinking veteran set us right on this?

THE District Commissioners have spoken. They uphold the ruling of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, our earnest and able superintendent of police. Washington will have no Labor Day firemen's parade. Alexandria gets it.

The reason given by the firemen for wanting to parade in Washington was that they wanted to parade. For several years past, the National Firemen's Association has marched here on the fete of Labor. The association desired to continue observance of this precedent; commendable attitude.

The reason given for Maj. Brown's decision seems based on a theory of one parade being enough for one day; an attitude equally commendable. When he received the associated firemen's application for a permit, he had already issued a permit for a Labor Day parade under the unimpeachable auspices of the Central Labor Union—the firemen arrived, so to speak, too late for the fire.

We would not venture to pass upon the merits of this particular case, yet we do say — speaking in careful generalities—that we ourselves can bear the Major's ruling and the Commissioners' support of it. We yield to none in our love of the best type of firemen's parade; but, for our taste, firemen's parades have suffered severely through the dwindling of the Volunteer Fireman.

And if you were ever lucky enough to be a small boy in a small town, you'll agree with us.

What do you get nowadays? The firemen's parade is like football. Professionalism has increased its efficiency at the cost of its picturesqueness.

But in the Old Days in the Old Town—the town of warring volunteer fire companies—in those times and at that place, when the State Firemen's Association—of volunteer companies—held its annual convention there: then its terminating parade was an event.

Generally, it occurred in August. August, when vacation was beginning to be embittered through the approach of September's school-reopening, and you needed something to detract your mind. August and the dog-days, when you got biles if you went in swimming, and there wasn't much else to do. August, when the noise and joy and burnt fingers of Fourth o' July were shrunk to the meagerest of memories.

Then came the "Visiting Firemen:" the local weekly newspaper's fond phrase for your municipal guests.

Hot—but what did those brave fellows care? They filled Locust street with manly figures erect under vast woolen overcoats, brass-buttoned. Fatigueless, they wore woolen fatique-caps, visored, but, at the red belts, around their wide middles, swung gigantic helmets which Statesman Walpole must have known when he turned romancer to write "The Castle of Otranto." They bore with dignity wide moustaches, which they wiped with mighty knuckles as they came through swinging doors into the sunlight, carrying with them an aura of sour beer.

One o'clock. The main column forms in front of the Vigilant Engine House, left wing on Walnut north of Second——right wing on Walnut, south. Hurry up!

The reviewing-stand—white pine, patriotic bunting—was in front of the Opera House. There the Chief Burgess, councilmen and prize-awarding judges sat, with their demure ladies. Well strung out, the parade took 'most an hour to pass the given point.

The helmets were on now; the fatigue-caps swung at the belts. The Chief Marshal rode a horse that marched sideways when the bands began to play, and there were ever so many bands, led by our own Metropolitan. The other marshals carried enormous horns, real silver, upside-down, the gaping mouths of which were full of flowers.

The "Ever-Readys" from Lebanon had yellow overcoats, the Sunbury "Helping Hands" were spruce in pure white, but then they had brought only a fife-and-drum corps along. And there were two humorous companies competing for the Ten Dollar Prize to be Awarded to the Most Comic Exhibition—one from Lititz and one from Mountville, all dressed up like hayseeds and dragging a couple of them old-fashion' han'-pump engines.

You applauded each contingent. But you applauded your home town fellows the most. After all, you can't beat them. "Atta boy, Vigilants!" "Attaboy, Shawnees!" Loudest for the particular company you always "ran with."

All the heads were high, all the chests out. All the eyes were forward and all the arms swinging vigorously at the sides, save when somebody's family in esse, or somebody's wife in posse, waved from the curb, across the open gutter. Then the grave face relaxed, the stern lips smiled, and the two first fingers of the right hand, in white cotton gloves, touched the helmet's rim. Men on every hose-cart rang every bell it boasted. Somebody began to ring the fire-bell of the Opera House clock-tower . . .

In those days, there was only one thing which beat a firemen's parade, except the circus parade, and that one thing was a fire. But these professional firemen parade the same way they go to a fire—as if they were paid for it!

The Wall Street Complex

EARLY in Mr. Roosevelt's administration one of the Senators quoted him as having said that he had to have a fight with Wall Street and he supposed the sooner he got it over with the better it would be. In my opinion that fight is now about over, with Mr. Roosevelt the victor. Not that it will mean any more money in any of our pockets, more likely some millions will wait longer before they return to work, but a people who have had as many luxuries as we have had should certainly be able occasionally to support a fight with Wall Street. I believe, in fact, we supported one in the other Roosevelt Administration.

BARGERON.

At any rate, the battle is about over and our incumbent of the White House has won.

* * * *

Evidence of this is in the last stand the Street seems to be making on the stock exchange bill. It has been pushed into such a corner that about all it is asking now is that the bill be administered by a separate agency instead of the Federal Trade Commission. One imagines that if Mr. Roosevelt has really yielded and granted this point the boys of the Street will shout with joy and throw their hats into the air.

That they could get so much kick out of this, that they have been driven to the point that they would look upon a separate agency administration as a victory, shows, to my mind, just how badly beaten those boys have been. I suppose victories are relative, that after being beaten so much things come to be victories which before would not have been so looked upon.

Now just why it makes the slightest difference whether the Federal Trade Commission or a separate agency administers the bill is difficult for me to see. It will be administered as Mr. Roosevelt wants it administered, regardless of whether it is done by a new agency or a White House secretary, or what.

Indeed, it is not unlikely that the first thing Mr. Roosevelt would do in the event a new agency is created would be to transfer the young brain truster, Mr. Landis, to that commission. It seems to be this young brilliant, a protege of Mr. Felix Frankfurter, from whom the conservatives want to escape. That they should want to do this is understable but I don't see how, as long as Mr. Roosevelt remains in office, it can be done. It will be this young gentleman or someone just like him.

But somehow, for some reason, the conservatives will consider a new agency a great victory. It's been so long since they have had one they have forgotten how a victory looks.

* * * *

Another thing for which they are making a last-ditch fight is that there be no fixed marginal requirements in the bill, that this be left with the administrator. The poor boys, I am afraid their heads have been so beaten in as to muddy their thinking.

After showing they are deathly afraid of Mr. Roosevelt's staff of administrators they want to write into law a provision allowing these administrators to order such marginal requirements as they want. One day they might order low and the next day high. Anyone, who would do any marginal trading under such an arrangement, and with such administrators as we would have, would in my humble opinion be a fool.

It may be that the 45 per cent fixed margin requirement is too high. But at least that would be the law. A trader would know where he stood. He would not be subject to being wiped out by having a brain [illegible] raise the margin requirements at a time when he could not meet them.

* * * *

Undoubtedly the theory of those wanting the elastic provisions is that they could come here to Washington and prevail upon the administrators to use some judgment, that as time goes on the brain trusters will mellow and relent, that the complex against Wall Street will gradually lift. I don't think it will be this Administration. The Adminstration will see that it doesn't. As political capital it is too good.

Broadway, Va., Graduation Set

Diplomas Will Be Given Class of 26 at High School.

Broadway, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—A class of 26, one of the largest in the history of Broadway High School, will receive their diplomas here tomorrow following the graduation address by W. H. Keister, superintendent of Rockingham County public schools.

Commencement exercises opened Friday with class night observance, at which the senior play was presented.

The Rev. E. B. Caplinger, pastor of the United Brethren Church, preached the class sermon tonight in the school auditorium.

Graduates are Frank C. Bowman, Marshall Branner, Woodrow Brown, Paul Fulk, Ward Heisinger, Joseph Huffman, Lawson Jenkins, Arnold Mathis, Frank Moyers, Nolan Moyer, Glade Souder, Lawson Whetzel, Ivan Whitmer, Mary Crider, Mary Emswiler, Dorothy Fawley, Wilma Fawley, Louise Garber, Edna Halterman, Madalyn Kersecker, Mary Neff, Beatrice Phillips, June Phillips, Barbara Roller, Hilda Runion and Margie Trumbo.

9 to Be Graduated At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27 (Spl.). College Heights High School commencement exercises began with a baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Robert F. Caverlee at morning worship in Fredericksburg Baptist Church.

Thursday night nine seniors will receive diplomas from C. A. Edwards, principal, in the Fredericksburg State Teachers College Auditorium. Dr. Edward Alvey, jr., a member of the University of Virginia faculty, will deliver the commencement address.

Dorothy Spain will deliver the valedictory, and Adrian Bryant the salutatory.

Other graduates are Morgan Combs, jr., Alice Goodloe, Samuel Ellis, Grace Limbrick, Anna Mae Boutchyard, Maud Lumpkin and Marie Rowe.

Committee Named For Chicago Fair

Charleston, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.). Appointment of a committee to direct the West Virginia exhibit at A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago is announced by A. G. Matthews, president of the State Senate and chairman of the State Fair Commission.

It is composed of H. N. Henshaw, of Martinsburg; W. T. Williamson, of Charleston; Mrs. D. W. Brown, of Huntington; Mrs. S. W. Price, member of the House of Delegates from Fayette County; State Senator A. L. Helmick, of Tucker County, and R. L. McCoy, a member of the House from Marion County.

Gov. H. G. Kump has just appointed Mr. Henshaw a member of the State fair commission to succeed the late L. V. Coontz, of Clendenin.

Fredericksburg Man Seized in Baltimore

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Baltimore police have arrested Minor Marshall, 31, of Fredericksburg, wanted here as one of two men who robbed Archie Williams, King George County, of $87 after getting the colored man intoxicated.

Sergt. J. Conway Chichester brought Marshall here yesterday. Alvin Shelton, 24, was arrested yesterday after he tried to get change for a $50 bill at a restaurant. He will face the grand jury tomorrow.

Smith to Deliver Memorial Address

Frostburg, Md., May 27 (Spl.).—Webster Smith, Republican candidate for Governor of Maryland, will deliver the annual Memorial Day address at Allegany Cemetery, Wednesday.

Mr. Smith will come here with George Henderson, past State commander of the American Legion, and will take part in the parade of the war veterans, American Legion Drum Corps and Arion Band. Mr. Smith served in the U. S. Navy during the World War.

Guide to the Silver Situation.

Q. What is silver?

A. Silver is a metal identified in the public mind with loving cups, wedding gifts and the late William Jennings Bryan.

Q. Where is silver found?

A. Silver is found in Montana Senators and all Democratic Presidents, especially in the spring. It also is found in old Colonial homes, tea chests and back teeth.

Q. What does nationalization of silver mean?

A. What?

Q. I say what does nationalization of silver mean?

A. It means fewer tiresome debates on the floors of Congress, longer newspaper editorials and a high fever among all good Republicans.

Q. How is silver nationalized?

A. The Government takes over all free silver stocks, wraps them in the American flag and hopes nothing serious will come of it.

Q. Are golf trophies, wedding gifts, silver services, Sheffield candlesticks safe?

A. Yes; but there is a feeling that for the good of the Nation the Government might confiscate all golf trophies.

Q. Is the country likely to nationalize silver immediately?

A. Not unless there is a large silver movement out of the country.

Q. What would constitute a large silver movement out of the country?

A. British recovery of the Walker Cup or a victory by the British yacht in the international race this fall.

* * * *

Q. Where would the Government buy silver to add to its reserves?

A. J. Fenimore Cooper. He also wrote "The Last of the Mohicans," didn't he?

Q. With what would the United States pay for the silver?

A. No. The Giants won in four straight this year.

Q. What is bimetallism, and what is the difference between it and metabolism?

A. One is shorter than the other.

Q. Does the silver bill mean bimetallism?

A. Yes and no.

Q. What do you mean by yes and no?

A. Track 2 at 1:10.

Q. Is that standard or daylight saving?

A. No.

Somerset Berries Bring Scant Profit

Crisfield, Md., May 27 (Spl.).—Strawberry growers of Somerset county have begun marketing of berries in large quantities, but at prices, according to growers, that show little profit to them.

Hundreds of truck loads of fruit have been going to the market daily. Growers point out if they expect to realize a real profit that it would seem that some newer and more effective method of marketing must be devised. Prices have ranged from about $4 per crate to as low as $2.25 per crate on the same day, under the same block.

It is estimated that 50,000 crates are being shipped every day from the Eastern Shore Peninsula. Yesterday's market at Marion block varied from $1.25 to $3 per crate.

Suicide Buried At Mount Airy

Wife He Shot in Baltimore Still Near Death.

Mount Airy, Md., May 27 (Spl.). Funeral services for Charles J. Harris, 29, formerly of this place, who shot himself in Baltimore early Thursday morning after allegedly attempting to kill his wife, were conducted yesterday afternoon at Ridgeville Methodist Protestant Church. Burial was made in Prospect Cemetery.

Unsuccessful in his efforts to effect a reconciliation with his wife, Harris, the son of Charles E. Harris, retired Baltimore & Ohio employe here, approached his spouse early Thursday morning and asked her to return. She refused and Harris fired at her as she lay in bed and then turned the pistol upon himself. He died as hospital authorities prepared to remove him to a hospital. Mrs. Harris remains in a critical condition at University Hospital in Baltimore.

Besides his father, he is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Mildred Neddo and Mrs. Blanche Renner, Baltimore; Mrs. Helen Schwier, Catonsville, and Miss Esther Harris, Mount Airy.

Mrs. Ellen McKee Rites Are Set for Tomorrow

Shepherdstown, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Burial rites will be conducted here tomorrow for Mrs. Mary Ellen Hill McKee, 78, widow of Edgar O. McKee, who died at her home here yesterday after a year's illness.

Surviving are the following children: John William McKee, Berkeley County, W. Va.; Olin C., Robert B., George R., Mrs. Holland Price, Elizabeth, Shepherdstown; Kirkland and Newton B., Elkins, W. Va.; two brothers, Edgar Hill, Pilot Grove, Mo., and the Rev. George Hill, Washington; and a sister, Mrs. Ida Neill, Shepherdstown, W. Va.

Damage Suits Filed in Page

Unique Actions to Come Up Today; Calendar Is Heavy.

New Market, Va., May 27 (Spl.). When Page County Court convenes at Luray tomorrow two cases of unusual interest to New Market citizens will be included in the docket.

Suit for $10,000 is being entered by the administrator of the estate of James Robert Smith, killed about a year ago when a truck he was driving overturned in Luray, against B. N. Kibler, candidate for the Luray postmastership. Following the fatal accident Kibler was tried for manslaughter and acquitted.

The administrator of the estate of Mae McDaniel, former New Market resident, is entering suit for a like amount against L. W. Harris, of Staunton, growing out of an automobile accident in Page County more than a year ago, when Miss McDaniel and three others were killed. Suits of the four administrators total $40,000.

Other suits, growing out of a swimming pool accident, injuries sustained to an eye because of a pet bear, and for simple damages to a car, bring the total of amounts asked to $90,000, constituting the most remarkable docket in the history of Page County Court.

Canoe Tourists Land at Norfolk On Chicago Trip

Norfolk, Va., May 27 (Spl.). Jack Broberg, 22, and Don Hughes, 24, paddling a canoe from New Orleans to Chicago, arrived here yesterday in their tiny craft. They call it the Wanderless. It is made of canvas, is 17 feet long and weighs 70 pounds.

The pair left Chicago January 26 and paddled their way through the Mississippi to New Orleans. They encountered heavy ice during the trip, but arrived safely March 14. Frequently they were obliged to get out of their boat and drag it across huge blocks of ice to reach clear water.

They do most of their paddling in daylight, although they have spent several nights in their boat.

They made the trip from New Orleans to Norfolk mostly through rivers and sounds and the Norfolk-Beaufort Inland Waterway.

Berkeley Springs Expects President

Roosevelt Reported to Be Considering Visit.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—A visit to this health resort by President Roosevelt over some week-end was indicated today.

Mrs. Bertha Taylor Voorhost, of Washington and this city, said she had assurances from a Presidential secretary that consideration of such a visit was being given officially, and plans were to be announced soon.

Mineral waters here are declared to have the same curative properties found in the waters at Warm Springs, Ga., to which the President makes periodic trips.

Historical Group Honors Dr. Tyler

W. & M. Official Is Paid Tribute at Richmond.

Richmond, May 27 (AP).—A portrait of Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, president emeritus of the College of William and Mary and widely known Virginia historian, was unveiled here yesterday in the rooms of the Virginia Historical Society.

Exercises in recognition of Dr. Tyler's contributions to his native State, Virginia, preceded the unveiling.

The portrait is the work of Albert Steiner, of New York, who was commissioned to paint it by representatives of the Daughters of American Colonists, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Daughters of the Confederacy. The tribute to Dr. Tyler will commemorate his research into early documents of the Virginia colony and their preservation.

Battle Route Urged as Road

Bull Run - to - Appomattox Highway Proposed by Gov. Peery.

Luray, Va., May 27 (AP).—"The next great highway project to be put through in Virginia will be a boulevard from Manassas, the first battlefield in the War Between the States, to Appomattox, the last," former Gov. Pollard told members of the Lee Highway Association today.

The former governor addressed the group on historic Bull Run Battlefield, where the group stopped on the last lap of their inspection trip over the Lee highway.

"This ought to be called 'reunion highway,'" the former governor said, "and a feasible route would be from Manassas through Warrenton, Sperryville, Luray, Charlottesville to Appamatox. These battlefields would attract thousands of tourists and would be the climax to the State highway building program."

A trip to the Luray Caverns was made by the group this morning and stops wre made at Riverton, Warrenton and Manassas before returning to Washington.

Injured Captain Dies After Rescue

Storm Off New Jersey Coast Sinks Two Coal Barges; Tug Saves Crews.

Norfolk, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Capt. Charles W. Thompson, master of the bargo Hruro, was killed last night as he with four of his crew was being dragged aboard the tug Mars off Barnegat. The barge, loaded with coal, was sinking while the rescue was being made.

The Mars had, besides the Truro, the barges Irene and Katherine Sheridan in tow. All were coal-laden, out of Norfolk bount for Boston. A northeast storm off the Jersey coast, sunk the Truro and Irene. The Mars rescued the crews of both barges, but Capt. Thompson was injured so severly he died on board the tug.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Edwin Arlington Robinson.

If a secret ballot were taken all over the United States to determine who is our foremost living poet, the winner would in all probability be Edwin Arlington Robinson. He has done nothing to deserve this honor except by writing better poetry than any one else. He has all his life done everything possible to avoid publicity; his work attracts attention solely by its merit.

Yet from the collector's point of view, that is to say, if you like, from the commercial point of view, I have in my possession what I suppose is the most valuable volume of poems written by any living American. This thin little book, in the original paper covers, is called "The Torrent and The Night Before," and at the foot of the titlepage it says, Printed for the Author, 1896. And it has this dedication.—

This book is dedicated to any man, woman, or critic who will cut the edges of it—I have done the top.

Its value is still further enhanced by the autograph inscription on the title-page, which shows that it was given to me by the author on December 9, 1896.

It is worth many times its weight in gold. I also possess the second volume, "The Children of the Night," A Book of Poems, by Edwin Arlington Robinson, Boston: Richard G. Badger & Co., 1897. Only 500 copies were printed. This, too, is an autograph presentation copy.

From these beginnings (the second volume attracting some attention because enthusiastically praised by Theodore Roosevelt), Mr. Robinson lived through the lean years from 1896 to 1910. Then the poetic revival began in America, receiving additional impetus by the war. From 1910 even until now, every new volume by our author has been a literary event.

His finest poem is undoubtedly "Tristram," which appeared in 1927, and was written with such intensity of passion and such felicity of language that it has taken its place as the finest poetic expression of this immortal love-story. It is more beautiful than other versions of the same theme, by such men of genius as Tennyson, Arnold, Swinburne, or the libretto by Wagner.

Mr. Robinson has always been notable for his powers of intellectual analysis, for his ability to differentiate accurately various persons, but "Tristram" showed powers of romantic passion that had up to that time been hardly suspected.

Two important works on Robinson are by Lucius Beebe—"Edwin Arlington Robinson and the Arthurian Legend," 1927, and "Aspects of the Poetry of Edwin Arlington Robinson," 1928.

Mr. Robinson has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize three times.

Textile Curtailment Hits Danville Zone

Danville, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—More than 600 textile workers in the Riverside and Dan River cotton mills, who are now being organized into an union, will know tomorrow what their new working schedules will be for the 12 summer weeks starting June 4.

The 25 per cent production reduction means approximately the same loss in wages and the curtailment promises to be seriously felt here by the mercantile class generally.

Former Rail Worker Buried From Old Home

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Services were conducted this afternoon for Jezekiah Scarlett, 78, retired Baltimore and Ohio railroad worker, who died in a Martinsburg (Va.) hospital Friday night after a four months' illness.

Three sons and two daughters survive, Harry, of Florida; Oscar, Martinsburg; Walter, Brunswick, Md.; and Mrs. Bertie Deck, of Harpers Ferry, and Mrs. Jessie Orem, Martinsburg.

Mrs. Mary McKee, 78, Will Be Buried Today

Charles Town, W. Va., May 27.—Mrs. Mary Ellen Hill McKee, 78, who died Saturday at her home here, will be buried tomorrow at 10 a. m.

She is survived by the following sons and daughters; John, William and Newton, of Berkeley County; Olia, Robert, George, Mrs. Holland Price and Elizabeth, of Shepherdstown, and Kirkland McKee, of Elkins. Two brothers and a sister also survive, Edgar Hill, of Pilot Grove, Va.; the Rev. George Hill, of Washington, and Mrs. Ida Neill, of Shepherdstown.

Tips for This Bewildered World

SURELY it is no news how harried, flurried, worried and wobbly this old world is, from Aix to Yokahama, from Bangor to Benares. But let tall, quizzical, sentimental and quick-eyed Frazier Hunt, seasoned globe-trotting reporter, come forward with his notes and findings—"This Bewildered World" (Stokes, $2.75).

Back from the latest of his circumnavigations, he states: "I am positive now that there is a great underground current of unrest and dissatisfaction flowing over the world, carrying with it stubborn demands for a new set-up for common man." But if that, as a whole, is a pure bromide, the proof is not and never can be worn thin. Hunt's journeys through Japan, Manchuria, China, the Philippines, Siam, India, Turkey, Italy, Germany, France, England, Russia and America, and his thousand talks with statesmen, industrialist and laborer, all come out alike. "A torn and disillusioned world it is, marked with common enemies—and thrilled by common hopes."

THEO. HALL.

* * * *

It is a considerable job (which Hunt realizes) to paint the world as a whole. And it were hard to keep out personal bias.

But I like the man's bias—his boyish exuberance and optimism, his dauntless hopes in the face of too crabbed old men. Uncritical he may be; his enthusiasm for Russia and the New Deal is not invulnerable to argument; the wisdom he blithely quotes from Ford and Boss Kettering seems on the other side of the fence from the wisdom he quotes from Gandhi. But when the political pundits either adjust or tire of their niceties, I don't see what they are going to find true other than the uncomplicated faith which Hunt brings back—that the world has to learn to respect human rights, and that nations must learn to be good neighbors. But Hunt does not gloss over the difficulty behind that absurdly simple formula.

Stuart Chase once remarked that the economic affairs of this country lay in the hands of 2,000 men. You will find a number of these (all of them manufacturers) and their works described neatly in as interesting a book as I have seen in some time—"Understanding the Big Corporations" (McBride, $3).

The authors are the editors of Fortune, from which the articles are reprinted. Ford, Continental Can, National Steel, International Harvester, Cannon Towels and so on, eleven in all, are placed before you with that peculiar statistical clarity and human frankness for which the magazine is famous. How Air Reduction Co. makes oxygen and what they make on it, the simplicities of that "perfect corporation," United Shoe Machinery; the rise of Earl D. Babst, of American Sugar, how Johns and Manville came together on asbestos—all this shows good reporting on the part of Fortune's ferrets. I think it strangely exciting to learn what goes on behind a trade-mark. Not the least aspect of the book is its value as social history.

* * * *

Several Brain-Trusters went up to Swarthmore College last fall and delivered lectures. Members of the economics department now edit and present those messages somewhat reservedly in a little volume, "America's Recovery Program" (Oxford University Press, $2).

John Dickinson on the program as a whole, Berle on banking perform, Tugwell on "New Strength from the Soil," Onthank on codes, Leo Wolman on labor, Alexander Sachs on NRA policies (this enlarged to a third of the book and revised to April 1) and several other essays of like authenticity make up the book. The authors may disagree among themselves, but at least they show more courage and directness than the editors. Lions are introduced by lambs, if you see what I mean.

* * * *

But in all these tokens for present prosperity (United Shoe netted $8,000,000 in 1932) and New Deal bliss-to-come, nothing was quite so gorgeous as a sentence Frazier Hunt got from Dr. W. E. Wickenden, president of the Case School of Applied Science in Cleviand. Speaking of our imminent efficiency with machines, this scientist remarked: "If the 2,250,000 boys and girls who reach 18 each year were to spend eight years at material production, they could ever afterward turn to cultural activity . . . the Age of Plenty is near."

I object, and solely on the score that this makes most of us feel we were born sadly out of our time.

New Virginia Air Service Planned

Newport News, May 27 (Spl.). Final details preparatory to starting a regular airplane passenger service between this city, Norfolk and Cape Charles are expected to be completed at a conference in New York City Monday, Dr. Dave Driskill, local pilot and partner in the Driskell & Barclay Flying Service here, said today.

The local concern will operate the service, Dr. Driskill said, it being planned to begin on a twice-a-day schedule, using a four-passenger Stinson plane, with the expectation that a six-place Bellanca will be utilized when business justifies.

State Accepts Bridge After Span Is Repaired

New Market, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—The new concrete bridge spanning Smiths Creek, 1 mile east of here on U. S. route 211, was accepted by State highway department engineers.

Several weeks ago State engineers declined to accept the job, as a corner of the bridge had dropped several inches, requiring rebuilding of a portion of the span.

Young Army Couple Feted In Old Home

Highwood Is Scene of Gala Prenuptial Gathering.

Dignity and Charm of Old Estate Add to Enjoyable Event.

Somehow, an old home that has been the scene of many brilliant and elaborate social gatherings seems to accumulate all through the passing years a certain something that lends dignity, beauty and true hospitality to the parties given beneath its roof. Highwood, the lovely old home of Mrs. Henry Clarke Corbin, who was formerly Miss Edythe Patten, is just such a home.

Shortly after the war it was leased to Gen. John J. Pershing, and was the scene of many social functions, which while more or less informal, were, nevertheless, most attractive and enjoyable with the added snap of military uniforms.

Highwood is at present the home of the Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, and many have been the teas, luncheons and suppers given there for the official and diplomatic circles of the Capital, to say nothing of the parties for the debutante daughter of the household, Miss Betsy Dern.

Last evening there was just enough coolness in the breezes to make the numerous trees and the handsome boxwood hedge on the lawn take on a thick, velvety appearance. The lovely old house, sitting way back off Rittenhouse street, with its many twinkling lights, seemed to fairly breathe of hospitality.

Within, Miss Dern, becomingly attired in a blue and pink flowered chiffon, was entertaining at a buffet supper in honor of that popular young Army couple, Miss Beatrice Patton, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George S. Patton, and Lieut. John Knight Waters, whose wedding is to take place next month.

It seemed as though the rooms would overflow with the merry chattering of the young people. They were everywhere, in the large reception hall, at one end of which, over the fireplace, there is a splendid portrait of the Secretary; in the spacious drawing room and even in the library which overlooks the terrace.

The supper was served at 7:30 p. m. The long table in the dining room was quite a sight to behold. In the center was a handsome crystal candelabra, with tall ivory tapers, and on either side of it were vases containing quite appropriate flowers, "mock orange" blossoms. Throughout the house were clusters of peonies which had come from Highwood's own garden.

Miss Kleberg Will Be Bride Of Mr. Andrews

Ceremony to Take Place at Famous Texas Ranch June 27.

Another interesting engagement in the Congressional circle to be announced is that of Miss Mary Etta Kleberg, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Richard M. Kleberg, to Mr. Forrest Lee Andrews, of Houston, Tex.

Miss Kleberg attended the Texas Arts and Industries School and the University of Texas. She is now in her senior year at George Washington University.

Mr. Andrews was graduated from Leland Stanford University with the class of 1932 and now is practicing law in Houston.

Mrs. Kleberg with her three daughters, Miss Mary Etta Kleberg, Miss Katherine Kleberg and little Alice Kleberg, will leave Washington, Thursday, to motor to their home in Texas.

The wedding will take place on Wednesday, June 27, at Santa Gertrudis, the famous Kleberg ranch near Kingsville, which is the home of Mrs. R. J. Kleberg, grandmother of the bride-elect. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. S. E. Chandler. Following the ceremony there will be a large reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kleberg, jr., will be present at the wedding. The latter was formerly Miss Helen Cambell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Pitt Cambell who, with Mr. Kleberg, makes her home with Mrs. Kleberg, sr.

Culbertson on Bridge

1058.

Risking an Overtrick.

Ordinarily it can be laid down as a general principle that defending players should win every trick they can in order to defeat the opposing contract. This is so self-evident that it scarcely requires statement. However, there are situations where the defending side should take the risk of giving the Declarer an overtrick in order to create a situation which may possibly bring about the defeat of the contract.

Mr. Louis H. Watson, who is one of the master Bridge players of the United States, recently defended a Slam contract by a most unconventional play on the hand below:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ K Q 8♡ Q J 7 6◇ J 7 4♣ 10 8 3 | |
| ♠ 7 6 2♡ 9 5 4◇ K 8 5 3♣ K 9 2 | NW ES | ♠ J 9 3♡ 10 3 2◇ Q 9♣ J 7 6 5 4 |
| | ♠ A 10 5 4♡ A K 8◇ A 10 6 2♣ A Q | |

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 3NT | Pass | 4NT | Pass |
| 6NT | Pass | Pass | Pass |

The bidding as given above was certainly unconventional. The fact that neither North nor South has a suit of five cards in length makes the Slam contract rather hazardous.

Mr. Watson was seated West and opened fourth-best from the diamond King. The four was played from Dummy, and East quite properly played the nine. South won this trick with the ten, and then ran four spades and four heart tricks. Mr. Watson was twice forced to discard, and boldly blanked the club King. South was not prepared for this strategy. He knew that Mr. Watson had three diamonds and one club left, and therefore counted on the King of clubs being in the East hand, and finessed the Queen. This was won with the King, and a diamond led, and the contract was defeated 1 trick.

It will be observed that this play would have been impossible had Mr. Watson discarded a diamond and retained two clubs. In that case South would have played the Ace of diamonds on the tenth trick, and another diamond would have forced Mr. Watson in the end to lead from the King of clubs into South's tenace in that suit. In this particular hand there was no safe defense, but the bold policy adopted by Mr. Watson gave the one slight chance of success. The Declarer can not be blamed for failing to detect Mr. Watson's clever ruse because his play would have followed identical lines had his club holding not included the King.

Martinsburg Girl Is Bride of Capital Man

Miss Ivadine Edwards Is Wed in Church Service to Wallace Reynolds.

At a quiet ceremony Saturday evening in First United Brethren Church at Martinsburg, W. Va., Miss Ivadine Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy A. Edwards, of Martinsburg, and Mr. Wallace Reynolds, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Reynolds, of Martinsburg, were married by the Rev. Dr. W. A. Wilt, assisted by the Rev. Harry V. Wheeler. Only members of the immediate families were present. The church was decorated with peonies and wild flowers against a background of ferns and palms.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Nota Edwards, wore a white silk ensemble with corsage and carried a Bible. Her sister wore a frock of white eyelet embroidery and corsage of pastel shaded flowers. Mr. Forrest Reynolds, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Mr. Smith Pine and Mr. James Andrews were the ushers.

Mr. Malcolm Hutto, organist, played and Miss Frances Edwards, another sister of the bride, sang two selections.

An informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The wedding was the first to occur in the First United Brethren Church since it was built several years ago.

Days When Bible Fixed Family Disputes Gone

"SPARE THE ROD and spoil the child," has given way, as a family maxim, to the more modern one of "honor thy children," says Mrs. Everett Dean Martin, above. She's president of the Child Study Association.

President of Child Study Association Says Parents Can Not Take This Easy Course in Child Discipline in These Days.

WHEN the Bible settled all family disputes discipline was a simple matter. At the slightest hint of insubordination the stern parent dragged out the Good Book and read sternly. "Spare the rod and spoil the child," or "Honor thy father and mother." The young rebel listened, quaked with terror, and was squelched.

"But the modern parent can not conscientiously take this easy course," Mrs. Everett Dean Martin, president of the Child Study Association, said yesterday. Mrs. Martin, a recent guest at the Shoreham, has been working with the Child Study Association 22 years.

"Frankly," she continued, "the modern parent is bewildered. He knows the old autocratic methods of discipline did not fit a child to face life. Discipline should serve as a scaffold to help the child while he is forming his character. When the scaffold is removed he should be able to support himself without aid."

Know His Capacity.

The first step in intelligent child discipline is to know what to expect of children at a certain age, Mrs. Martin believes.

"Learn what actions are characteristic of a child at each age and don't command him to do things that are contrary to his nature," she said. "For instance, if you know a child is at the age when he wants to climb up on everything he sees, don't take him to a place where a huge pile of rocks tempts him and then tell him to stay off. Those are the things that make discipline difficult and cause conflicts."

Another vital problem facing the modern parent is that of providing security and yet encouraging a child to be independent, Mrs. Martin explained.

"In the old days large families took care of this problem," she said, "there was a certain amount of friction, but that is necessary for growth. In large families children fought for their rights and learned to be independent. They had the sense of security that comes from belonging to a large, closely related group.

"Today in the average family of two children with each person working or going to school a substitute must be found. Let the child be independent as far as possible, but let him have the security that he gets from the family feeling of affection, the knowledge that someone cares about him."

Let Him Do Things.

Independence can be encouraged from infancy by giving a child the opportunity to do things for himself and of exercising choice, Mrs. Martin said.

"Let the very young child pick out the clothes he wants to wear," she advises. "These are the habits that will be useful in later life. As for strengthening family bonds, this is important in teaching the child to make contacts in later life. Arrange all leisure time together. Try to find common interests and make concessions to other members of the family."

All fathers and mothers are taking their job more seriously than they did 20 years ago, Mrs. Martin believes.

"They study the child's needs, his problems and try to find intelligent solutions," she said. "It has become a case of honoring the child, rather than the parent. Many mothers take up the study of child psychology before their children are born.

"They realize there is no magic formula that will solve all problems for all mothers, but they want all the intelligent aid they can get."

U. S. Women's Charm Held To End Soon

New York, May 27 (Spl.).—Charm ends at 40 for too many American women, believes Maurice Hindus, author and world traveler.

At that age, says Mr. Hindus, the American woman usually stops listening and begins talking authoritatively. She not only develops opinions but insists on foisting them upon others. Smug and self-satisfied, she starts out to make over the world according to her own plan.

This is particularly lamentable, Mr. Hindus points out, because the American woman usually starts out by being the most charming of her species. Up to the age of about 39, she is alert, gracious, adaptable, and ready to lend a sympathetic ear to all with whom she converses. Often she has made an outstanding success either as a wife or a business or professional woman.

But at 40, complains Mr. Hindus, something happens to her. She becomes self-assured and omniscient—and, worst of all, a hander-down of opinions! Losing her interest in other persons she consequently loses her charm.

Middle Class Extinction Seen If Birth Rate Trends Continue

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 27 (Spl.).—A class system of aristocracy and proletariat, with the middle class edged out of the picture, may develop in the United States if present trends in the birth rate continue.

This warning is voiced by Prof. Ellsworth Huntington, of Yale University, who recently was elected president of the American Eugenic Society.

Recent studies, according to Dr. Huntington, indicate a rising birth rate among the upper classes during the last decade or two. The average number in the families among the more successful graduates of Yale or Harvard is now approaching three children instead of two. However, four children are considered the desirable number, Dr. Huntington points out.

Heavy Taxes on Middle Class.

At the same time, the birth rate continues higher among recipients of charity than the rest of the population, while the birth rate among the middle class is declining.

"The great middle class" said Dr. Huntington, "is providing funds for the dole or charity through taxation or otherwise. The cost of the dole and unemployment are so great the birth rate in the middle class is being steadily and materially reduced.

"The effects of these trends in birth rate require most serious consideration. If our least desirable group on the one hand and our most distinguished group on the other have more children than the great class in the middle, the creation of an aristocracy and a proletariat is likely to follow.

Social Upheavals Seen.

"If this tendency toward the establishment of distinct class lines should go far enough, it might be followed by the disappearance of democracy as we know it and other great upheavals along social and economic lines."

Dr. Huntington denied his society wanted to create a race of intellectuals. He declared an intellectual was "no more desirable to society than a good craftsman, a good mechanic or a competent farmer."

Models Lead An Easy Life, Says Teacher

Observes They Get Big Pay and Meet Lots of "Eligible" Men.

PLENTY of openings, big pay for little work and grand opportunities for meeting "eligible" men—that is the way the profession of fashion modeling appears to Miss Henrietta Millet after ten years' experience in teaching girls how to wear clothes with that certain something.

Miss Millet has just finished putting 30 girls through a course in modeling at the Washington Y. W. C. A. While the members of the Y. W. C. A. class have no intention of giving up secretarial and stenographic positions for the career of mannikin, they have learned to wear clothes so well they will be in demand for style shows, their teacher believes.

"Even if they never take part in a single show, they have learned to wear their office and party clothes with distinction," said Miss Millet Saturday. "Some of the girls were awfully dowdy when they entered the class. But you should see them now. They can model a $2.98 dress so it looks like a Paris creation."

Poise and Grace Essentials.

This is the way the transformation from frump to fashion plate was brought about: The girls were given exercise to music until they could move rhythmically from head to foot. These exercises resulted in poise and grace. And poise and grace are the only essentials for fashion modeling, according to Miss Millet.

"Self-assurance is a help, providing there isn't too much of it," said the mannequin maker. "The girl who is too sure of herself is likely to become stagey. That is bad. Natural sweetness is much more effective."

Most models who have become stars in their profession were born with a sense of showmanship, admitted Miss Millett. "But even that sense of showmanship can be acquired to some extent," she added. "Once a girl knows she looks well in her clothes, it is only natural for her to take delight in showing them off."

The mannikin ranks have been swelled considerably in the last few years by society girls and college graduates. This condition is especially noticeable in New York, Miss Millett has found.

Marriage Opportunities.

"The girls want to pick up easy money and they love beautiful clothes. The answer is modeling. And manikins in exclusive retail shops have opportunities to meet men of wealth and social prominence who have been brought shopping by mothers or sisters. A good many of those chance meetings result in marriage. The profession of modeling will never be crowded because 'once a manikin, usually a bride' is the rule."

Age and beauty play unimportant parts when the would-be model goes job hunting.

"The ability to wear clothes with smartness is the things that counts," declared Miss Millet. "Some of the prettiest girls look sloppy in their clothes because they lack poise and grace. And some of the highest-paid mannikins would have to work in a glue factory if they depended on their beauty. As for age, the manufacturers of children's clothes use children for models. The makers of clothes for grandmothers use grandmotherly types to exhibit their things. So it all goes back to the two essentials, poise and grace. If a woman has those two things she needs nothing else to become a mannequin, or to wear her own clothes with dash and style."

The modeling class held a fashion show and tea Saturday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A.

What Today Means

"Gemini"

If May 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

If a woman and May 28 is your birthday, it would appear you are very shortly going to have cause for a feeling of great personal gratification. You have a great deal of self-confidence, as well as energy, and this is going to enable you to secure the results desired for your contentment of mind.

The child born on May 28, when it reaches its teens, will prove a great comfort to its parents.

The man born on May 28 generally appreciates both a home and wife. He gets a great deal of satisfaction showing his appreciation by many nice little considerate acts. As fathers they are inclined to spoil their children by overindulgence.

Stevenson Read Her "Treasure Island" Manuscript; Mrs. Ingles Sees Stage Presentation for First Time

Harris & Ewing.

MORE THAN HALF A CENTURY ago in Scotland, Mrs. Suzanne Smith Ingles, above, heard Robert Louis Stevenson read aloud from the embryonic manuscript of his then unfinished "Treasure Island." She saw it on the stage here for the first time Saturday.

She Speaks of the Author's Illness and Discouragements

This Little Scotch Woman Knew Stevenson When She Was a Schoolgirl in Edinburgh and Was Acquainted With the Torrences, Later Actors.

By Helen Feiter Cook.

MORE THAN 50 years ago in Edinburgh, Scotland, a young girl named Suzanne Smith listened to chapter after chapter of "Treasure Island" as the young Oxford graduate, Robert Louis Stevenson, read to her from his embryonic manuscript. Only then he called it "The Sea Cook."

But not until Saturday, in Washington, did she see the characters in a flesh-and-blood stage presentation. As excited as the hundreds of children about her, Mrs. Suzanne Smith Ingles—now a white-haired woman—leaned breathlessly forward during the season-closing performance of the Washington children's theater season, the immortal "Treasure Island."

"I think the play was very nicely done," said Mrs. Ingles after the performance. "It was strange, wasn't it, that Louis should have written of pirates and South Sea Island folk before he ever traveled? And then, to think he should have died among just such strange people in Samoa! But they loved him dearly—even there."

In School Then.

"I was still attending Miss Gossip's Seminary when Louis was working on 'Treasure Island'," she continued. "You know poor Louis worked so hard over that book. He got very discouraged and often laid it aside for weeks at a time. But then he'd take it up again and when he finished it the publishers only gave him $600 for it.

"Louis always was writing. His father, a brusque out-doors sort of person, never approved of it. He was a civil engineer and wanted Louis to become one, too. When Louis finished school, Mr. Stevenson took him up to the bleakest part of Scotland where Andrew Carnegie's castle, which then belonged to Sir John Southerland, stands and where the climate is much like that of Alaska. Mr. Stevenson was building a lighthouse there and took Louis to help him.

Always Poor.

"Louis was in constant need of money. His father wouldn't give him a cent, and the poor boy was always dunning his agent to get funds from the publishers.

"Louis said he liked to write prose more than poetry. He was never satisfied with his poetry, and protested he only wrote it because it 'came to him' and he wanted to get it out of his mind. He was very particular about his writing, and he'd do things over and over.

"Louis was preparing to come to Saranac Lake in America just at the time I was getting married—in 1887—and though I invited him, he couldn't come to my wedding. But another of my writing friends, James Barrie, did come. I never saw Louis after that time. I believe he met Mrs. Osborne, whom he later married, in France, and of course he traveled constantly later. He certainly had the gift for writing and I feel that 'Treasure Island', more than anything else he wrote, will always live. It has the ageless appeal to youngsters that adventure always possesses."

This little Scotch woman, eldest in a family of four, has had a remarkable life herself. Among other Scotch friends of her Edinburgh days, are Sir Thomas Coulston, famous physician; his son, Stover, whose "Lunatic at Large" is another book Mrs. Ingles was privileged to hear as it was written, chapter by chapter; and the two Torrence 'boys,' David and Ernest, who both achieved fame on stage and in the motion pictures.

"Straight to Perdition."

"Everybody back home thought it terrible when the Torrence boys went down to London to go on the stage," said Mrs. Ingles with a smile, many of them said David and Ernest were surely going straight to perdition."

Mrs. Ingles' son, her only child, went to France at the beginning of the World War and five years later accepted a post in India where he died.

Mrs. Ingles came to America in 1916 to see a dying relative in Omaha, Nebraska. She meant to stay two months and has been here ever since. Her headquarters have been in Washington for the last five years.

Work of Chinese Girl Artist Attracts Attention

Miss Maimie Sze, Daughter of the Chinese Minister, Now Working in New York, Where She Hopes to Hold "One-Man" Show Soon.

IN A season when interest has been evinced in art as never before, a young artist known to Washington comes into the limelight. She is Miss Maimie Sze, daughter of Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, the Chinese Minister. A Wellesley graduate, class of 1931, Miss Sze has studied painting for the last two years in London and Paris. Now, as she says modestly, she is "just working" in her studio in New York. As her studio is one of those modern ones in the new development along the East River where "the dawn comes up like thunder" over Long Island, she is probably more inspired to paint there than anywhere else.

In New York, Miss Sze, Tientsin-born, attracted wide attention by her entries in an exhibition at the Marie Sterner Galleries of paintings by women of five nationalities. This exhibition was one of the many in New York and elsewhere this season which indicated the Golden Age of art might be arriving in America.

Exhibit in Paris.

A seascape done by Miss Sze, which is now hanging in the Chinese Legation, 2001 Nineteenth street northwest, was hung in the Salon d'Autonne, 1933 exhibition, in Paris. It was painted in Bandol, France, a small town between Toulouse and Marseilles.

Miss Sze hopes to have a "one-man" show in New York next fall and is working to that end. Speaking of her career, she says, "I am just working on painting which I have always liked better than any other work, ever since I did water colors in school at the age of 6."

Was Student Here.

Miss Sze was a student at the Cathedral School here and later went to Wellesley College. She remained there to complete her course after Dr. Sze was transferred from Washington to London to represent China at the Court of St. James. Later she jointed her family in England and then went to Paris to study. When Dr. Sze resumed his diplomatic duties in Washington, Miss Sze returned to this country.

Mr. Townsend Is Queried.

MR. LAWRENCE TOWNSEND is leaving this week for his summer home in the Adirondacks to spend the next several months at Beech Hill Farm above Schroon Lake. He will be joined there early in June by Mrs. Townsend, who has been "taking the cure" at a famous health resort in France, where she goes when she needs a real rest.

* * * *

A New York newspaperman recently called Mr. Townsend on long distance late one night and asked if he were Natalie Townsend's father.

"No," said Mr. Townsend, "I'm her husband. What is it? Has anything happened to her?"

* * * *

"Oh, she's all right—so far as we know," said the newspaper man, "but we just received a wire that she had Lily Pons with her in a box at the opera in London tonight and introduced Mlle. Pons to the King and Queen. Do you know anything about it?"

"No—I wouldn't hear of it, of course, so soon," said Mr. Townsend. "It is quite likely Mrs. Townsend would have Mlle. Pons with her for she knows her well and it is equally likely she introduced her to the King and Queen, for she has known their majesties for a long time."

* * * *

Mr. Townsend said his lovely white-haired wife, who is recognized as one of Washington's leading connoisseurs on affairs musical, left Washington to take an earlier boat for Europe than she had originally planned so as to be in London to attend the particular performance given at Covent Garden the night the French coloratura sat in her box.

The star of the opera, a revival of Beethoven's "Fidelio," was Madame Lotte Lehmann, the great German soprano whom Mrs. Townsend introduced to Washington audiences in one of her famous morning musicales last year.

"And what did you find that lawyers do?" inquired Miss Atwater.

"Why, uncle seemed awfully busy," replied young Helen in an impressed tone of voice, "but all he did was to take papers out of one basket on his desk and put them into another one."

All Ten Toes Appear in New Strap Sandals

These Open-Work Numbers Go Everywhere—Parties, Market.

THE most pronounced fad in years is the present craze for sandals. Women who usually take a great deal of pride in stating they do not wear things "everybody else is wearing" have adopted a sheep-like attitude toward cut-out slippers that expose all ten toes.

It's reached the point where golf links and tennis courts are about the only places not overrun by sandals in one form or another. Slippers consisting merely of a couple of narrow straps, sole and heel trot blithely to market in the morning. They settle down contentedly beneath smart luncheon tables at noon. And in the afternoon they do everything from strolling through the park to attending garden parties.

More So in Evening.

But it's when the stars come out sandals really get down to the foot-exposing business. Formal slippers this summer are about as far removed from last summer's pumps as a 16-cylinder roadster is from a horse and buggy. Tiny strips of twisted silver or gold kid, a sparkling brilliant here and there, a frivolous little heel—and that's all there is to the newest dancing slippers.

The really novel thing about evening sandals is the height of their heels. For years even women who wore brogue oxfords for all daytime occasions, suffered at night on stilt-like heels. But this season many of the most formal slippers have quite low ones. What this sudden come-down will do to arches and leg muscles has not been fully determined. Most shoe salesmen, however, are advising their customers to make the transition gradually.

Daytime sandals differ only from evening ones in the material used. In place of gold or silver kid, colored leather is worn in the afternoon. The color may be anything from black to bright blue. White, of course, is extremely good. Pastels often match frilly afternoon frocks.

Linen and Gingham.

Fabric is the smartest material for sandals to be worn with little cotton dresses during summer mornings at home or on the street. Linen is excellent. Gingham is very gay.

The one thing possessed in common by sandals for all hours is their exposure of toes. This will undoubtedly result in a lot of frantic pedicuring and splashing on of red nail polish.

Sheba's Beauty Famous, But It Had One Fault

She Was Careless About One Thing, or Depilatories Weren't Invented.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

DON'T be like the Queen of Sheba! She offended Solomon with a fuzzy growth of hair on her legs.

On the day that she arrived at his court, a Koran commentary tells us, the king awaited her in a house of glass—something she had never seen before.

"Thinking that Solomon was sitting in water," the story goes, "she lifted up her skirt, whereupon he noticed hair on her legs, and said, 'Thy beauty is a woman's beauty, but thy hair a man's hair; hair adorneth a man but disfigureth a woman.'"

Modern beauty theories coincide with those of wise old Solomon. They decree the soft smoothness of a hair-free skin.

But many women are confounded with a hair-raising problem. The more they take off, the more returns. If they shave the surface growth it comes back in a few days, stronger and coarser than ever.

A specialist along these lines has a word to say, and a new treatment kit for "hair troubles."

"If you lift the hair out together with the bulb that contains the strength of the hair, you are getting at the root of the trouble," she avers. "Devitalizing the growth in this way, the hair comes back more slowly and finer in texture each time until it finally disappears entirely."

Hundreds of women go to her New York salon, where she treats them under the most modern and scientific conditions with the same materials her new kit contains.

The new kit may be bought in Washington. It includes full-sized containers of the four preparations used in the salon treatments that range in price from $3 to $10. And the kit costs only $1. Use it once or twice and hair worries will disappear during the bathing season.

Summer Shorts.

With long, lazy days on the beach already marked on the calendar, it's time to assemble the summer sports wardrobe.

A local store suggests white duck shorts with a contrasting topper for the tennis courts, the beach or a burn in your own back yard. These two-piece sets are selling now for one dollar.

There are also some dark blue wool jersey shorts with little white anchors on the legs. These are $1 without toppers. The same type comes in a slightly different make, with inner bloomers, for $3.95.

Beat the Hangnail Battle.

Battles, large or small, involve a degree of strategy. Imagine a war on hangnails. If they're cut off, they return. If they're pulled off, that's dangerous. But if they're traced to the root of the trouble and attacked from that angle, they can be easily banished.

Hardened cuticle is usually the cause and should be cared for immediately. There's a product on the market, a soft pinkish cream that will, if applied daily, keep the nails pliable, the cuticle soft, and thereby do away with hangnails.

It's no trouble to use. Rub a little on and forget about it. It soon dries into the skin and supplies the oils lacking. It will not harm high-luster polish, but tends to preserve it and prevent it from drying and hardening the nails and cuticle. Its manufacturers say it is also effective in cases of sunburn.

As yet few women are familiar with this cream. But once they learn what a contribution it is in the way of hand care, it is bound to score a popularity hit.

Modern Fig Leaf.

The modern fig leaf is one of the most amazing garments—if one could call it that—which has yet been placed on sale. It's a small, silky, "leaf" that fastens on to girdles, corselets and other foundations. With all the essentials of a panty, it has none of the excess.

Two little bands that come with it are for tacking on to the foundation garment. The leaf buttons onto these, and is easily removed for washing.

It comes in tea rose, trimmed in biege lace.

Swim-Proof Cream.

A young woman in a downtown store demonstrated a product in her line of goods, at first to only one onlooker, but before she finished a half dozen shoppers were watching her entranced.

From a small jar she took a creamy paste and rubbed this all over her face. The excess she removed with a cleansing tissue. In the few seconds it took her to apply it her skin had taken on a chiffon appearance and a smooth natural color, as though she had powdered it with some unbelievably effective powder.

"Won't that come off in swimming?" some one asked. The young woman smiled, leaned over a bowl of water and splashed it liberally over her face. She dried it with a soft cloth. No change had taken place.

The preparation she used is justly called a "beautifier."

Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

Henry Cabot Lodge—Anna Cabot Davis

ROMANCE came to Senator Lodge when he was an undergraduate at Harvard and met the charming Anna Davis, whose fondness for literature and history almost equaled those of the scholar. After their honeymoon the future Senator studied law and started on the upward curve of his distinguished career. While teaching at Harvard he met Theodore Roosevelt there as a student, and formed the closest friendship of his life. The Washington sojourn of Senator and Mrs. Lodge will long be remembered here.

This Match United Two People with Common Interest—Literature

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

"BETTER than the best of him was his wife," wrote Owen Wister in "My Friendship with Roosevelt" of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. He continued:

"When Senator Lodge lost that radiant companion, counsellor and guide, he went on as well as he could alone; he did not virtually cease as Henry Adams did when he was left in the same way, but he was never the same man afterward."

A close friend of Senator and Mrs. Lodge, the late Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the beloved "Springy" of Washington contemporaries, also paid tribute to the abiding virtues and the loveliness of Mrs. Lodge in a striking sonnet entitled "In Memoriam A. C. M. L. It read:

Art thou a living guardian, ever near
To watch and ward thine own? Or far away,
Bright with the brightness of eternal day
Among just souls made perfect, dost thou hear
The song which stills in music doubt and fear
There, where at last divine compassion dries
The bitter drops that cling to mortal eyes,
Yea, even the mourning mother's sacred tear?
I know not. This at least I know full sure:
There dwells a living presence in the heart,
Not I, but in me, high and strong and pure,
Counsel of right, a bringer of good things,
A fount of joy from deep eternal springs.

Gracious Hospitality.

Official life in Washington, for many years, felt the charm of the Lodge hospitality as it was found in their home at 1765 Massachusetts avenue with its gay front of tulips and trailing wistria blossoms over the door. All the grace of distinguished living was evident within and the great and good came there, delighted with the scholarly conversation of the Senator and Mrs. Lodge's gentle friendliness.

O friend, lost friend! that which thou wert, thou art!

Senator Lodge, perhaps more than any other American statesman, was the scholar in politics. What he said and what he wrote were enriched with a fine literary flavor and he had the background of a vast, discriminating, yet all embracing assmiliation of the best in books of every age. In Mrs. Lodge he found congenial tastes in literature and an absorbing interest in National affairs and politics generally. Some of her correspondence with Sir Cecil and Lady Spring-Rice reveal this trend to a remarkable degree. It was apparent she kept abreast with the march of time in every sense of the word.

Washington where they lived for so many years cherishes the memory of Senator and Mrs. Lodge. They left the imprint of their personalities upon official and social life here and there will be many who read this story today with vivid recollections of personal acquaintance and friendship with them.

Senator Lodge had generations of New England culture behind him. Born in Boston on May 12, 1850, he came to a natural inheritance of fine living as becomes one whose father was of the famous Lodge family, and his mother, a "Cabot". The father was John Ellerton Lodge, grandson of John Lodge, of London, and his wife, Elizabeth Ellerton.

Henry Cabot Lodge's boyhood in Boston followed the usual course of training of boys of good family there, with Harvard as the great objective of all study. In due course we find him a member of the class of 1871. Literature and history were among his interests with, of course, the classics high in favor.

And Then Romance.

It was during these spring days of his life that Henry Cabot Lodge met romance in the lovely person of Anna Cabot Davis, daughter of Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis. Attractive, well educated and accustomed to the travel incident to Navy families where "home" may mean any seaport in the world at any time, soon she meant romance with a large "R" in the undergraduate's life. Their friends realized graduation and marriage would come almost simultaneously for Henry Cabot Lodge.

How capable he was of real affection in the intimate relationships of life there is no doubt. As Owen Wister wrote of him: "There was enough of the artist in him to be moved by beauty to the verge of tears. He read me that page in Homer one night when Odysseus returns from Troy and his wanderings to his home in Ithaca, and no one there knows who he is, except his old dog Argos. At the end, he half flung the book down upon his knee, and exclaimed: 'The whole thing is the most beautiful story in the world!'"

It was on June 21, 1871, that same June in which he got his A. B. from Harvard, that Henry Cabot Lodge and Anna Cabot Davis were married.

The honeymoon over, the young bridegroom entered Harvard Law School, where he received his degree in 1875. But his interest in literature and history had not slackened through his pursuit of Blackstone. In this Mrs. Lodge, an ardent student of literature and history, gave him every encouragement.

So it is not strange to find the future Senator, after he had acquired his law diploma, not hanging out his shingle, but in the post of an instructor in history at Harvard when the fall term opened in 1876. Out of this decision, no doubt, grew one of the closest friendships of his life, that with President Theodore Roosevelt, who he first met, as a student.

Political Career.

It was about 1889 when Mr. Lodge's interest in politics led him into the Massachusetts House of Representatives where he served a term. In 1887 came the call to serve the State as a member of Congress in Washington and from that time until the day of his death he was never out of political life again.

It is interesting to note the really close friendship with Theodore Roosevelt began in 1884. For this we have the testimony of President Roosevelt himself in a memorandum he wrote on February 10, 1908, in which he declared: "Altho I had met Cabot Lodge once or twice in the Porcellian Club, I never really knew him until the spring of 1884, when we came together in connection with the effort to prevent Blaine's nomination for President * * * From that time on he was my closest friend, personally, politically, and in every other way, and occupied toward me a relation that no other man has ever occupied or ever will occupy."

In Washington the Lodge home was soon a center of quiet hospitality. Children were born to the happy couple, George Cabot Lodge, a young poet of renown at the time of his death; a daughter, Constance, now Mrs. C. C. Williams, of Washington, and John Ellerton Lodge.

One of Theodore Roosevelt's Closest Friends Married "Navy Girl"

Mrs. Lodge died in Washington on October 7, 1915. The Senator survived her for nearly ten years, dying on November 9, 1924.

His literary works and the memory of his romance with the woman who became his wife comprise the truest monument time can raise in tribute to this man who served his Nation so well and contributed so much that was worth while to American literature.

As a historian he was matchless in his day and generation. There was a certain grace in his writing born of erudition, exact knowledge and the painstaking research of the true craftsman in literary pursuits. The literary atmosphere of the Senate has become almost nil since his passing. His countrymen accord him gratefully a niche in the gallery of notable American statesmen.

Holiday's in Offing; Prepare for Picnic with These Suggestions.

By Susan Mills.

WE'LL have a holiday next Wednesday, and there will be picnics throughout the land. The chances are it will be the first picnic of the year for some of us, so it should be a special occasion.

Here are a few menus and suggestions for picnic lunches. Don't forget we want your ideas on the subject for this week's recipe contest.

Menu I.

Vegetable salad—in glass jar (lettuce carried separately in waxed paper).
Crab meat and onion sandwiches (wrapped in waxed paper).
Eggs stuffed with deviled ham (wrapped in waxed paper).
Thermos of hot coffee.
Fresh fruit.
Cookies (wrapped in waxed paper).

Menu II.

Combination chicken salad—in glass jar (lettuce carried separately in waxed paper).
Mayonnaise and pimiento sandwiches (wrapped in waxed paper).
Whole ripe tomatoes (wrapped in waxer paper).
Thermos of hot coffee.
Baked custards (in cups—carefully covered).

Vegetable Salad.

2 cups cooked string beans
2 cups cooked fresh peas
½ cup cooked lima beans
1 teaspoon onion, finely chopped
1-3 cup mayonnaise

Cut string beans lengthwise and then crosswise in ¾-inch pieces. Add peas, lima beans, and onion, and marinate in French dressing 30 minutes in ice box. Drain thoroughly. Add mayonnoise and blend. Serve on crisp lettuce. Serves eight.

Crab Meat and Onion Sandwiches.

¼ cup mayonnaise
1 cup crab meat, flaked
¼ cup pickled onions, very finely chopped

To mayonnaise add other ingredients and blend thoroughly. Spread between slices of buttered or nucoaed bread and remove crusts. Makes about 1¼ cups spread.

Eggs Stuffed with Deviled Ham.

6 hard-cooked eggs
¼ cup deviled ham paste
6 stuffed olives, finely chopped
¼ cup mayonnaise

Cut eggs in half lengthwise and remove yolks. Blend yolks thoroughly with remaining ingredients. Refill whites.

Combination Chicken Salad.

1 cup cucumber, diced
1 cup cold left-over chicken, diced
1 cup mayonnaise.
1 cup cold cooked peas
1 cup walnut meats, finely chopped

Combine ingredients in order given. Chill. Serve on crisp lettuce with additional mayonnaise and whole walnuts. Serves eight.

The Talking Sparrow Murders

BY DARWIN TEILHET

The Story So Far.

"A sparrow down there spoke to me. It said distinctly, 'Help! I'm caught!' " With these strange words, Kohlmann, the big industrialist, fell dead, shot, at Tatson's feet as he was crossing a Heidelberg street. Tatson was an American engineer, in a hurry to get home to a job which wouldn't wait. He was arrested, and then released on parole through the efforts of Carlson, his business friend at the plant not far from Heidelberg. But instead of proving his innocence, Tatson every day seemed to become more involved. Taubek, a Nazi leader, tried to kill him. Spalger, the assistant plant manager, was murdered shortly after Tatson had left him at a restaurant. It was here that he had met the charming, part-Jewish Mischa, whose fortunes seemed somehow linked to his. When mysterious danger threatened they had taken refuge at the Dolphin Inn. Leaving the girl behind for safety, Tatson conferred with Kresch, head of the Heidelberg police.

Now let Tatson himself go on with the story:

"YOU know Kohlmann considered buying our plant? We gave his son, Walther, an opportunity to go through our books. Suppose he discovered there were suspicious entries and warned his father?"

"Why wasn't Herr Walther Kohlmann killed, too?"

"He left for Berlin too soon. But if the father knew, Spalger would be exposed. It looks to me as if Taubek planned the whole affair and induced Spalger to do the actual stealing. If Spalger was in danger of being found out, that meant Taubek was in equal danger."

Kresch swallowed. "When did Herr Walther Kohlmann see your books?"

"A week or so before his father was killed. Don't you agree: wouldn't Taubek have to kill old Kohlmann to save himself? Then with the father dead perhaps Taubek planned to get the son when he returned. Or Taubek wouldn't even need to kill the son. With the father dead all negotiations for the plant ended. By the time the son was through with the funeral, Spalger could have made his getaway. Taubek would be clear. Spagler was Taubek's one weak link. And Taubek eliminated that link. He probably wouldn't have killed Spalger—just seen that he got out of the country—if Spalger hadn't talked to me at the Weinkellar."

Another Point Involved.

"Uh-m-m." Kresch watched a fly balancing on the inkwell. "We're trying to reach Herr Walther Kohlmann in Paris now. This is more important than his business affairs. When we get hold of him we can find out how right you are. You think Taubek's our man, then?"

There was another involved—Geigen. I didn't want to risk bringing Geigen's name in. The only evidence against him was the groove in his office window shutter. That—and the fact that Geigen was taking advantage of Kohlmann's death to buy our plant. If I was wrong about Geigen and ruined all our chances to sell the plant, I'd be worse off than before. After all, a groove in his office window shutter didn't mean he, himself, killed Kohlmann.

"But Taubek's the man who has the facts against him!" I thought of Mischa waiting alone at the inn. "Can't you take action at once—now? Fraulein Dryshenzoff is waiting for me at the inn. I told her I'd be right back. If you'll arrest Taubek, then she won't have anything to fear. Taubek knows she helped me escape. Taubek's capable of harming her."

Bummelzug Arrived.

"We can stop for her on our way back from Mannheim." He shoved his chair away from the desk. "Why didn't you have her come to Heidelberg with you?"

Why didn't I have her come? . . . I had urged her to come with me on the Mannheim-Heidelberg Bummelzug—the first out of Mannheim which stopped at Neuostheim. She was determined to stay at the inn until I had seen Kresch and was certain it was safe for her to come to Heidelberg. I finally had to agree. I had caught the Bummelzug which stopped at Neuostheim at 7:30 in the morning.

The Bummelzug eventually arrived at Heidelberg a little before 9. It had broken down for 15 minutes in Fruchsburg. Once in Heidelberg, I'd gone direct to Carlson, and found him eating breakfast at the Europaischerhof. I took him to one side, quickly recounted how I had gone to the Swimming Stone and how a girl who sang there had helped me to escape from the night club to the inn at Neuostheim. Then Carlson started into act.

Phoned Kresch First.

He phoned Kresch, shoved me into the taxi with instructions to phone back as soon as I had finished giving Kresch the complete story. In the meanwhile Carlson said he would put a call through to the American Consul at Stuttgart and have him prepare to come to Heidelberg should Taubek attempt to send the Nazis after me.

"She didn't want to come," I explained as he reached for his hat. "She thought it was safer there."

"The Neuostheim Inn is safe enough, but it would have been more convenient to have her here."

"The Neuostheim Inn?"

"That's where you said you stayed, isn't it?" He searched his pockets for a match.

"I said Neuostheim was the town. The inn's ten minutes outside.

"Not the Sign of the Dolphin?"

"That's it. I remember. There was a wooden sign of a fish"——

"Gott!" He grabbed his extension phone and shouted into it, "Briemler? Have four men in the fast opel in front of the Poliziamt at once. Understand? Armed. And Briemler, put in the machine gun."

On a Fast Trip.

His arm, big as a huge Rotenburg sausage, swept under mine. The two of us plowed out of the room and downstairs. The Opel came out of the gates and parked in front of the Polizeiamt. The chauffeur's foot went down on the pedal. The Opel detonated like a series of porcelain tanks cracking when the air pressure flows into them. We plunged straight down the Haupstrasse and I tried to shout to Kresch, but the tearing blast of the motor drowned out the words.

The university buildings sprawl back and around the Ludwigsplatz and some 50 students in brown shirts, carrying swastika banners, were marching from the square across the Hauptstrasse. One youth, whose legs trembled under the weight of his importance, paddled up toward us, flinging out both palms to indicate that the Opel was to stop.

The youth's bandied legs compressed under him and sprang back again, lifting themselves and the weedy body two inches from the rush of the Opel. The rest of the marchers flailed away from us into the outer ring of comrades. They forgot their banners. They forgot their inherent dignity and the birth of a new order and the Opel lunged through the cracked split in the parade with the deadly woosh of a bull drum thrown down a cement sidewalk.

Taubek Owns the Dolphin.

We were approaching the Sophieimstrasse. I again tried to shout to Kresch. His head wheeled slowly round to face me.

"Taubek doesn't know she's at the inn!"

"You are sure of the name of the inn?"

THE HIT of the PICNIC

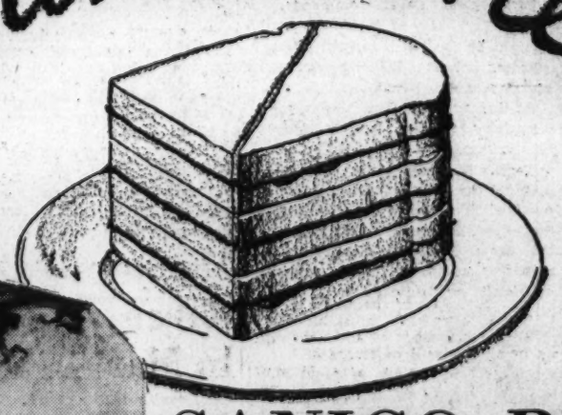
Sandwiches



Made With

SANICO BREAD

There's an old saying, "Half the picnic is the eats." Well, surely then, "half the eats is the sandwiches" . . . and to make tasty, delicious, satisfying sandwiches you must use the finest quality bread.

The rich, sweet flavor and fluffy tenderness of Sanico Bread makes sandwiches "that simply can't be beat."

SANICO PEANUT BUTTER

Put a generous spreading of SANICO PEANUT BUTTER between two slices of SANICO BREAD, add two or three slices of pickle and you've produced a sandwich that would surpass the fondest dreams of the Earl of Sandwich, himself.

Nothing but the best Spanish and Virginia peanuts, from which the embryo (bitter germ) has been removed, properly roasted and ground, could produce such good Peanut Butter, that's the SANICO process.

Virginia Calm With Stump Season Here

House Members All Too Busy to Return Home to Mend Fences.

Incumbents Have Little Cause to Worry About Jobs.

By J. K. Irving, Jr.

Charlottesville, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Because Congressmen are still hard at work in Washington, the Virginia political pot is merely simmering, when it should be boiling with elections so near.

With June almost here, all nine Virginia representatives are tied up at the Capitol on matters concerning the National weal, when they should be at home mending fences for their own good and that of the party.

But is a satisfaction to most of them that whatever may be simmering in the way of opposition must also lie low; for the reason that there is danger of coming out before it is definitely known what Congress actually did or did not do. So long as the session lasts there is safety in silence only for those who cherish ambitions. Once it is adjourned, platforms may be laid and opinions expressed. Nor can the final gong sound too early for the incumbents. They are becoming impatient.

All Incumbents Good Bets.

At the moment the field consists of the nine now in Washington. Every one of them is a good bet, each a hot favorite in the winner books. The fact that they are "in," of course, gets them off to a good start. And they have a better mark on the form-sheet than that, if it stands. The Administration, in spite of considerable scattered criticism, is immensely popular in the Old Dominion, due largely to CWA, CCC and other such Rooseveltian activities.

No Representative has been so shortsighted as to fail to impress upon the folks the consistency with which their delegation has supported the President and his program. It is true and carefully noted, especially by the light of the kerosene lamp. In this respect they are well established in the hearts of the voters. No issue can be stirred up on that account in any district. At present no critic of the Administration would stand a ghost of a show.

Smith Sticks to Roosevelt.

That attitude is pronounced even in this, the Eighth District, where Representative Howard W. Smith, though hard pressed by a large portion of his constituency—residents of Alexandria and contiguous territory voting in Virginia and holding Government positions in Washington—to vote for the overriding of the President's veto of the independent offices bill, opposed the measure. There is every probability that he will be returned as the party's candidate. The others have less fear from this particular source. Everything told, it seems there is little for any Representative to worry about within the party.

After the primary the most interesting possible development is that the Republicans may contest the second redistricting act, in the hope that the court of appeals will declare it unconstitutional, as it did the first one two years ago.

G. O. P. Hopes Low.

That would place all the candidates on an "at-large" basis. But, since the maneuver in 1932 resulted in more woe for the G. O. P. than if the alignment had stood, another attempt at breaking down the reapportionment, imperfect as it confessedly is, could hardly be called tactically clever. Unless there is an astonishingly unexpected change of heart with respect to the Administration in the next few months, there is little ground upon which to base Republican hopes in any part of the State.

These, however, are merely long-distance remarks upon what is to come, put down at a time when the State political waters are most placid. But one must ever bear in mind the undertow. Even now it is surging deeply. Its ripples will begin to show upon the surface soon after Congress adjourns.

Hennery Fire Costs $600.

Waynesboro, Pa., May 27 (Spl.).—Norman Grove, who lost a chicken house and about 700 young chickens when fire destroyed the hennery on the Chambersburg-Falling Spring road Friday night, today estimated his loss at $600. Firemen saved his residence and barn.

$750 Reward Up for Slayer of Woman at Fredericksburg

Benjamin T. Pitts Leads in Drive for Capture of Criminal.

By Herbert Baus.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27.—With this section shocked over the brutal assault last Sunday night from which Miss Fannie Kurz died and Milton J. Brown is still unconscious, Benjamin T. Pitts, once a poor country boy in this section, has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the assailant.

Immediately the city and Spotsylvania County matched Mr. Pitts' reward with equal amounts, and private sources contributed various sums until a total of $750 has been offered for the capture of the criminal.

When Ben Pitts, the theater magnate, who offered the first reward "in order to leave no doubt that the people of this section will not stand for such outrages," first came to Fredericksburg from the country more than 30 years ago, he was barefoot.

He worked by lamplight while going to high school in the day time. Putting aside his passion for higher education, he followed the future he saw in the primitive motion picture display industry of that day and began the enterprise which today sees him owner of a chain of 17 motion-picture houses in Virginia and West Virginia and owner of the controlling share of the Pitts Amusement Co., in which he has personally invested more than three quarters of a million dollars.

Hasn't Forgotten Poverty.

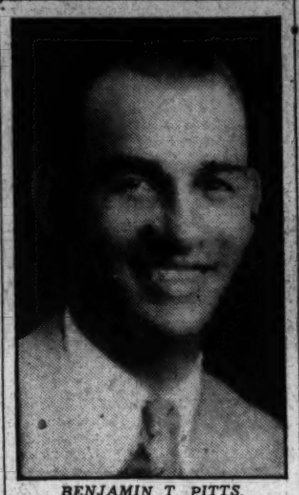
It was not as the money-pinching type of capitalist who brusquely rides over the finer human values that Benny Pitts made his fortune. He never has forgotten the poverty from which he sprung, and any day the passerby may see him admitting barefoot little children with shabby clothes to a free show. B. T. Pitts, as the northern Virginia Midas, is unknown; but Benny Pitts, as the man whose perseverence and doggedness carried him to the top and who was called by a city councilman of this city "the greatest exponent of charity in the history of this section," is loved and revered by thousands inhabiting the towns of this region and tucked away on little farms in the country.



BENJAMIN T. PITTS.

While building the largest industry and greatest fortune of the times in this section of Virginia, Mr. Pitts has not neglected to play a leading part in the life of his community. During the past year he has been exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, president of the Kiwanis Club, and president of the Baracca Bible Class of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the city council, president of the chamber of commerce, chairman of the Fredericksburg Reemployment Commission, and a member of the Salvation Army advisory council.

His greatest distinction and highest office, and one of which he is most proud, is the unofficial title which none who know him would deny him, and for which none would hesitate to honor him: Chief charity dispenser of Northern Virginia.

Charity His Hobby.

Charity is the hobby of Benny Pitts. His dinners and theater parties for the poor kids, innumerable benefit performances in every one of his houses, and "special nights" when old clothing or canned food for the poor is taken as admittance price to his theaters, are famous in northern Virginia. Whenever there is a big "handout" to the poor, citizens in these parts look for a connection with Benny Pitts, and they never fail to find it.

But Benny Pitts explained to this reporter that the $100 reward for the capture of the assailant who has shocked Virginia with its most lurid crime in many years is not charity. "People can not live in a society which will tolerate that kind of thing," Mr. Pitts said. "The people of this section will not stand for that, and we are going to lose no time showing criminals that we will not stand for it. That is why I offered $100 for capture of the assailant, and suggested that others add more to the figure."

Benny Pitt's greatest interest is to make the world a more pleasant and a more secure place for everybody. This is another time when he was first and most hearty in making his contribution more effectively to gain that end.

Last Sermon Attended by Naval Seniors

Graduating Class Goes to Chapel as Unit for Final Sermon.

Annapolis, Md., May 27 (AP).—Parents, relatives, friends and sweethearts of midshipmen crowded the Naval Academy Chapel today for the annual baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class by Commander William N. Thomas, chaplain of the academy.

Thet graduates, in full-dress uniform, sat together for the last time at church service, before separating Thursday to scatter to ships, naval stations and civilian life.

The light, filtering through the stained-glass windows, dedicated to Farragut and other heroes of the Navy, illumined the interior of the chapel with a soft glow. On the walls were tablets and placques erected to former graduates, who died in line of duty. Benetah the chapel, John Paul Jones, America's first great naval commander, is buried.

Chaplain Thomas took his text from revelations:

"Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain."

In the worship at the academy chapel, said the chaplain, there had been a definite aim to drive home "the conviction that personal integrity and individual nobility are essential to all life that is of any value and necessary to the entertainment of any worthy goal.

He suggested "four pillars on which rest the balance, equilibrium and symmetry of human character," urging the graduates to "keep a high estimaate of the worth of life; belive in yourself, trust humanity; know that God is, and that ultimately his will must prevail."

Tomorrow, Miss Sara Mumma, Evanston, Ill., the "color girl," will present the regimental colors to the first company, commanded by Midshipmen John Murray Wilson, Scottsburg, Ind., in one of the most of the color company kissed the "color girl" after she made the presentation, but this practice has been discontinued. The entire regiment instead cheers the "color girl" after the presentation.

Future Farmers Will Meet June 8

Bowling Green, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—The annual spring rally of the Caroline County Federation of Future Farmers of America will be held June 8 at Mica High School, it was decided at the May meeting of the organization.

Herbert Broaddus, past president of the county federation, will be nominated for an office in the State federation at the State rally in Blacksburg.

Officers of the federation include Robert Trivett, president; Hinton Smithers, vice president; Robert Eager, secretary; Raymond Chinaudt, treasurer; Robert Ellis Taylor, reporter; Lewis Fraughnaugh, watch dog, and L. C. Daughtrey, adviser.

Shannon NewPostmaster At Mount Jackson, Va.

Mount Jackson, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—James M. Shannon will assume his duties as acting postmaster here June 1, succeeding W. W. Middleton.

Mr. Shannon is a son of C. M. Shannon, Shenandoah County Democratic chairman, and a graduate of Roanoke College, Salem. Mr. Middleton was appointed by President Coolidge.

Memorial Day Rites Planned In Martinsburg

'Cemetery' to Be Center of Ceremony Honoring World War Dead.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—In a new observance of Memorial Day Wednesday, a military cemetery, with white wooden crosses, row on row, is being prepared around the Doughboy Statue on the postoffice lawn here, Dr. M. H. Porterfield, chairman of American Legion post's observance committee, announced. The day's public ceremonies will be staged about this reproduction of the graveyards in France.

The "cemetery" will be 43 white crosses, one for each of the Berkley County men who gave their lives in their country's service in the World War. Each cross will be inscribed with a name and there will be one larger cross inscribed "Since 1918." They will be ranged around the statue. Services will begin at 10 a. m.

A half-hour band concert will be given by the Legion Band, as the opening part of the program. The Rev. F. R. Wagner, of St. John's Lutheran Church, will offer prayer. Ladies of the Legion Auxiliary will lay a wreath on the Doughboy Statue, honoring all the county's soldier dead.

Principal O. L. Snyder, of Burke Street School, a veteran of the World War, will speak.

The ceremony will close with "Taps," played by Harry Miller, commander of the local Legion post.

Cab Driver Robbed.

Julian Suydan, colored taxi driver, told police yesterday that he was robbed of $4 by two colored men who hired his cab at Seventh and M streets northwest.

1,000 at Rites For Girl Slain In Love Tryst

Fredericksburg Fiance Is Improving; U. S. Men Question Women.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Several hundred automobiles this afternoon carried more than 1,000 persons in the funeral march of Miss Fannie Kurz, the Falmouth girl whose brutal murder has aroused this whole section.

One of the biggest concourses ever gathered at the little country church braved a cold wind and the threat of rain to express their sympathy for the family of the slain fiancee of Milton Brown.

The Rev. P. H. Clements conducted the services at 2:30 p. m. in the old Falmouth Baptist Church, and the girl was buried in the church cemetery. She is survived by her father, Gus Kurz, Stafford County farmer; three brothers, Gus, jr., John and Gilbert Kurz, and a sister, Mrs. Pauline Burton, all of Stafford County.

Meanwhile, Department of Justice operatives today conducted an out-of-town investigation.

An arrest by Lee Oliver and R. L. Burruss, working from Washington, was expected shortly. Mumblings of the battered Brown, still unconscious in the hospital since Monday afternoon, have repeatedly referred to a woman police are beginning to suspect of having engineered a jealousy crime.

Agents Grill Women.

Several one-time sweethearts of the youth have been under questioning. One girl with whom he is said to have had occasional "dates" while paying attentions to Miss Kurz is under close observation, it was said.

Federal agents refused to comment on their long interview yesterday with Gertrude DeBruyn, 22-year-old co-laundry workers and close friend of the murdered girl. Other young people will also be questioned.

Brown Grows Better.

Dr. Frank C. Pratt, who has attended Brown since he was brought to the Mary Washington Hospital, today revealed the assault victim's physical condition to be improving. Stitches have been removed from his head wounds and he is receiving the normal nourishment of a hospital patient. The physician stated it may be many months before the youth's mental condition becomes normal or his memory dependable. Dr. Pratt made it plain that in spite of improvement Brown is still battling great odds for his life.

The Negro lead-pipe robber, who has harassed couples in the Battlefield Park, scene of the attack, has not yet been found. Citizens posses have not given up their combing of the crime area, and police have set a trap for a possible maniac who may have beaten the young couple and left them for dead.

The finals will take place Tuesday night.

Members of the class are:

Esther Bomar, Kate Jeannette Byrd, Nonie Christine Forrest, Verne Lester Staples, Mildred Kennedy Brook, Virginia Elizabeth Mays, Hattie Inez Glass, Rena Mae Berry, Dorothy Virginia Church, Sara Frances Deane, Gladys Earl Frye, Lilly May Lollis, Lois Kathleen Hinson, Pansy Inez McCoy, Dovie Eugenie Willingham, Cecil Lula Wade and Nancy Wayward Terrell.

Hagerstown NRA Debate Is Refused

State Director Turns Down Accused Man's Challenge.

Hagerstown, Md., May 27 (Spl.).—There will be no debate on the virtues of the NRA, Arthur E. Hungerford, NRA compliance director for Maryland, having declined the invition of Herman L. Mills, Hagerstown business man, to debate the question.

Hungerford said: "You must realize that it would be utterly impossible for a Government official to take part in a joint debate with an alleged violator of law, about the law which he is allegedly violating."

Mills recently was cited for alleged violation of the oil code, in the giving of premiums with the sale of gasoline, &c. His case is pending in the courts.

Death From Poison Verdict at Danville

Police Find Youth Bought Medical Preparation.

Danville, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—"Death from a poison of unknown nature" was the verdict of Dr. J. E. Taylor, coroner, today in the mysterious death of James Whedbee, jr., 23, who died in a hospital yesterday a few hours after being carried home in a taxicab unconscious.

The police investigation revealed he had purchased a medical preparation for a stomach disorder during the evening and had walked with Miss Patsy Steele home, where he suddenly collapsed.

The body was sent to Gates County, N. C., near Suffolk, Va., for burial tomorrow.

Mary Baldwin Opens Round Of Festivities

Seniors Head Big Pageant Starting Commencement; Graduates Listed.

Staunton, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—The Rev. William Crowe, D. D., of St. Louis, this morning in the First Presbyterian Church, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the senior class of Mary Baldwin College. Vesper services this evening brought the Sabbath observance to a close.

Tomorrow will be alumnae day in connection with the commencement exercises, with the alumnae breakfast at 10 a. m., followed by the business meeting. The May fete will be staged at 4:30 p. m. The alumnae banquet will be held at 6:30 p. m., with Lowell Thomas, author, traveler and radio newscaster as the speaker.

Tuesday, at 10 a. m., Dr. David Allan Robertson, president of Goucher College, Baltimore, will make the commencement address, and President L. Wilson Jarman will deliver degrees to a class of 31.

Candidates Listed.

Candidates for the A. B. degree are:

Joanna Adams, Randallstown, Md.; Rosalie Brown, Staunton; Caroline Caldwell, Grosse Point, Mich.; Christine Cottroll, Staunton; Doris Covillo, Staunton; Jacqueline Crinkley, Blackstone; Grace Crowe, St. Louis, Mo.; Kate Drake, Staunton; Kitty Drummond, Spartanburg, S. C.; Julia Gooch, Staunton; Martha Gray, Elkmont, Ala.; Louisa Heath, Quitman, Ga.; Anne Holman, Lee, Va.; Betty Keith Harrison, East Falls Church, Va.; Thelma Hulvey, Staunton; Mary Larrick, New Martinsville, W. Va.; Agnes Latham, Staunton; Kathryn Little, Baltimore; Mary Lou McCutchoon, Goshen, Va.; Louise McDanald, Roanoke; Mildred Mawhinney, Naxora, Va.; Winifred Patterson, Havre de Grace, Md.; Jacqueline Perkins, Blackstone, Va.; Euphomia Smith, Salt Lake City; Bessie Stollenwerck, Staunton; Emily Timberlake, Staunton; Helen Waide, Staunton; Mary Bordon Wallace, Wilmington, N. C.; Evelyn Wood, Campbellsville, Ky.; Frances Woolford, Atlanta, and Catherine Zimmerman, Richmond.

The commencement program opened at the college yesterday at 4:30 p. m., with the colorful class day exercises. The program began with processional of seniors, wearing brown dresses and carrying arm bouquets of talisman roses with blue delphinium.

The line of seniors was headed by the officers of the class: Miss Caroline Caldwell, of Grosse Pointe, Mich. president; Miss Evelyn Wood, Campbellsville, Ky., vice president; Miss Kate Drake, Staunton, secretary, and Miss Catherine Zimmerman, Richmond, treasurer.

Tableau at Hilltop.

Misses Janis and Janet Holley, of Crown Point, Ind., daughter of Sheriff Lillian Holly, acted as pages. Each senior was followed by two attendants, wearing dresses in shades of peach and brown, which made a pretty picture with the senior dresses, which were in a somewhat deeper shade of brown than that used in the dresses of the attendants. The attendants carried shepherd's crooks, with which they from time to time formed aisleways for the seniors as they made their way up the terraces to form an artistic tableau on the steps of Hilltop, a classic old colonial building. After a symbolic weaving of a tapestry, representing the history of the class, the procession proceeded down the hill to the front lawn, where Miss Caldwell, senior president, handed on the colors of the class to a representative of the incoming class of 1938 and presented the senior gift, a beautiful rug for one of the student parlors, to the college.

Immediately after the class day exercises, the college gave a lawn party in honor of the seniors and senior guests. A concert was given by the music department in the evening, followed by a student council reception for the seniors and guests.

Two Warships To Join Fleet

Maryland and Portland Trim for Review Off New York.

Norfolk, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Arriving from Cuba, the battleship Maryland and the cruiser Portland came into Hampton Roads yesterday to dress up before proceeding to New York to join the United States fleet review next Thursday.

The Maryland loaded fuel oil. A few visitors were permitted. The ships will sail tomorrow or Tuesday.

The Portland is one of the newest 10,000-ton cruisers. The supply ship Bridge, from the West Coast, arrives tomorrow and will load a full cargo of provisions for ships in the fleet. She is to make three voyages from Norfolk to New York.

There is in storage at the naval base here more than $3,000,000 worth of food, millions of gallons of oil and other material that will be used while the fleet is on the East Coast.

Mrs. Margaret Jones Buried.

Heads Mary Baldwin Graduates

More Virginia Graduations Set This Week

Port Republic, Loudoun County Schools Plan Final Exercises.

High school commencement activities in nearby Virginia will continue this week.

A prize awaits twelve honor graduates of the Port Republic High School who have maintained grades of 89 or over on all tickets from September to May 1. Hobart M. Earman, principal, and Mrs. Earman are giving them and five faculty members a three-day trip to Washington. They will leave tomorrow and will return on Thursday.

The Port Republic commencement exercises opened with a three-act comedy, "Baby Steps Out," by the senior class on May 17.

Special Honors.

Special honors won by graduates include first place in both the poetry and The Washington Post Scholarship Competition by Alma Hooke, who heads the honor roll; second poetry prize by Dee Witt Showalter, physical education first prize by Winnie Roach, first poster prize by Frances Hinkle, and second place in The Washington Post Scholarship Competition by Mary Jane Walker, who is class president and second on the honor roll.

Loudoun County schools are holding commencements in their respective auditoriums tomorrow at 8 p. m. They include the high schools at Leesburg, Waterford, Lucketts, Ashburn and Lovettsville.

Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, will deliver the address at the Leesburg celebration. Other features of the program will be an invocation by the Rev. J. S. Montgomery, violin solos, Raff's "Cavatina" and Beethoven's "Minuet," by Anton Kaspar and presentation of Rotary awards and diplomas by Charles S. Monroe, principal. Baccalaureate services were held at 5 p. m. yesterday in the high school auditorium, with the Rev. Jesse H. Hobbs delivering the sermon, the invocation by the Rev. J. S. Montgomery, Scripture reading by the Rev. Peyton Craighill and the benediction by the Rev. H. B. Jennings. The school's glee club sang De Koven's Recessional.

Gradation at Waterford.

Waterford High's twenty-fourth annual commencement will be opened with a salutatory by Edith Hutchison. The program also includes "Glimpses of the Past and Future," by Bertha Cooley; "A Message From the Fairy Queen," by Arthur Hawes; "Dance of the Paper Dolls," by Audrey Donaldson, Dorothy Paxson, Lena Kitts and Louise Compher; "Paint Brush Drill," by James Compher, Fred Donaldson, George Rollison and James Kitts; "Minuet," by Eleanor Livingston, Morris Nix, Frances Hickman and Billy Virts; Rubinstein's "Voices of the Woods," by the school chorus; valedictory by Emma Rollison, an address by L. ## Catholics Plan Demonstration At Baltimore

75,000 Are Expected to Take Part in Huge Field Mass.

Baltimore, May 27 (AP).—A solemn pontifical Military Field Mass will be sung by Archbishop Michael J. Curley Wednesday at a mighty celebration in the Baltimore stadium in commemoration of the Tercentennial of the Catholic Church in Maryland.

More than 75,000 persons, including 64,000 participating in the parade preceding the service, are expected to fill the stadium by 11 a. m.

In conjunction wit hthe Tercentennary celebration, the Centenary o fthe birth of James Cardinal Gibbons also will be observed. The service will be a part of the 300th anniversary of the founding of Maryland, being observed throughout the State this year.

The tabanacle to be used on the alter at the stadium is said to be that used by the Rev. Andrew White, S. J., when he said the first mass in Maryland, the day the colonists landed from the Ark and the dove on March 25, 1634. A choir of 7,000 children will sing the music of the mass.

In the line of march will be priests, nuns and secular representatives of all the Catholic orders, Churches, Schools and Institutions of Maryland and the District of Columbia. Several bands and floats will be in the parade.

In the reviewing stand will be Archbishop Curley, the most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States; Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati; seven Bishops, members of the diplomatic corps, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, and other public officials.

Following the celebration a dinner will be held in honor of the Twentieth anniversary of the consecration of Archbishop Curley, to which members of the hierarchy, priests and hundreds of laymen have been invited. Mayor Jackson will be the toastmaster.

One Dies, Trio Hurt In Triple Car Crash

Danville, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—One youth was killed and three other persons hurt in a triple motor crash near Callands in Pittsylvania County last night.

Leonard Nuchols, 22, died of a fractured skull en route here to a hospital. The three injured also brought here were Murray Jefferson, 18, broken hip; Howard Stowe, 20, gashed neck and broken leg; Miss Marian Stowe, 16, crushed leg and internal hurts.

One car overtaking another, and glancing off plunged into a light truck head-on. The impact was so terrific rescuers had to pry loose metal debris to reach three of the victims, according to witnesses.

AAA Fight Is Assailed By Woodrum

Roosevelt Has Ample Power Now, Says Virginian.

Suggests Members of Congress Quit and Go Fishing.

(Associated Press.)

The controversy over the Administration-proposed amendments to the agricultural adjustment act yesterday brought from Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, Va., an assertion that Congress already has conferred "ample power" on President Roosevelt to carry out his program.

He suggested that members of Congress "all quit, go home, and go fishing."

The attack of Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, on the amendments, he said, was "helpful and constructive criticism."

"It comes," he said, "fom one who desires to see the President's program succeed and I feel will be accepted by the Administratoin as the deliberate judgment of a friend."

Woodrum consistently has supported every Administration measure since Mr. Roosevelt took office and was leader of the fight in the House against overriding the President's veto of the indipendent offices supply bill. Byrd has voted against the Administration three times—the National recovery act, the Bankhead cotton control law and the beer law.

"If the fundamentals of our system of government are to be preserved," Woodrum said, "there is certainly a limit beyond which we dare not go in this matter of trying to cure all our economic and social ills by legislative edict.

"Many of the novel propositions we have enacted into law may be justified because of the emergency which confronted us, but we now have plenty of laws, and have conferred ample authority upon the President to carry out his program, and in my humble judgment we should all quit, go home and go fishing.

"It would be beneficial to everybody concerned."

While the Woodrum statement gave indications opposition to the amendments had crossed the Capitol from Senate to House, Farm Administration officials were preparing to present a redraft of the amendments to Byrd today.

Their efforts were directed at eliminating the opposition led by Byrd and at the same time giving the Administration the full power it wants to proceed against unruly processers and handlers of agricultural commodities.

"Bootleg" Milk Drive Pushed

Hagerstown Is Combatting Malta Fever; Revoke One License.

Hagerstown, Md., May 27 (Spl.).—Health authorities continued their drive against the sale of "bootleg" milk here, source of Malta Fever in recent weeks, when they revoked the license of one mechant.

The health department began a drive a week ago following the appearance of several cases of Malta Fever, which were traced to the "bootleg" milk sold in a restaurant and stores. The restaurant and all except one of the grocers agreed to purchase milk from registered dealers, who handle milk from tested herds.

The sanitary inspector found milk sold by one grocer was in bottles of a registered dairy, but with different caps.

Hagerstown's milk supply was declared free from the dangers of Malta Fever, which became epidemic here two years ago. The disease was traced to cows in a dozen or more herds serving Hagerstown.

Nationals Win Third Straight Victory by Defeating White Sox, 9 to 6

Myer Slugs Two-Run Homer

Double Included Among His 4 Hits; Kuhel Bats 4-Bagger.

Chicagoans Get Weaver for 11 Hits, Forcing His Removal.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, May 27 (Spl.).—The Nats went batty this afternoon with great slugcess and accumulated their third straight victory despite Monte Weaver. Toward the finish Weaver was pitching as if he had the White Sox's best interest at heart. He was making waste of his overwhelming lead with great haste, but the Nats pulled through with a squeamish 9-to-6 triumph.

Altogether, it was a profitable day for the Nats, who zoomed to within two games of the league lead when the score board showed that the Yankees had been whipped by the Browns and yielded first place to the Italians.

The Nats met up with the Jones boy, Sam, and proceeded to fatten their batting averages on his delectable pitching in the first six innings, making hits and runs in large clusters before Manager Jimmy Dykes was struck with the thought that the veteran Jones2was not having a successful day out there on the mound.

14 Hits Off Jones.

All told, the Nats made 14 hits off Jones and man named Tietje, while Weaver and Russell, who managed the last two outs for the Nats, were holding the White Sox to nine hits. Buddy Myer, particularly, had a large afternoon, with two singles, a double and a home run.

Washington was home-run minded today with Joe Kuhel slamming his third homer of the season far into the right-center field bleachers with Myer on base in the first inning, the inning before Myer slammed the ball to the same spot with Monte Weaver on first.

In his own private little sideshow that Cecil Travis is conducting along with the Nat' Western tour, the rookie third baseman slammed out a single in his first trip to the plate that stretched his consecutive-gave hitting streak to 20 contests.

Weaver Nullifies Work.

But every time the Nats scored a few runs for Weaver, he was nullifying much of his mates' work by permitting the Sox to score. They gave him three runs in the third, and he gave the Sox back a run in the same inning. The gave Weaver two more in the fifth and he gave the Sox back another run. In the sixth, after they had apparently put the game on ice for him, with a four-run uprising, he let the Sox have two more runs on account. Thus he went into the ninth with a 9-4 lead.

Weaver, couldn't get anybody out in that ninth and after pinch-hitter Bordogaray had singled, Pinch-Hitter Uhalt had walked and Mule Haas had singled over a run, the bedraggled Weaver was extracted in favor of Jack Russell with the 18,000 Chicago fans in the stands scenting a scintillating rally.

But Russell would have none of it. Bonura hit into a force out, Simmons slammed a fly to Stone, and Fred Schulte made matters safe for Washington by taking Appling's long drive to center with a diving catch for the twenty-seventh put-out.

Three Runs in Third.

Nothing was materializing today for the Nats until after two were out. They picked up those three

Miss Palfrey Eliminated On Courts

Loses to Miss Scriven, of England, in French Title Round.

PARIS, May 27 (AP).—Margaret Scriven, trim lefthander from England, today obtained revenge for her Wightman Cup defeat at the hands of Sarah Palfrey last year by eliminating the Boston girl, 6—4, 6—4, in the second round of the French hard court tennis championships.

Miss Scriven's victory put her into the quarter final round of women's singles, where she is the defending champion, while Miss Palfrey's elimination left Helen Jacobs, United States champion, as the sole American survivor in either singles division.

Miss Palfrey's defeat came as the climax of another disastrous day for American hopes. Josephine Cruickshank, Carolin Babcock and Dorothy Andrus all were beaten in doubles play.

Miss Babcock and Ed Andrews, of New Zealand, were eliminated in a second round mixed doubles match by Mlle. M. R. Couquerque, of Holland, and the Czech, Princec, 6—2, 8—6, while Miss Andrus and A. Lesueur, of France, were beaten in the same division by Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian, who has lived for many years in England, and Adrian Quist, of Australia, 6—3, 6—1.

In women's doubles, Miss Cruickshank and Ida Adamoff, of France, were eliminated by Mlle. Couquerque and Muriel Thomas, of England, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Joining Miss Scriven in the quarter finals of women's singles, were Mme. Rene Matrisu, of France; Lucia Valerio, of Italy, and Cilli Aussem, of Germany.

Brwns Win, 16-7, As Yanks Lose Lead

Come From Behind to Score Eight Runs in 4th.

St. Louis, May 27 (AP).—After trailing the first three innings, the St. Louis Browns unleashed a fourth-inning batting attack that netted 8 runs, then hurtled on for a 16-to-7 victory over the New York Yankees here today.

The fourth-inning festival reached its climax when Campbell got a homer with the bases loaded after four runners already had crossed the plate. West also hit one for the round trip. Three Yankee pitchers fell before the heavy batting barrage, while Newsom was going the route for the Browns.

Tribe Wins, 7-6, From A's; Goes Into Lead

Hale's Homer, Trosky's Triple Put Indians Out in Front.

CLEVELAND, May 27 (AP).—The Indians went into first place in the American League standings today by defeating Philadelphia while the New York Yankees were being drubbed thoroughly by St. Louis.

A home run by Hale in the fifth inning, followed by Trosky's triple in the same frame, gave the Tribe a two-game edge in the series with the Athletics and a percentage reading of .600 for 18 games won and 12 lost.

The Yankees, whose foray into the West has been attended by luck akin to Napoleon's at Waterloo, have won 20 games and lost 14 for a percentage of .588.

Helped by Errors, Tigers Nip Red Sox

Schoolboy Rowe Effective in 9-to-2 Victory.

Detroit, May 27 (AP).—Errors by Boston plus nicely bunched hitting by Detroit enabled the Tigers to defeat the Red Sox, 9 to 2, before a Sunday crowd of 14,000.

Three of Boston's four errors helped Detroit's scoring in the fourth and fifth innings. The Tigers collected nine hits off Rhodes for a total of six runs in the half dozen innings he worked. Pennock finished the game, but came to grief in the seventh when he walked three men, loaded the bases twice and allowed two hits for three more Detroit runs.

Lynwood (schoolboy) Rowe pitched the entire game for the Tigers, allowing 11 scattered hits.

NEW YORK, May 27 (Spl.).—The domain of King Fistiana today is a nation divided against itself, awaiting here in Gotham the clang of the bell which tomorrow will send Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross into battle for the welterweight championship of the world. Pending the outcome of the 15-round embroglio between McLarnin, Irish welterweight king, and Ross, the greatest Jewish lightweight since Benny Leonard, every fight fan is either Jewish or Irish.

After a dull early afternoon (which is early morning to the fight world), the ticket offices at the Garden, which remained open during the Sabbath, and ticket agencies throughout the city, reported brisk sales. The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, threaten to swell the already almost unprecedented advance sales of $135,000 to over the $200,000 mark before the idol of Ireland and the ghost of the ghetto climb through the ropes. More than 65,000 are expected to see the fight.

Wagering Slows Down.

After a flying start, wagering on the outcome of the battle slowed down to a canter, with the side-of-the-mouth boys, who seem generally to favor Ross, holding out for 6 to 5 odds and the Sons of Erin, who comprise the majority of the backers of McLarnin, unwilling to give better than even money.

Ross, who arrived in New York from his Ferndale (N. Y.) training camp Friday, appeared in splendid condition today, which removed some of the seeds of doubt implanted into the minds of his followtrs when he ambled through a lackadaisical routine yesterday.

In yesterday's session, against sparring mates, he was several times an easy target for right hands from his human punching bags—leading his constituents to believe that he might be tagged by the famed McLarnin dynamite right tomorrow night. In today's workout, he indulged only in calisthenics and bag punching. The bag could not hit back and he looked good. Art Winch, his co-manager, said he would weigh in tomorrow at 138 or 138½.

McLarnin Reaches Town.

McLarnin stole unostentatiously upon Gotham from his Atlantic City training quarters this afternoon. He was greeted by his 72-year-old father, Sam, who came all the way from Vancouver, B. C., to see him work against Ross, and remained in monasterial retirement throughout the day.

No information was forthcoming from McLarnin's headquarters here as to whether or not he was experiencing difficulty in making the 145 pounds to which he must whittle his stocky frame to save a $10,000 weight forfeit. It is generally believed, however, that he will weigh in a pound or a fraction of a pound under the required poundage and pick up two or three pounds following the weight formality, which is being held at noon the day of the fight instead of the customary 2 p. m. to give him time to regain lost strength, if any.

Win, lose or draw, McLarnin's purse will be swollen considerably by the engagement. He is working on 40 per cent of 90 per cent of the gross, which will net him $72,000 on a $200,000 gate. Ross' end—25 per cent of 90 per cent of the gate—will amount to $45,000 on a gate of similar magnitude.

Cards Rally in 10th; Beat Phillies, 5 to 2

Philadelphia, May 27 (AP).—A ninth-inning rally enabled the Cardinals to tie the score 2 to 2 with the Phillies. Dizzy Dean's homer into the left-field bleachers actually won the game in the tenth. Before the extra inning closed, the Cards chalked up two more runs.

For eight innings, Phil Collins pitched masterful ball for the Phillies, holding St. Louis to one run and five hits over the long stretch.

Betts, of Braves, Blanks Cubs, 5 to 0

Berger Pounds Home Run; 20,000 Fans Look On.

Boston, May 27 (AP).—For the second time this year the Chicago Cubs were shut out today when Huck Betts, of Boston, pitched the Braves to a 5-0 victory before 20,000 persons. Betts was given remarkable support, particularly by McManus, Braves second baseman, and Lee, left fielder.

The Braves scored two runs in the second inning off Bush on Moore's single to center field after a Betts base hit and two passes had filled the bases.

Berger hit a home run high into the left field bleachers with two out and none on in the eighth. It was his fourth of the season.

Georgetown Prep Golf Star Wins Post Trophy

Allan Beats Oliveri, 4 and 3, To Win Schoolboy Golf Title

By Dave Herman.

FRANK ALLAN, 18-year-old all-round athlete from Georgetown Prep, built himself a commanding lead on the first nine, and then warded off a three-hole rally by his opponent on the stretch yesterday at Congressional Country Club to defeat Andy Oliveri, chubby-faced Roosevelt High student, in the 18-hole finals of the first annual metropolitan schoolboy golf championship, 4 and 3.

Allan's victory won him the beautiful Washington Post Trophy and the replica as well. The trophy will be contested for annually.

Steady shooting with his woods and irons and ability to sink his putts at the opportune moments enabled Allan to conquer Oliveri, who was unable to control his approach shots on the outgoing voyage. Aided by birdies on the fifth and eighth, both par 5 holes, Allan went out in 38, one over par, while Oliveri had a 43. Allan missed a chance to go even with par on the first nine, three-putting the ninth green.

Takes 7-up Lead.

Five up at the turn, Allan became 7 up by capturing the tenth and eleventh with par 4s. At this point, Oliveri opened a three-hole attack, winning the twelfth with a 4, the 512-yard thirteenth with a par 5 as Allan three-putted, and the fourteenth with a par 3 after stymieing the Georgetown Prep golfer. The battle ended on the fifteenth, where both scored 5s.

Starting with the third, Allan took 3 holes in a row with some fancy shooting. He parred the third and fourth, and ran down a tricky 30-footer on the fifth for his firdie 4. Oliveri went beserk wth his approaches on the fourth fifth andseventh. On the eighth, Allan reached the green in two lusty wallops, and got down in two putts for his birdie 4, as Oilveri put his second in a trap.

Defeats Frank Carey.

In the morning semifinals, Allan defeated a teammate, Frank Carey, 3 and 2, and Oliveri eliminated Bobby Brownell, of Roosevelt, 15-year-old conqueror of Maury Nee, the medalist. Brownell found the course too long and rigid and yielded to par on virtually every hole. The kid sensation was 5 down at the turn and lost, 5 and 4. Allan and Carey were even at the tenth in their battle, but Allan turned on the steam on the second nine, winning the eleventh, thirteenth and sixteenth, climaxing the match with a spectacular explosion that saved him a half in 4.

The tournament attracted 65 boys from 11 schools. It opened on Friday with an 18-hole qualifying round at Indian Spring. First and second round matches were held at Kenwood the following day. It was a most successful championship.

Charles Town Opens 36 Days of Summer Racing This Afternoon With Good Card

Seven Events Are Carded Daily

Special Train Arranged; Two Highway Routes for Motorists.

Valley Plant Officials Are Optimistic Over Weather Outlook.

WASHINGTONIANS, generally deprived of racing between mid-May and September, will have the horses in this area for the next 36-racing days. The Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club opens its long session today at its Charles Town, West Va., plant and until July 4 ther e will be seven races daily with the usual action in the mutuel machines.

Situated in a valley of the Blue Ridge Mountains, Charles Town is only 54 miles from the District and is expected to draw chief support from Washington and Northern Virginia racegoers. Autoists have their choise of two routes, although the Virginia State road through Leesburg is the shorter. On the Maryland side, Frederick is on the route to the course.

For those who travel by train, the B. & O. has a special leaving Union Station at 12 o'clock which goes direct to the track. A bargin combination ticket which includes admission to the track is being offered.

Good Weather Promised.

When West Virginia passed the racing bill early last fall, State officials were anxious to have a track in action during the first year. The Shenandoah Valley Jockey rushed work on its modern plant and operated through December. Adverse weather conditions, marred the meeting, but track officials carried on as they had promised.

Late spring and early summer weather is generally ideal in the Blue Ridge sector, and those in charge of the plant face opening day with high hopes of success.

The track has been reconditioned, the stone pile, which obstructed the view of the first turn, has been removed, the mutuel board has been shifted back in the infield, and the plant spic and span.

The daily double" will again be a daily feature. It consists of a pool, independent of the regular betting, on the first and third races. This form of wagering proved popular last year, the first time it was ever afforded fans of this section.

Limit fields seem assured in six races today with 62 horses appearing in the entries. The feature is the Jefferson County Inaugural. The secondary feature is the Shirley Povich Purse. Both are sprints.

Nats 9-6 Victors Over White Sox

runs in the third when, with two away, Myer beat out a scratch hit, Kuhel singled to right and Manush sent a long double into center.

Madjeski's pop single and Haas' double had given the Sox a run in the third when the Nats went to work again with two out in the fifth. Their efforts took the form of Myer's double to right that Swanson almost typed into the stands with his glove for a synthetic homer. Then along came Kuhel with a legitimate home run clout into the bleachers and the Nats were ahead, 5-1.

Swanson's single, a passed ball and Haas' second double got a run back for the Sox in the fifth, but the Nats bounced right back with four runs in the sixth. Stone and Cronin singled and Jones departed the scene. Against Tietje, Schulte singled, Weaver hit into a force-out and Myer deposited his homer into the stands. It was fortunate for them that the Nats were scoring all these runs because Weaver was having his troubles. The Sox retrieved a pair of tallies in the sixth when Jimmy Dykes followed singles by Simmons and Appling with a long double and they were making menacing gestures in both the eighth and the ninth before Russell retrieved the faltering Weaver.

Chambersburg Victor Over Martinsburg, 8-3

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Rallies in the seventh and eighth innings, coupled with a series of defensive misplays on the part of the host team, gave Chambersburg an 8-3 victory over Martinsburg here today, weakening the latter's hold on first place in the Blue Ridge League.

Vines Beats Tilden; Needs One Victory

Takes Five-Set Triumph in Eastern Pro Play.

New York, May 27 (AP).—Ellsworth Vines scored a five-set victory over Big Bill Tilden in the round-robin series for the Eastern professional tennis championships today and practically clinched the title.

The victory, won by scores of 3—6, 8—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, was Vines' second in the round-robin series among the four semifinalists, and left him needing only a triumph over Martin Plaa, of France, to win the crown.

The other match today resulted in a surprising victory for Plaa over Henri Cochet, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3.

Charles Town Track Consumer's Tax Set

Charlestown, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—C. M. Seibert, counsel for the jockey club, received a telegram yesterday from State Racing Commissioner J. B. McLaughlin setting forth a ruling by State Tax Commissioner Fox regarding the West Virginia consumers' tax, where it affects tickets to the Shenandoah Jockey Club track here. The season opens Monday.

Where cash is paid for admission, the usual consumers' tax will be charged. There will not, however, be a tax charged where complimentary tickets are used. The usual 10 per cent Federal tax charged on paid admissions and complimentaries alike will hold.

Danville Amateurs Fight.

Danville, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Danville's first athletic card under A. A. U. rules will be held at the armory on Friday night. Twelve local fighters have filed application for membership. They will meet opponents from High Point, N. C., and Lynchburg in eight bouts.

4 Bouts Open D. C. Boxing Era Tonight

Feldman Will Face Ratner in Feature Fight at Hunt Club.

THE first bit of professional boxing committed in the National Capital with the full knowledge and consent of the law and its minions will be presented tonight at the Riding and Hunt Club by Goldie Ahearn, who has arranged 32 rounds of glove swinging.

A sizeable and distinguished throng of sports fans are expected to see Lew Feldman and Ernie Ratner come together in the feature 10-round bout. The list of guests includes Senator David I. Walsh, Representative Loring Black, sponsor of the pro boxing bill, Representative Fred A. Hartley, sponsor of the amateur boxing bill, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Maj. Leonard and the esteemed members of the District Boxing Commission.

Ten of the 22 rounds supporting the top bout have been assigned Charley Gomer and Joey Costa, two punchers not overly burdened with ring skill. Ray Bowen and Pete Gullota swap blows in an eight-rounder and Deacon Owen and Earl Dunlap complete the card with a four-round scrap. It is the first pro engagement for the latter pair.

Feldman rates well up on the featherweight list, having disposed of Tommy Paul, our own Petey Sarron, Jackie Pilkington and Irish Bobby Brady, all of whom know how to handle their dukes. Ratner is a club fighter of good repute. His best bouts wer ewith Benny Bass, Tony Falco and Charlie Gomer.

Though Mister Ahearn's program is attractive from a strictly boxing viewpoint, chief interest in the bouts appears to be from the historical angle. The boys will be there to see the deed chronicled for future generations to raed about. It will be rather amusing to hear tell how Washingtonians slipped away to Virginia and Maryland back in the days before '34 to witness a sport odious to the powers that be.

Bulletins on the Ross-McLarnin fight will be issued from the ringside tonight. The fight goes on—rain or shine, as the arena is enclosed and the tan bark floor will be watered to insure a cool atmosphere. The Riding and Hunt Club is located at Twenty-second and P streets northwest.

Warning was sounded yesterday by the Boxing Commission that fighters, seconds and other officials connected with tonigth's show at the Riding and Hunt Club positively will not be permitted to work unless licensed by the District. The commission office at police headquarters will be open all day, from 9 a. m., to issue the required certificates.

Billy Winn Will Seek New Car Speed Mark

Albany, N. Y., May 27 (AP).—Billy Winn, of Kansas City, holder of the record for the half-mile oval, will seek a new mark in the 20-mile main event of the auto racing program at Altamont Fair Grounds Track Memorial Day.

Winn did the track in 29 1-5 seconds a year ago to set the mark. This year he will have as competitors Bobbie Sall, Eastern dirt track champion, and Johnny Hannon, Lloyd Vieaux and Ken Fowler. Hannon at present is leading in the race for the Eastern A. A. A. dirt track title. Six races are on the schedule for Wednesday, but only the main event of 20 miles will count in the championship standing.

Leetown Lions Score On Single by Pitcher

Charlestown, W. Va., May 27 (Spl.).—The Leetown Lions defeated the Jefferson County All-Stars in their annual Memorial Day encounter on Woodys Field here, 2 to 1.

F. Bradley, pitching for the Lions, won his own game when he singled Harris home in the eighth inning.

Noted Horses To Take Part In Show

300 Entries Will Compete in Fredericksburg Exhibition.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—Many of Virginia's finest thoroughbreds are among the 300 entries who will compete in the Fredericksburg Horse Show at the fair grounds here Tuesday and Wednesday.

One of the most prominent horse owners at the show will be Mrs. Allen Potts, Gordonsville, one of the outstanding horsewomen in America. For almost 50 years Mrs. Potts has been a figure in horse events of Virginia and surrounding States.

Other noted out-of-town participants will include W. Manly Carter, Orange, president of the Virginia Horse Show Circuit; Mrs. G. N. Lee, Middleburg, who will bring a string of ribbon-winning horses; North Fletcher and Tom Waller, Warrenton, and Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, jr., Accotink.

Judges who will choose winners of prizes valued at more than $1,000 total, are Charles H. Hurkamp, Fredericksburg; Waugh Glasscock, Upperville, master of Prince William hounds; M. Clay Bayly, The Plains, and Jack Carpenter, Greenwood.

Squeeze in 14th Wins For Front Royals, 4 to 3

Front Royal, Va., May 27 (Spl.).—A squeeze play in the fourteenth inning gave the Front Royal All-Stars a 4-3 victory over the Swanee A. C. of Washington, D. C., here this afternoon. A walk, an error and two sacrifices gave the Stars their winning margin.

The game was a tight pitchers' battle between Bobby Cassell and Gaum, with the former having the edge, Cassell fanning 13 batters.

Morgal and Tucci were the only visitors to get more than one hit off Cassell, while Lacey McFall, with a double and single, led the local attack.

Emergency Works Winner.

Emergency Works nine took an 8-5 fall out of the Palisades A. C. yesterday. Sullivan's pitching and French's hitting featured.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

First race—The honor of opening the meeting goes to a limit field of juveniles. Canoble Lake is dropping down a few pegs. Failed to get out of the maiden ranks in better company. This looks about right. Strange Times and Easterdale appear to have the edge on the others.

Second race—Grace Bunting seems best suited in this sprint. Raced well over at Hagerstown and is mighty fit. Water Lad likes the track and might prove a winning outsider. Pukka Heaven could figure close if allowed to get out of the also eligibles.

Third race—Aella breaks off the rail and may make every post a winning one. A sharp sprinter now and ready to step down. Modern Times will be in the thick of the battling right down to the wire and is the one to beat. Dunwin, among the also eligibles, is dangerous if started.

Fourth race—In the Shirley Povich purse, I favor Lodorous. Showed a distinct liking for this track last winter. Is rather sternly opposed here, but has a fighting chance to get home in front. Wise Mollie and Decorate to complete the money picture.

Fifth race—Manager Bill could take the feature race without making me a bit surprised. This one is better than rated. Chatterfel and Gloritone figure right up, but I still prefer the top fellow.

Sixth race—Little Stokes showed excellent form on the Maryland courses and finds a field to his liking in this mile and a furlong. No Mistake may be the sleeper. This fellow won here last year. Arab could be close.

Seventh race—Solace has been gradually worked into condition and will find a route tomorrow that he favors. Helen's Alibi and McDonald H. for the other awards. The last-named is Clocker Mike's Three X Special.

Radio Waves and Ripples

ONE of our short-wave friends called up the other day to say that she had just been listening to EAQ, Madrid, and would you believe it, EAQ signs off with Maurice Gunsky's "Good Night" just like WOL?

In truth, our friend thought she had been listening to WOL instead of some distant and therefore enchanting station, and had spoiled her entire evening, until, my dears, a man started to speak in Spanish. Our happy friend, who took Spanish in high school, said he had a pure Castillian accent.

WOL has been signing off with "Good Night" for five years, President Leroy Mark tells us. They got the idea from a station in Baltimore. Mr. Mark didn't know where the Baltimore station got the idea, but he guessed not less than a dozen stations in this country are using the number.

WOL buys "Good Night" records by the dozen to get the best rate. As soon as one record is the least bit worn, they throw it away and bring out a new one. Mr. Mark says it's the most popular thing on the air here, that several times they have tried signing off with something else, and each time complaint receipts have been so heavy that he had to send out the office boy for a couple dozen more records.

The music store people tell us the record is probably their best seller. They can thank Mr. Mark for that. What he doesn't buy for his own use, his listeners get for playing on nights when they don't feel like staying up until 11 o'clock.

RADIO wars are getting to be old stuff. And anyone interested in wars can read about Toledo, anyway.

But we think you should know N. B. C. has decided that it's about time to be doing something about WJSV's sports broadcast monopoly.

WJSV has exclusive rights to the wrestling matches. And it has the same proprietary interest in Joe Turner's impending boxing shows. It has Arch McDonald interviewing visiting athletes and chatting nightly of the sandlots. And it has Washington baseball, also marbles.

What it hasn't got—golf, polo, bowling and possibly ping pong—N. B. C. means to get, and then, perhaps, settle down to a careful reading of the Darrow report and the trust laws.

In any event it might be a good idea for athletes without broadcasting experience to stay out of Washington for a while.

En route to the St. Louis music festival, the Double Male Quartet of the Berlin Teachers Singing Society is stopping off in Washington today for a WMAL concert at 5 p. m.

Formed 50 years ago, the singing ciety is one of the finest organizations of its kind in the world. Before the World War, it won several annual singing contests, sponsored by the Kaiser, which entitled its leader to wear for a year the "Kaiser Kette," a gilded chain.

Today's program will include "Die Nacht," Schubert; "Abenlied," Adam; "Mein Heimat Tal," Wagner; "Wanderschaft," Soeldner; "Jager Von Kurpfals" and old folk tunes.

Socialist Faction Seeking to Upset Thomas' Power

New York, May 27 (AP).—The National leadership of Norman Thomas in the Socialist party faces a strong test this week in the off-year convention in Detroit.

The first convention since the death of Morris Hillquit, New York lawyer, who succeeded Eugene V. Debs, is expected to find the remaining leaders of the Hillquit faction making a determined stand to keep Thomas from gaining control of the National executive committee.

In recent years, the cleavage between Thomas and the more strictly literal Marxist leaders steadily has become sharper.

While, it was understood, Thomas does not desire the chairmanship of the committee, he does want the support of a majority to achieve the "Americanization of Socialism"—the adaptation of the Marxian philosophy into a more American political-minded labor movement. Thomas steadily has called for more militant activity.

Purse Snatcher Gets Woman's $25 and Ring

Jewelry and cash totaling $110 was reported stolen yesterday when a thief snatched the pocketbook of Helen Thompson, 913 I street northwest, as she sat in a downtown restaurant.

The loss included $25 in cash and a gold wedding ring valued at $85, police were told.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Hongkong is a British island in the mouth of the Canton River, not a Chinese city as is the general impression. The island, together with others in the same vicinity and some mainland territory, make up the British Crown Colony of Greater Hong Kong. The capital city of this colony is Victoria.

The island is an important part of the British Empire. It guards the entrance of the river, serving both as a naval base and as a trade center in the Orient. Hong Kong was ceded to Great Britain by China in 1841 as a result of the first opium war.

The popular error of regarding the island as a city, according to George W. Stimpson in his "Things Worth Knowing," arises from the fact that news dispatches are often dated from Hongkong instead of from any particular city.

Tapioca came originally from Brazil, where it was made from the roots of the poisonous cassava plant. The cassava plant, though highly poisonous when raw, becomes a perfectly safe, nourishing dish when properly cooked.

There is a legend in Brazil that purports to describe how cassava first came to be used as a food. A traveler, lost in the jungle, feared slow death by starvation and fever. Rather than face this he decided to poison himself with cassava. He prepared what he thought would be a poison liquid by boiling some in water. The soup, to his amazement, was not at all poisonous, but perfectly edible and very nourishing.

1ST AND M STS. N.E.

SPECIAL
If you are a high-grade salesman and feel you are worth $50 to $150 per week, come in and see it done. Must be ex-serviceman with car. National backing. Will interview promptly at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Monday. R. E. Lindorff, 720 14th Street, Room 330.

MEN ARE YOU AT WORK?
THIS IS 1934 AD
(After Depression)

If you are out of a job and looking for a good steady position where your income will afford you and your family a good living and enable you to lay up a few dollars for a rainy day, you are the man I would like to see.

We can use a number of such men, preferably of mechanical inclination (white), including men who have been carpenters, bricklayers, insurance men, and bread and milk route men. Must have a fair education, good appearance and an ambition and a will to work hard for promotions and be satisfied with earnings of around $38 a week at start. Prefer married men who live in or near Washington. Must be able to give good references. Specialty salesmen need not apply.

At this time we also desire to employ only men who are not now employed and who are ready to go to work at once. Men who can qualify will be interviewed in a group at 9:30 o'clock sharp, Tuesday morning, May 29th, in the Blue Room of the Hamilton Hotel. Doors will be closed at 9:45. Come prepared to spend at least two hours in a discussion of our proposition. Men selected will be put in a position to go to making money this week.

If the Brakes on Your Car Are Bad

BEWARE of

POLICE SCOUT CAR NO. 7

This swift radio-equipped scout car is on special duty to test brakes, not only on cars involved in accidents, but on any car on the street suspected of having bad brakes. It carries a camera, steel measuring tape and brake-testing apparatus—and its crew of two are especially instructed in this duty. During the first four months of 1934, No. 7 and its sister car, No. 3, inspected 691 brakes, out of which 121 were defective—a startling percentage of dangerous cars in daily use!

D. C. REGULATION

"(d) All brakes shall be maintained in good working order and shall conform to the following regulations and specifications:

(1) On a dry, hard level road, free from loose material, the footbrake shall be capable of stopping the motor vehicle from a speed of 20 miles per hour within a distance of 40 feet.

(2) On a dry, hard, level road, free from loose material, the handbrake shall be capable of stopping the motor vehicle from a speed of 20 miles an hour within a distance of 75 feet.

(3) Trucks of 1¼ tons capacity or less will be required to stop within the distance specified in sub-paragraphs (1) and (2). Trucks over 1¼ tons capacity must be capable of stopping within 40 feet from a rate of speed 15 miles per hour upon the application of either brake."

PENALTY CLAUSE

"Any person violating any of the provisions of any section or paragraph of these regulations wherein a penalty is not specifically provided shall on conviction be punished by a fine of not more than $300 or imprisonment of not more than 10 days or both."

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Clues — By Harry J. Tuthill

RECENTLY A STUDENT OF SEVERAL DETECTIVE SCHOOLS DISPLAYED SOME OF HIS HOME-WORK TO A NEIGHBOR DEEPLY INTERESTED IN FICTIONAL CRIME PROBLEMS.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
BUT HOW DID YOU KNOW THAT I GOT A TICKET FOR SPEEDING TODAY?
VERY SIMPLY. YOU CAME IN THE DRIVE VERY SLOWLY AND LATER I SAW YOU TALKING TO THAT CHAP DOWNSTAIRS WHO CLAIMS TO KNOW SO MANY JUDGES.
OUT OF MANY ADMIRING CONFERENCES CAME THE VENDETTA DETECTIVE AGENCY AND THE STRANGE CASE OF THE MISSING MEMORY.
AFTER THE MAJOR AGREED TO MARRY ME, HE REMEMBERED THAT SEVERAL YEARS AGO HE LOST HIS MEMORY.
AND I FEAR I MAY BE ALREADY MARRIED. YES SIR, I SURE DO.
TALKATIVE SERVANTS ADDED DETAILS TO CASE NO. 1 THAT BROUGHT A CONFESSION AND AN OFFER OF AN EXTRA REWARD FOR SILENCE.
THEN YOU ADMIT YOU "LOST" YOUR MEMORY TO AVOID MARRYING MRS. DARD-ANELLA?
LISTEN BOYS, LET'S TALK TURKEY! HOW MUCH WILL YOU TAKE TO JUST FORGET THAT THIS CASE IS SOLVED? MAKE ME AN OFFER.
WHILE TRYING TO EXTRICATE THEMSELVES FROM CASE NO. 1 THE DETECTIVES DISCOVERED THE COMBINATION OF A SAFE THAT WAS OPENED SEVERAL TIMES BY ANNOYING AFTER-DARK VISITORS.
AT LAST! SUCCESS! OPEN!
AND FULL OF SILVERWARE. MY WORD, WHAT A MYSTERY! AND IN A DETECTIVE AGENCY, TOO.
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

JOE JINKS, Featuring Dynamite Dunn — Now What? — By Llanuza

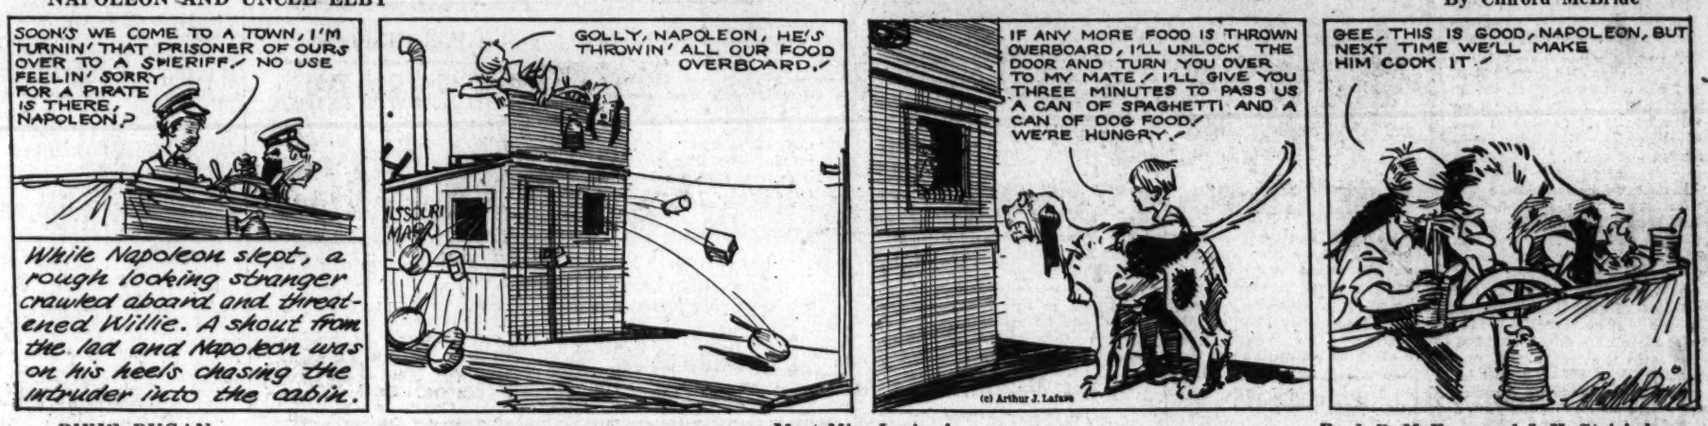
ON THE MONDAY AFTER DYNAMITE'S MAN-A-MINUTE FIGHTS, PETE HUMUS FOUND JOE IN HIS OFFICE KNEE DEEP IN TELEGRAMS
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: © 1934 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.
WHATCHA BEEN DOIN' JOE-WRITIN A LOT O' TELEGRAMS?
NO-I'VE BEEN GETTIN' 'EM-THESE ARE ONLY A PART O' THE BUNCH THAT CAME THIS MORNING
YEAH? WOT'RE PEOPLE WRITIN' YOU FOR-THIS YOUR BIRTHDAY?
NO, THEY'RE WIRIN' OFFERS TO FIGHT DYNAMITE-THAT PLAY HE GOT IN THE PAPERS MADE HIM THE BIGGEST DRAWIN' CARD IN THE COUNTRY!
GEE! THAT SURE IS SWELL! WHICH ONE O' THEM OFFERS YOU GONNA TAKE?
NONE OF 'EM!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride



SOON'S WE COME TO A TOWN, I'M TURNIN' THAT PRISONER OF OURS OVER TO A SHERIFF. NO USE FEELIN' SORRY FOR A PIRATE IS THERE, NAPOLEON?
While Napoleon slept, a rough looking stranger crawled aboard and threatened Willie. A shout from the lad and Napoleon was on his heels chasing the intruder into the cabin.
GOLLY, NAPOLEON, HE'S THROWIN' ALL OUR FOOD OVERBOARD!
IF ANY MORE FOOD IS THROWN OVERBOARD, I'LL UNLOCK THE DOOR AND TURN YOU OVER TO MY MATE. I'LL GIVE YOU THREE MINUTES TO PASS US A CAN OF SPAGHETTI AND A CAN OF DOG FOOD. WE'RE HUNGRY.
(c) Arthur J. Lafave
GEE, THIS IS GOOD, NAPOLEON, BUT NEXT TIME WE'LL MAKE HIM COOK IT.

DIXIE DUGAN — Meet Miss Loring! — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

MICKEY AND DIXIE HAVE PUMPED DRY THE WELLS OF GOSSIP ABOUT EACH OTHER.. AND NOW MICKEY PREPARES TO SETTLE DOWN IN HER NEW HOME WITH HER UNCLE AND AUNT, DOCTOR AND MRS. B. BEVVINGTON BROWN
OH, DIXIE — IT'S ALL SO WONDERFUL! I HAVE TO KEEP PINCHING MYSELF TO MAKE SURE THAT ALL THIS HAS REALLY HAPPENED TO LITTLE MYRA MACKEY
PARDON ME — BUT HAS IT?
UNCLE-!
WHAT I HEARD YOU SPEAKING ABOUT — IT REALLY HASN'T HAPPENED TO MYRA MACKEY
IT'S HAPPENED TO A GIRL I WANT YOU TO MEET NOW—
MISS MYRA LORING

THE GUMPS — Both Sides

MONDAY— THE DAY OF THE HEARING ON THE INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS FILED BY THE DE STROSSES ATTORNEY TO TIE UP BIM'S MILLIONS- THE CASE COMES UP BEFORE OLD JUDGE THROCKMORTON- ON HIS DECISION RESTS THE IMMEDIATE FATE OF BIM'S ASSETS—
SMART FELLOW- THAT LAWYER- HE'S HANDLING IT JUST RIGHT-
YOU'RE LUCKY TO HAVE A GOOD ATTORNEY LIKE HIM- HE'S GOT AN HONEST FACE-
YOUR HONOR, MY CLIENT IS KNOWN AS A MAN OF HONOR AND INTEGRITY IN THIS COMMUNITY- THIS ATTEMPT TO TIE UP HIS FORTUNE IS UNJUST AND UNNECESSARY— IT IS PLAINLY AN ATTEMPT ON THE PART OF THE PLAINTIFF TO ANNOY AND HARASS MR. GUMP INTO MAKING AN IMMEDIATE SETTLEMENT-
I PROTEST, YOUR HONOR—THESE INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS ARE ONLY A JUST ENDEAVOR ON THE PART OF A WRONGED GIRL TO KEEP A RICH AND SELFISH PHILANDERER FROM WRONGING HER FURTHER—HOW DO WE KNOW BUT WHAT BIM GUMP MAY TAKE IT INTO HIS HEAD TO SNEAK AWAY BACK TO AUSTRALIA WITHOUT EVER MAKING A PENNY OF SETTLEMENT TO THIS POOR HEART-BROKEN CHILD WHOSE LIFE HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY WRECKED—
THE DECISION NOW RESTS WITH THE JUDGE—WE'LL GET THE VERDICT TOMORROW—

DICK TRACY — Vulture's Meat

DOC, THIS IS CURLEY TALKING FROM LARCENY LU'S PLACE. YOU SEE IT'S LIKE THIS. ME AND LU WAS SITTING HERE WHEN THERE COMES A KNOCK ON THE DOOR. IT'S STEVE THE TRAMP JUST ESCAPED FROM PRISON AN' HE'S ALL SHOT UP.
LISTEN, "HUMP"- LARCENY LU HAS THIS BADLY WOUNDED ESCAPED CONVICT, STEVE, AT HER HOUSE GO OUT AND FIX 'IM UP AND ...COLLECT! GET IT?
BUT STEVE, WHY IN—! DID YOU COME TO MY PLACE? I'VE JUST BEEN RELEASED ON PAROLE, AND IF I'M DISCOVERED HARBORING AN ESCAPED CONVICT I'LL BE BACK TO THE IRON CAGE FOR ME.
I JUST HAPPENED TO KNOW YOUR ADDRESS, LU—AND YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE I COULD THINK OF, WHO MIGHT HELP ME.
HEH, HEH, HEH! AN ESCAPED CONVICT HIDING IN THE HOME OF A PAROLER! THAT OUGHT TO BE WORTH A COUPLE OF GRAND, AT LEAST. -YES..AT LEAST! HEH -HEH..

WINNIE WINKLE, the Breadwinner — The Early Bird

H'M! NINE O'CLOCK! I'VE BEEN SETTIN' HERE NEARLY AN HOUR AN' WINNIE AIN'T COME DOWN TO BREAKFAST YET!!
MAY 28
IF THAT GAL IS GONNA GIT OUT AN' LOOK FOR A JOB, SHE'D BETTER NOT BE LAYIN' IN BED TILL ALL HOURS O'TH' DAY!!
WHERE Y'GOIN' PAW?
UPSTAIRS TO WAKE WINNIE UP!!
DON'T GET EXCITED! SHE'S OUT LOOKIN' FOR WORK SINCE SEVEN O'CLOCK!

Walt Mason, Himself

Familiarity.

You doubtless know the cheerful jay who seems created to offend; if introduced to you today, tomorrow he's your bosom friend. He greets you with a sunny smile, and calls you Tommy, Dick or Jim, which sort of business stirs your bile, and you would rend him limb from limb. He helps himself to your cheroots, with gall that's simply picturesque, and when he calls he puts his boots upon your large, expensive desk. As you pursue your downward track he skips behind you, feeling fine, and slaps you roundly on the back, and nearly breaks your valued spine. He carries off the books you prize, and never brings them back again, and when he'd write some pleasant lies, he does it with your fountain pen. Old friends may take great liberties with your possessions or your name, and you won't let your spirit freeze, it all belongs to friendship's game. But with rebellious wrath you pant when one you met a week ago would like to wed your maiden aunt, or borrow samples of your dough. It sends a chill athwart your flesh when new acquaintances turn loose, convincing you they are too fresh for any sort of worthy use. You wish you had a dirk or gat when one you met first yesterday comes up and spoils your Sunday hat in friendly persiflage and play. And every time we cross the street we meet this cheerful sort of jay; his coming gives us prickly heat and spoils another pleasant day.
